Dedication

This book is dedicated to the fond and lasting memory of our ancestors, especially our Mothers and Fathers, for without their struggle and concern this book would not have been written. Their lives may best be summarized, for all generations, in the words of Sirach (190-170 B.C.), written almost two thousand years ago.

Let us now praise honorable folks, our ancestors in their successive generations.
The Lord has created an abundance of glory, and displayed his greatest from earliest times.
There were those who ruled in their kingdoms, and were people renowned for their strength;
giving counsel by their understanding, and proclaiming prophecies.
Others directed the people by their advice,
by their understanding of the popular mind, and by the wise words of their teaching;
others composed musical melodies, and set forth verses in writing;
others were rich and powerful, living peaceably in their homes.
All of these were honored in their generation, and were the glory of their times.
Some of them left a name behind them, so that their praises are still sung.
While others have left no memory, and disappeared as though they had not existed.
But these were persons of mercy, whose good works have not been forgotten.
In their descendants there remains a rich inheritance born to them.
Their descendants stand by the covenants and thanks to them, so do their children's children.
Their offspring will continue forever, and their glory will not be blotted out.
Their bodies have been buried in peace and their name lives on for all generations.

He loses his ability to look forward intelligently.

Introduction

A project of a family genealogy - history covering a span of over three hundred and fifty years, is never finished. If so, my direct search for my family roots would have been finished forty years ago. However, as time passed, and folks across the country learned of my search for descendants of John Pike, material started arriving, which of necessity, if to be included, delayed the promised completion of the book. Notification of the project announced in several publications, especially NEHGS NEXUS (April-May, 1992, Vol. IX, No. 2, p. 70) and after discovering my name in the national computer systems: "Internet" and "Prodigy" as the representative of the "Pike Family Association of America" (a title which I do not claim) brought forth abundance of inquiries and material. Thus, it was necessary to be continually revising the book at last to the third and final revision.

Some of the material submitted by relatives is without source references in the text. It is assumed they can document their material. Whereas, material included from author's research is documented. Certainly, much more is desired: i.e. more family information, religious affiliations, military services, and biographical information.

Over the years much has been written on the Pike Families; other than found in "Records of Pike Family Association" (q.v. Bibliography, p. 758). Not to forget unpublished material collected by the many interested researchers.

This book is an attempt to compile some of this data. It is with a deep sense of gratitude to all those who contributed to this endeavor in respecting the honorable name of Pike and trusting that our efforts have not been in vain.

John Pike's England:

England, at the end of the 16th and beginning of the 17th centuries, experienced simultaneously two revolutionary movements: a Renaissance and a Reformation, the like of which the empire had never known.

It was during this period that John Pike was born (ca. 1573) and lived in England for 62 years, prior to embarking to America in 1635.

The Renaissance, "a new birth", was a period of creativity, in politics, architecture, music and especially in the field of literature. The social and historical events of the times were recorded by such literary giants as: Sir Philip Sidney (1554-1586); Christopher Marlowe (1564-1593); Edmund Spencer (1552-1599); Sir Walter Ralegh (Raleigh) (1552-1618), soldier, explorer, courtier, and author; and the notable William Shakespeare (1564-1616), to mention a few (which was required reading in our college "Lit. classes"). William Caxton (1422-1491) became the first printer in England (1476), which made the written word, and especially the Bible, available to the common folk.

Among these notables was Sir Thomas More (1478-1535), scientist, theologian, diplomat, member of parliament and humanist writer. More was appointed Lord Chancellor by Henry VIII (1491-1547) and served him as a devoted and trusted friend until King Henry divested himself from the Catholic Church in order to divorce his first wife, Catherine of Aragon (1485-1536) to marry Ann Boleyn (1507-1536). Sir Thomas objected to the King's break with the papacy and worse the King's establishing himself as head of the Church of England. More was convicted as a traitor, condemned to the Tower and beheaded (July, 1536) (q.v., Marius).

The readers attention is invited to further research on Sir Thomas More as some records indicated that John[1] Pike's grandfather, John Pike "married a granddaughter of Sir Thomas More" (Dr. Charles A. Fernald's address: Pike Assoc., 1902, p. 22). (For one who may be interested: Sir Thomas More's family is included in the Appendix, page 752.)

Many outside of England became prominent during this age of enlightenment, one such: Galileo (1564-1642), an Italian scientist, one of the first to perfect a telescope and reported that the earth and planets revolved around the sun and the earth was not the center of the universe; for which he was condemned by the Catholic Church. The last five years of his life he was totally blind - unaware of the damage of the sun's rays upon his eyes.

Of the two movements, the Reformation would have the greatest impact on England (and the world) in the formation and acceptance of the different Protestant churches; which would become a major reason for persons seeking religious freedom in the New World.

The beginnings of Protestantism could be traced to Martin Luther (1483-1546) when in 1517, he posted his ninety-five theses on the door of Wittenberg Cathedral, Germany. He was followed by such men as John Calvin (1509-1564) who resided in Switzerland and France, credited as the father of the Presbyterian Church and his friend, John Knox (1505-1572) of Scotland. This opened the way for others to follow: John (1703-1791) and Charles (1707-1788) Wesley, founders of Methodism; and later in America, Roger Williams (1603-1683) who, banished from the Massachusetts Colony, moved to Providence, Rhode Island and founded (1639) the first Baptist Church in America. There were of course other major religions other than Christianity: i.e. Hinduism, Buddhism, Islam (Moslem) and Judaism. Lest we dwell on this subject, the reader is invited to search further for the history of other religions and denominations.

Protestantism had reached England, so when Henry VIII decided to break with Rome, during this reformation, he had already learned much about the tenets of the new religion. He was a devoutly religious person, so much so, that Pope Leo X in 1521, awarded him the title "Defender of the Faith", a title which the Catholic Church would shortly regret.

Henry VIII's accomplishments would greatly be remembered if not for being overshadowed by his six marriages and divorce difficulties. Yet, these difficulties were a contributing factor which brought about the Reformation of religion in England. After eighteen years of marriage to Catherine, and she having failed to produce a male heir, Henry sought a divorce. (Catherine was the widow of Henry's brother Arthur (d. April 1502) - that's another story.) Since the divorce was rejected by Pope Clemens VII (1534) Henry sought other means. Henry began to sever all ties with the papacy and eventually through much maneuvering with Parliament, he was acknowledged as Head of the Church of England, thus founding the Anglican Church and eventually the Prostestant Episcopal Church. He did not wish to introduce all the Protestant doctrines so he continued much of the Catholic rituals with translations into English parts of the service and instituted the English translation of the Bible (which would be completed during the reign of James Stuart I (1546-1625). Now head of the church, he could do so as he liked. And he did!

Elizabeth (1533-1603) became queen in 1558, after waiting her turn - eleven years after the death of her father, Henry VIII. (King Henry had willed that succession to the throne would be: (1st) Edward (VI) (1537-1553) his only son, by his third wife Jane Seymour; (2nd) Mary (I) (1516-1558), daughter by his first wife, Catherine of Argon, and (3rd) Elizabeth (I) (1533-1603), daughter by his second wife, Ann Boleyn. Except for a period of nine days, when Jane Grey (1537-1554) served as Queen, this line was followed.)

Queen Elizabeth's (Good Queen Bess) reign ushered in the "Elizabethan Age", the greatest of the time. One of her first acts was to settle the religious question. Many of the church reforms established by her father had been destroyed by Queen Mary (Bloody Mary) (1516-1558), Elizabeth's predecessor. She returned the kingdom to those Protestant principles founded by her father. Fearing any usurping of her throne, she committed at least two major blunders which she would regret: she had her cousin, Mary Stuart (1542-1587) beheaded and later also beheaded her lover, Earl of Essex, Robert Devereux (1566-1601). Elizabeth died at the age of seventy, having ruled England for forty-five years.

Winston Churchill writing some three hundred and fifty years later would say of Henry VIII, first of the Tudor line and his daughter, Elizabeth: "For over a hundred years, the Tudor dynasty, with a handful of bodyguards, had maintained their sovereignty, kept the peace, baffled the diplomacy and onslaughts of Europe, and guided the country through changes which might well have wrecked it. Parliament was becoming a solid affair based on a working harmony between Sovereign; Lord and Commons, and the traditions of English monarchical government had been restored and gloriously enhanced. But these achievements carried no guarantee of their perpetuations." (Churchill, Vol. II, p. 144)

This was the political and religious atmosphere into which John Pike was born and resided for sixty-two years of his life. In retrospect, we wonder, how much did he know of his surroundings? Although, he is listed as "laborer" on the ship's manifest, he certainly was an educated man, as were his two sons: John and Robert. Records indicate that he served as an attorney on several cases in America (q.v. John[1] Pike, Generation I, p. 1 in text). ("In the first decade of the great immigration over eighty thousand English-speaking people crossed the Atlantic. So many tradesmen had left England that it became necessary to scrutinize very carefully those leaving England." (Churchill, Vol. II, p. 177) It is no doubt because of this regulation that John Pike is listed on the ship's manifest as "laborer".)

John Pike must have heard of these happenings - though news would have come late - perhaps he witnessed some of the royal events? Through the abundance of historical writings: i.e. Winston Churchill, radio plays, television documentaries, and movies, which may be exaggerated for entertainment purposes (q.v. Source), we know more about the England of John's times then he would ever know. No records exist of his life in England.

The NEGHR: Vol. 66, 1912, p. 257 records several "wills" of English Pikes (Pykes). It is interesting to note that these persons resided in Whiteparish, Wiltshire County; our John Pike's home town. This Register (p. 260) also lists: "Pike Entries in the Parish Registers of Whiteparish, Wiltshire, 1559-1640". (Baptisms, Marriages, Burials in Salisbury Cathedral) Records of Landford, John's home town before 1671, are lost. (Ibid, p. 261)

Sometime near the end of the 17th Century, following the death of Queen Elizabeth and King James I (1546-1625) had been crowned King, John Pike began to have ideas and plans for picking-up roots and going to America. That opportunity was soon to arise.

The story of the "religious extremists group", later known as the Pilgrims, their ten years sojourn in Holland before being granted a license by King James to settle in America, is well known. When in September 1620, thirty-five members of their party along with sixty-five Englishmen boarded the "Mayflower" and after a sea voyage of two and a half months arrived on the coast of North America in a place they called "Plymouth". Being outside the jurisdiction of England, their patent was no longer valid. They were left to their own resources, pointing a path to freedom, they established their own government with the writing of the "Mayflower Compact", the forerunner of the American Constitution. This was the founding of New England.

Also in this year, 1620, a chartered company was formed by financial supporters in England called "The Company of the Massachusetts Bay in New England". There was no lack of persons wishing to join in this venture. It may be assumed that John Pike was one of the joiners of this group.

On April 5, 1635, John Pike (Ae 62) with his two sons: John (Ae 22) and Robert (Ae 19); and three daughters: Dorothy (Ae 18), Ann (Ae 14) and Israel (Ae 12) set sail with eighty other passengers on the "James of London" from Southampton, England for America. After sixty days at sea they arrived in Ipswich, Massachusetts on June 3, 1635. (To a traveler in the 20th Century (1995) this must have been a trying journey, especially when he thinks of their sea journey of sixty days compared with flight of the "Concorde" which travels from London to New York in less than three hours.) (On October 12th and 13th, 1992, the Air France Concorde, flying at Mach 2 (1,350 mph), in celebrating Christopher Columbus's voyage to the New World in 1492, circumnavigated the globe in 23 hours and 10 minutes.)

This writer has been privileged to travel quite extensively in the British Isle, prior to knowledge that he was traversing in the footsteps of his ancestors. It is doubtful that John Pike ever had such an opportunity. What did he know of London? Did he witness the coronation of Queen Elizabeth? Did he by chance visit or perhaps debate at Westminister Hall? He was an attorney. And while in London did he visit St. Paul's Cathedral or the ill-famous "Tower of London"? A visit to Stratford-on-Avon, the home of Shakespeare (1564-1616) and a production of "The Taming of the Shrew" (written in 1593) would have been out of the question! He would not have gotten to Scotland to visit "Holyroodhouse", the home of Mary Queen of Scots or the home of John Knox (1505-72), the great religious reformer, nor St. Giles where he preached. What did he know about "Stonehenge" (a prehistoric ritual monument dating from the Bronze Age (2000-1000 B.C.). It was about twenty-five miles from his home. And surely, he must have visited and attended services at the 13th Century Salisbury Cathedral about ten miles from his home, the spiral being one of the highest in England (404 feet). (The building of the Salisbury Cathedral is well described in Edward Rutherford's, Sarum (old name of Salisbury, an Historical Novel.) Did he meet any of Sir Thomas More's descendants and discover their relationship?

John Pike's Arrival in America:

They arrived at Agawam (Ipswich), Massachusetts on June 3, 1635 and soon journeyed to Quascacunquen (Newbury) to settle near friends, i.e. Merrill Family. Many of the folks, from John's home area, Wiltshire County, had arrived a year before. There were weavers, tanners, shoemakers, mariners, two ministers, and a physician. One can visualize the scattered log cabins, later to be replaced with wooden framed houses, cleared land, shelters for the few animals (cattle were listed on ship's manifest), gardens in the summer, narrow trails through the woods for the passage of oxen cart, ferries to permit the crossing of rivers, but all this would soon change with the ingenuity and hard labor of the pioneers.

John's dream of religious freedom was short lived: "The leaders and ministers who ruled, had views of their own about freedom. It must be the rule of the godly. They understood tolerance as little as the Anglicans, and dispute broke out about religion." (Churchill, Vol. II, p. 172) (It would not be until December 15, 1791, with the passing of the "Bill of Rights" that freedom of worship would be assured. "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof.")

Summary:

This introduction, the last to be written, has been the most difficult. There is so much to be said: John's England, John's America and today (1995). It began with the 16th Century and now ends five years before the end of the 20th Century. All that has transpired between - a medieval to the technological ages - must be left for the readers knowledge or investigation.

How John must have pondered and consulted with his children about leaving his homeland for an uncharted land of which little was known or written. This adventuresome attribute was passed down to his descendants: whether leaving their childhood home through the Maine forest to northern Aroostook, as mine did; or aboard a sailing ship to far distant lands; or by covered wagon as homesteaders across the barren lands of the west; or fighting battles, at home or on foreign fields, all for seeking or protecting a better way of life.

Centuries in between, but especially the 20th Century, folks have brought about unbelievable, astonishing, fascinating accomplishments: transportation, the automobile, bullet trains, airplanes, as mentioned "the Concorde"; required public school education; improvement in agricultural production; medicine, to the point where almost any part of the body can be healed or replaced. Not to forget Neil Armstrong's first step on the moon, July 20, 1969: a "giant leap for mankind". Yes! Even to the point of being able to destroy civilization with the Atomic and Hydrogen Bomb. Galileo's prized telescope (which about cost him his life) is minuscule when compared to the "Hubble Space Telescope" (launced April, 1990. Orbiting some 380 Miles above the earth. Cost over $1.6 billion) expected to observe and photographing planetary objects millions of years away in space with a clarity 10 times that ever before achieved.

Will it be a better civilization? Will settlements in outerspace be a fulfillment of John Pike's dream of a better life or will the same religious conflicts, prejudices and destructive forces continue as a way of life?

Alfred Lord Tennyson (1809-92), English poet, in his famous poem "Recessional" gives us food for thought: "The tumult and the shouting dies; the captains and the kings depart; still stands thine ancient sacrifice... Lest we forget, Lest we forget!"

Hollywood has always been fascinated by the life of Henry VIII and Queen Elizabeth: "A Man for all Seasons" (1966) (Columbia) starring: Paul Scofield (Sir Thomas More), Robert Shaw (King Henry VIII), Orsen Welles (Cardinal Wolsey); "Lady Jane Grey" (1986) starring: Trevor Nunn, Helena Carter, Cary Elves, Michael Harden, and John Wood; "Mary of Scotland (1936) (RKO) starring: Katharine Hepburn, Frederic March, John Carradine, and Florence Eldridge; "Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex" (1939) (Warner Bros.) starring: Errol Flynn, Bette Davis, Olivia DeHavilland, Donald Crisp, and Vincent Price; "Virgin Queen" (1955) (20th Century) starring: Bette Davis, Richard Todd, Joan Collins, and Herbert Marshall.

In 1837, Gaetano Donizette (1797-1848) composed the "Elizabethan Opera Trilogy" consisting of "Anna Bolena", story of Ann Boleyn; "Maria Stuarda", story of Mary of Scotland; and "Robert Devereux", Earl of Essex, one of Queen Elizabeth's lovers. These operas were brought back, after an absence of many years, by Beverly Sills, at the Metropolitan Opera House, NYC, in 1970 and recordings by Maria Callas, two leading sopranos of the day. Speaking of opera, the "Pike Opera Company" played in and about San Francisco, before the days of radio and television.

Pike Family Ancestry

The English name of Pike is a very ancient one and is generally believed to be of Saxon Origin. Some writers theorize that the name was given to the progenitor of the family because of his ability to use the ancient weapon, the pike (as observed on the top of the "Coat of Arms", with greater facility than his contemporaries (Burke's Landed Gentry). C.W. Bradsley, Dictionary of English and Welsh Surnames stated: "Pike is a surname of locality origin, for 'the dweller at the pike', a rise in the ground, or a hill. The name occurs in English records as early as 1273." (American Historical Co., Colonial and Revolutionary Lineages of America, 1950, p. 145.)

Among the earliest records of the family in England are those of two brothers, Robert and Henry Pike, who were living in Litchfield (some 116 miles northwest of London), Stafford Co., England, in the late eleventh and twelfth centuries. Robert was consecrated Bishop of Litchfield in 1127 and his son Richard consecrated Biship of Coventry (91 miles north of London) in 1162. Bishop Richard Pike had a son Sir Richard[a] Pike (1370) of Somersetshire (continued below).

(Number: 10-926, page 483) (1951)

Several writings have appeared in the Pike records, as well as other documents, tracing the ancestry of John[1] Pike, prior to his arriving in America in 1635. It would appear through comparing these writings, that persons have relied much upon the research and historical address by Dr. Charles A. Fernald given at the third Pike reunion (Pike Assoc., 1902, p. 16, photo: Dr. Fernald, p. 14. Also 1904, p. 77). Dr. Fernald's article, which the reader may find difficult to understand, has many historical references.

Augusta Pike Kunelius (1964: 165 Walen Road, Fitchburg, MA) relies much upon Dr. Fernald's research in a subsequent article written 15 May 1964 (copy in files). Interestingly, she begins the ancestry with Philip I (1052-1108), King of France (no sources or references are listed).

Unfortunately, both Dr. Fernald and Ms. Kunelius end their research with John[1] Pike marrying Sarah Washington for which we can find no truth. Miss Anne B. Harding, Associate Editor, NEHGR, to whom we owe much thanks for her research, writing to Manville C. Pike (11-986, p. 564), 15 June 1973, stated: "Where the story that John[1] Pike's wife was Sarah Washington originated I do not know. The Washingtons came from Lancashire to Virginia (and I may point out some twenty years later than the Pikes) and the Pikes from the opposite end of England in Wiltshire." This writer has also searched the Washington Ancestry and find no reference to a Pike marrying a Washington (Charles A. Hoppin, The Washington Ancestry. Three Vols., Greenfield, Ohio. 1932. Privately Printed.) (Abstract in files.)

Eugene F. McPikes' research, Some English Pykes, printed in Pike records, 1939 (p. 30) is also worthy of further study.

Maria Freeman (San Francisco) traced her Pike lineage to the Gauls (A.D. 420). (Descent from the Early French Kings. Pike Assoc. 1906, p. 31.) (No sources or references are listed.)

Dr. Clifford L. Pike (q.v., 142-33, p. 74) gave a listing of Pike lineage in his address, September, 1906, Colorado Springs, CO, upon the Centennial celebration of the discovery of Pike's Peak (1806) by General Zebulon M. Pike (q.v., 7-315, p. 142) (Pike Assoc. 1912, p. 25). Dr. Pike mentioned one reference from Gen. James A. Garfield who was ninth generation from Robert Pike of Providence, RI, brother to our John Pike of Newbury (no further references are listed).

Dr. Pike based his research of the ancestral family lineage from Weaver's "Visitation of Somerset", page 64 (Pike Assoc. 1906, p. 34). Weaver described a coat of arms belonging to Sir Richard Pyke: "Arms Per pale Az. & Sa. over all three cresents Or." This being the "Coat of Arms" attributed to John[1] Pike. From this information Dr. Pike listed the following lineage:

Sir Richard[a] Pyke, Pike's Ash in Martock and of Moorlinch, also called West Bridgewater, living the eighth year of King Richard II (1367-1400) or in the year 1385, He had a son, Thomas[b] Pyke.

Thomas[b] Pyke had a son Hugh[c] Pyke.

Hugh[c] Pyke, living in the third year of King Henry VI's (1421-71) reign of the year 1425. (King Henry VI succeeded his father as King of England when an infant of one year of age.) Hugh's wife's name was Elizabeth. They had a son, Thomas[d].

Thomas[d] Pyke had a son, John[e] Pyke.

John[e] Pyke had a son, William[i] Pyke.

William[i] Pyke of Moorlinch, Somerset Co., married Alice, heir of Thomas Bowring of Bowring's Leigh in West Arlington, Co., Devon (201 miles southwest of London). They had two sons: Robert[g] (more on Robert in Pike Assoc. 1906, p. 35) and Stephen[g] Pyke. Here the spelling changes to "Pike".

Stephen[g] Pike, son of William, married Dorothy Cuffe (Cutts) (Weaver has the word "Cutts" enclosed as an interpretation of the name "Cuffe"). Stephen settled or in Bridgewater, Somerset (141 miles south of London). They had two sons and one daughter, John[h] Pike (1st in American: John[1] Pike), Francis[h] Pike (who had two sons: Jemone and Jones) and Elizabeth[h] Pike. (Further information continued in Pike Assoc. 1906, p. 35.)

John[h] Pike, becomes John[1] Pike, 1st in America 1635. (q.v. Generation I, Page 1, in text.)

Dr. Pike mentions other notable Pikes in "Pike Assoc., 1912, p. 31" which may afford information for other researchers.

This writer has made no attempt to research ancestry prior to John[1]'s coming to America. What research of English records has been by a professional genealogist in London. She has stated that the old records are so fragile and until they are mechanically copied, only under special circumstances can they be inspected. Information presented herewith, may serve to intice a future researcher to verify the ancestral lineage of the Pike Family.

Pike Family Association of America

And so it was in the beginning, on 15 August 1900, over 2000 (which grew to over 4000 in later years) letters were sent with the following message: "To persons of the great name of Pike or descended therefrom, and all interested in commemorating the life and deeds of the "Great English Commoner," the 'Worshipful Major Robert Pike,' of Salisbury Beach, Massachusetts are respectfully requested to be present at the Hotel Cushing, 11th and 12th of September 1900 for the purpose of organizing a Pike Family Association." Dr. Clifford L. Pike (142-33, p. 74) of Saco, Maine and Hon. Edwin B. Pike (476-8, p. 238), of Pike's Station, New Hampshire and others had conceived and carried this idea to its final completion (Pike Assoc., 1900-01, p. 1). The following were elected to the Executive Committee: Edwin B. Pike of Pike's Station, NH, President; Joseph T. Pike of 43 Exchange Place, NYC, 1st V. President; Dr. Clifford L. Pike of Saco,

ME, Sec-Treasurer; Walter N. Pike of Floral Park, NY; Rev. Dr. Ezra B. Pike of East Brentwood, NH; John Q. Evans of Salisbury, MA; Gordon B. Pike of 111 5th Ave., NYC. (By the end of 1901, 300 members were listed in the directory.)

On 3 March 1903, the Senate and House of Representatives, State of Maine, in Legislature assembled approved "An Act to Incorporate the Pike Family Association" (1904, p. 21).

With the years that followed, the reunions would bring together people from all over the country. Much to the credit of these early founders and devoted persons of the association and the printing of the "Records of the Pike Family Association", we are blessed with historical information from which much is recorded in this book. Every two years following the "1900-1901 Records" another publication of reunion minutes as well as family genealogical information was printed (1902, 1904, 1906, 1908, 1910, 1912, 1914, 1916-1938 (partial index), 1939, 1941-1948, 1956-1958). These records may be found at many libraries, as well as with those whose relatives were members of the association (copies in files) (NEHGS: CS/71/P636). It would be of great value to persons interested in Pikes and relatives, to have these records reprinted and indexed. A future project?

Reading the Pike records one is astounded as to the prodigious activities and services envisioned by these founders. Other than genealogical information and a copy of the official records, they made available many items to the members - with dues at twenty-five cents per year - later fifty-cents - (Twenty five dollars for life membership) (q.v. 1906, p. 11): an official badge with coat of arms, "a button for gents, a pin for ladies" (.50¢); writing paper w/coat of arms ($1.00 per quire - 24 sheets); a stein w/coat of arms ($4.00); Coat of Arms (hand-painted: 16 by 20 inches, $5.00) (q.v. Coat of Arms) and a pocket-size membership card w/Coat of Arms, which this writer has.

Reunions were held in the Boston, Salisbury areas: Hotel Thayer, Salisbury Beach (1900); United States Hotel, Boston (1902. admission fee: .50¢; rooms: $1.00; a special breakfast: .35¢; banquet: $1.50); America House, 24 Hanover St., Boston (1904, 1906, 1910); Methodist Church, Salisbury, Massachusetts (1908, 1912, 1924); Membership 1910: 433 (233 in good standing); Hotel Statler, Boston (1938, 1939. Luncheon $1.00); University Club, Boston (1941); Little Theatre, Colorado Springs, CO (1956). At each of these meetings a program and sight-seeing tour were arranged.

The sudden death of Dr. Clifford L. Pike in 1909 and a year before of Hon. Edwin B. Pike in 1908, and others devoted to the associations: i.e. Secretary Treasurers: Frances C. Dickerman (Noyes); Lillian Pike Packard; as well as the loss of many of the records (q.v. Appendix 142-G, p. 726), and World War II, many lost contact and interest in continuing the work. However, there remained devotees who continued the work as noted in the continued publication of Pike records.

The last reunion, the thirteenth, held on the east coast, was on 28 June 1941 at the University Club, Boston, Massachusetts. Dr. Maurice M. Pike (8-410-14, p. 205), Hartford, Connecticut was elected President. (This writer had the pleasure of corresponding with Dr. Pike on several occasions and in 1995, learned from his grandson, Lawrence M. Wasserman (8-410-18, p. 206) that Dr. Pike was still living at the age of 95.)

After several years, in 1956 and 1959, an attempt was made to reactivate the association, with a reunion in Colorado Springs: Mrs. Kenneth R. Pike, Sec-treasurer and Zebulon Montgomery Pike, Jr., President.

Again in 1962, Rev. Rufus Vernon Pike (q.v. 770, p. 344) as President, called a reunion (July 1962) to be held in Des Moines, Iowa. At that meeting, Leon W. Pike (q.v. 771, p. 336) was elected President. The last notice was for a reunion to be held 3 September 1978, McGregor, Iowa.

Even today (1995) there are Pike reunions held in several states. One of the most active of which this writer has knowledge is the Pikes Peak Genealogical Society, Inc., P.O. Box 1262, Colorado Springs, CO 80901. PPGS publish a newsletter four times a year with much information.

The records of the Pike Family Association are still maintained by Janet and Kenneth Pike (q.v. 907, p. 431).

To continue this work and reactive the national association with officers, office space and clerks, would be a great undertaking but worthy of consideration before present collections are lost forever. Such a goal was stated by Frances D. Noyes, Secretary: "I hope the reorganized Association may move forward to real accomplishments that shall give you all a feeling of pride and satisfaction not only in your Pike name but in the Pike Family Association" (Pike Assoc. 1916-1938, p. 10).

Coat of Arms

Brief History:

"Coat of arms" has been used as tribal or national emblems and standards since ancient times. The practice of carrying armorial devices on shields and banners began during feudal times, when it was necessary for a knight to be recognized at a distance. When a knight was fully encased in his "coat of armor" with only a visor to peek through, one could not recognize friend from foe. Thus, a specific insignia was designed for that knight. In a sense it was his "calling card". This insignia appeared on his banner or "flag" and personal property. In the 13th Century the practice was introduced of embroidering the family insignia on the surcoat worn over the coat of mail, giving rise to the expression "coat of arms".

In the beginning, insignia was assumed by knights or families as they pleased. As "coat of arms" became more numerous, as one would surmise, duplicates resulted and many used without entitlement (referred to as "Bogus Insignia"). This brought about in 1483 the establishment of the "College of

He Pearth [illegible] & Chevron [illegible] between three Crescent [illegible] Crest three pikes Proper one erect - the two saltire ways - by the name of PIKE

Heraldry of London" which had complete supervision and control over the issuance of "coat of arms". Thus, heraldry became a science and only those so authorized - after considerable research - were entitled to amorial insignia.

This science brought about explanation of the divisions of the "coat of arms": (1) Escutcheon (shield) (ordinaries and subordinaries); (2) Helmet; (3) Crest; (4) Tinctures (colors) and (5) Motto.

As the feudal lords and estates became confined into one country, the use of individual "coat of arms" were replaced by one country flag: i.e. "Stars and Stripes", the United States of America flag. War became larger scale and the country's flag was taken into battle. We still have flags or "colors" representing small domains: state, army regimental and company flags, etc.

John Pike's "Coat of Arms":

At the third reunion of the Pike Family Association of America held at the United States Hotel, Boston, Massachusetts, September 30 and October 1 and 2, 1902, the "coat of arms" brought over from England by John Pike when he came to America in 1635 was presented and adopted by the members (Minutes of Association, 1902, p. 10).

Heraldic reading of John Pike's "coat of arms": "He beareth (shield) ARGENT (silver) - Chevron (ordinary) GULES (red) - between three crescent (subordinaries) VERT (green) - Crest three pikes proper one erect the two saltire ways by the name of PIKE." Arms are finely mantled and beneath supported by crossed palm branches and scroll bearing the motto: "L AMOUR - LA VERTU - LA PAIX" (French: LOVE-VIRTUE-PEACE).

At the fourth reunion held at the American House, 24 Hanover St., Boston, Massachusetts, on the 27th and 28th of September, 1904, the secretary-treasurer, Dr. Clifford L. Pike reported: "A copy of the "coat of arms" (16 by 20 inches) brought from England in 1635 by John Pike may be had by members upon the payment of the cost of emblazoning (colored: $5.00)." Later it was agreed that a cheaper "coat of arms" should be made available. Thus a lithographed was approved ($1.00).

As mentioned, the "College of Heraldry of London" was established to prevent untitled person(s) from claiming or displaying a "Coat of Arms". However, this did not stop such practices and what came to be "bogus" "coats of arms" were perpetrated. Without searching the "College of Arms" in England (a costly undertaking), we may questioningly assume that the John Pike "coat of arms" discussed herewith, came from Sir Richard Pike. Cecil Humphrey-Smith, a director, Achievements Ltd., Northgate, Canterbury, England, writing on 8th July 1974 to Manville C. Pike (11-986, p. 564) quoted the above arms as being from surname Pike located in West England (Devonshire). Sir Richard Pike resided in that area.

Arriving in America the pioneers desired to divest themselves from all English customs, especially in a democratic society where "all are equal" and family "coat of arms" was not continued. However, the honor of displaying the family "coat" not only conjured noble deeds of the past but brings together a relationship of a family.

Acknowledgements

In acknowledging the many contributors to this book, I am reminded of the phrase from Charles H. Gabriel's song, Evening Prayer: "Lest I offend some other thru the strain." Thus, it is best to beware of giving thanks lest one is missed. Throughout the text, credit has been given in the source. I apologize to my many relatives for any errors or omission in transcribing their information. This should be a good reason for continuing their research.

In collecting material, especially of present times and events, the most encouraging and patient has been my father and mother, Eugene and Edna (Russell) Pike (q.v. 10-926, p. 483), especially my mother, who never failed to search her personal diaries or memory to respond in writing or verbally to my many questions. How wonderful to be able to communicate with one who at ninety-two years of age still has that keen memory which is an historians delight. (As a matter of fact, I feel her memory improved with the years. The truth really is that in the early years she was so busy "bringing up" ten children that "she didn't have time to think!")

My grandmother, Elnora D. (Tuttle) Russell (Mrs. Maurice) (page 483), one of the early pioneers of Aroostook County, Maine was not only a devoted farmer's wife, a great community leader, but who found time and concern to record her heritage and inspired me to wonderment.

Aunt Blanche (Pike) Morgan (Mrs. Clyde) (q.v. 10-927, p. 496) whose wonderful understanding of human nature and concern, for not only her relatives but any who passed her door, my inspiration for continuing one of her concerns. Much of her family history continued by her daughter, Dorothy (Morgan) Barnes (Mrs. Raymond) (10-927-3, page 501).

Then there were other relatives: Rev. Charles Upton, husband of Aunt Addie (Pike) Upton (10-921, page 470), whose brief account of the early Pike Family encouraged me to search further. My Canadian cousins, especially Freida M. (Pike) Allain (11-996-1, page 567) who helped in connecting the American and Canadian relatives together.

And, the many persons whose name is no longer Pike, for their interest in this family.

Of the many organizations that supplied much of the early historical data (q.v. Credits: page 762), two are noted as outstanding sources: "The Pike Family Association of America", and "The New England Historic Genealogical Society" (NEHGS). How easy it is to write a history when the factual information is already recorded in some source, a book, church or town records, or other available documents.

We all are greatly indebted to our early ancestors who being concerned about their heritage founded the "Pike Family Association of America" in 1900 and those who continued the work thereafter. I am especially mindful of the continued work by Janet and Kenneth Pike (10-907, page 431), especially Janet, who at the age of 78 (1995) still maintained the Pike files and continually answered inquiries and sent out materials. Without these historical records my task would have been much more difficult. I'm also mindful of my visits and communications with Mrs. Earl Richardson, another person involved with the Pike Association.

The many services of "The England Historic and Genealogical Society", with their massive collections, the book loan department and diligent volunteers, has been overwhelming, especially for one residing far from the library.

The addresses supplied by present contributors covers a period from 1985, when I started collecting information, through 1995. It is understandable that many of these addresses are, even now, and will be in the future obsolete. However, addresses are included for two reasons: first, to indicate the many places in which Pike descendants have resided through the years, secondly, these locations will be helpful to a future researcher through official records in these years.

To no one is my obligation greater than to my "computer-lady", Marianne (Pascento) Hart. Neither she nor I realized the task that lay ahead of us when I made my first visit with her in November 1991. Her knowledge and experience with the computer, a frightening gadget to me, shows throughout the book. She became my editor, my mentor; and never once, well maybe a couple of times, during these four years lost patience through three drafts of the book. (But always Allen, with your best interests at heart. mph)

Our pride of ancestry is not of that kind which reaches after title. It has sprung from a love of honest and persistent toil, as set forth in the dedication. This then, should be the concern of all who made this book possible.

During the past forty-five years, especially the last twenty since retirement that I have been seriously compiling data, I've come to realize what a great family John Pike has sired. The great affection and concern they held for each other was evident whenever they met - whether reunions in New England, New York, Colorado or California. I hope this book will capture some of this understanding. Had this affection been measured in material wealth - the descendants would all be millionaires. Instead, they left us a legacy untaxable and unintrusive, the like of which has past forever in the eons of a forgotten etiquette of a past era. Let this not be so! This then is the beginning for each of you and our descendants to continue.

Numbering System

The original plan for numbering was to follow the NGSQ System (National Genealogical Society Quarterly) which "assigns an I.D. (identification number) to each family member, whether or not that member is known to have left progeny." (Joan Ferris Curran, Numbering Your Genealogy, Sound and Simple Systems. Supplied by NEHGS.) This number would serve as a reference for any future research or communication.

John[1] Pike, the immigrant is number 1. An asterisk (*) in front of the I.D. number indicates the name is continued in the next generation.

Alas! As more heard about this project, as usually happens, (through notice in "NEXUS" Vol. IX, No. 2, April-May 1992, p. 70) and national computer systems "Internet" and "Prodigy" (which listed my name as representative of the Pike Association, a title I do not claim) more information arrived. Without revising the whole I.D. concept, a sub-numbering system was instituted for the fourth and final copy.

New material received on a family was given a sub-number and the entire material included under the parent generation. As in the case of 149. MOSES[5] PIKE (5-149, pp. 79-83), I.D. begins with 149 Moses[5] Pike and continues through 149-25 - all included in the FIFTH GENERATION section. An asterisk (*) in front of a sub-number indicates the name is continued below. Some would agree this is more acceptable since the entire family is found in one section without searching in subsequent generations.

Several relatives discovering their relationship from early Pikes sent their direct lineages. This material has been included in the APPENDIX (page 673). Reference is noted in the main text.

References: i.e. 11-1008, p. 590, Allen Raymond Pike, indicates: Eleventh Generation, I.D. number 1008, page 590.

It is hoped that should this book be updated with other relatives and reprinted at some future date, that the numbering system conform to the original plan.

HOW TO FIND YOUR LINEAGE: The correct way for one to search their family ancestry is to locate their name and reference in the index (page 764). With their I.D. number located - find the same I.D. in the previous generation. Continue backwards through generations until you have your complete lineage from John[1] Pike.

First Generation

1. JOHN[1] PIKE of Newbury: b. ca. 1573, probably in Whiteparish, Co. Wilts, England; came to America on the "James of London," William Cooper, Master, which sailed from Southampton, 5 April 1635 and arrived Ipswich, Massachusetts, 3 June 1635 (Savage, p. 435; Banks, p. 135ff). JOHN[1] PIKE
1573-1654

John Pike, at the age of 62 (app.), one of the first settlers of Newbury, Massachusetts, arrived in America with his five children: John, age 22; Robert, age 19; Dorothy, age 18; Ann, age 14; and Israel, age 12 (ages are app.) having been two months since leaving Southampton, England.

They came on the ship, "James of London, three hundred tons, William Cooper, Master. She sailed from Southampton 5 April and arrived 3 June 1635 with 86 passengers and cattle. (Banks, p. 135ff) (Winthrop in his Journal 1, 156 calls her master "Mr. Graves" and says that he "had come every year for these seven years.") (Ed. note: The ship upon which they sailed would have been much like the "Mayflower", with which most are familiar from the replica moored (1993) at Plymouth, Massachusetts where the Pilgrims landed in 1620—fifteen years before John Pike and family.)

There is still the unanswered question as to whether Dorothy Day, the wife and mother accompanied them. She would have been about 57 years of age. Charles E. Banks (The Planters of the Commonwealth, p. 138) lists "John of Langford, Co. Wilts, Mrs...Pike" and the five children by name. James Savage (Genealogical Dictionary of the First Settlers of New England, p. 435) does not list her as arriving with the family. Information from Pike Family Association Records maintains that the wife and mother did not come with the family to America (Pike Assoc. 1939, p. 27). (Banks in the Preface of his book gives a comprehensive explanation of the research into these early records in England. He states: "The compiler of the lists which follows in this volume, during a residence of nearly five years in England has examined personally the originals of all the lists heretofore printed by Drake, Savage, and Hotten, and subjected them to analytical study with a view of presenting them in an intelligible form.")

However, there is a legend passed down, especially by relatives in Salisbury, that John Pike is buried in the old Burial Ground (established in 1639) located on Beach Road, Salisbury, Massachusetts. (A map of Salisbury, Massachusetts 1638-9 showing the first settlement is printed in Pike Association Records, 1902, p. 34.) The story as told this writer is that early settlers, including John, as well as other Pike members including Major Robert, were buried in unmarked graves due to the fact that the Indians would dig up the graves. (Norman Neil Pike)

John Pike was probably born in Whiteparish, Co. Wiltshire, which is located about 90 miles southwest of London, a short distance from the great city of Salisbury, with its 13th Century Cathedral. It is recorded: "The earlier name must have referred to the color of the original church" (Grover, Mawer, & Stenton, p. 388). (This writer visited the Cathedral in 1959 and regrets that it was prior to beginning research on Pike history.)

John Pike's parentage is unknown. "The Pike wills in the P.C.C. and in the Sarum (Old name for Salisbury) courts fail to show his parentage; perhaps he was from the adjoining county of Hants, for which there are wills at Winchester" (NEHGR, Vol. 66, 1912, p. 257-261). (Ed. Note: This edition of NEHGR also refers to several wills by Pikes in England.) Also, there are references in the literature that historical records in Langford were destroyed by fire.

He married 14 January 1612, Whiteparish, Co. Wiltshire, England, Dorothy Day of Landford (recorded as Dorothie Daye in the register. Whiteparish WRO, M/F 830/1). (NEHGR, Vol. 66, July 1912, p. 260.)

Dorothy being from Landford has confused researchers, due to the fact that John Pike has been listed as from "Langford", Somerset, Co.; and she from "Landford", Wiltshire Co. Then again it should not be so difficult to understand: "Landford", Wiltshire Co., where supposedly Dorothy Day was from is located 9 miles SE of Salisbury, Wiltshire Co. and only a short distance from Whiteparish, Wiltshire Co. where John Pike was supposedly born. While "Langford", Somerset Co., John's last residence is located 8 miles NW of Salisbury. The distance from the two places, of about 17 miles would not seem so great a distance and that it may be assumed, even 300 years later, not too far for a chance meeting. Miss Anne Borden Harding, Associate Editor, New England Historical and Genealogical Register who did considerable research on the John Pike Family, wrote to Manville Pike 15 June 1973, quoting from Charles Edward Banks: "John Pike in his disposition was said to come from Langford (a scribe's error for Landford), a town that does not exist." However, as indicated above by this writer the town of Langford does exist. The argument, one way or the other, appears a mute point to this writer and is mentioned here to satisfy any reader or researcher of what is found in the literature.

Furthermore, two of their daughters, Dorothy and Ann are recorded as having been born in Bridgewater, Somerset Co., about twenty miles SW of Langford. The last child, Israel is recorded as being baptized in Langford, as were the two older sons: John and Robert.

So, it would seem, shortly after their marriage, John and Dorothy (Day) Pike journeyed to Langford, Somerset, from which place John and his family are listed on the ships manifest.

We are greatly indebted to Ann Borden Harding, for her compilation of "The John Pike Family" which was printed in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, Boston, Massachusetts in July 1967 and another report found in Records of the Pike Family Association, 1900-1901, p. 7ff, from which the following is compiled.

John Pike is said to have been registered in the "Customs House" in Southampton as a "laborer of Langford" (Savage, p. 435). To quote Savage this was certainly done "to evade the despicable tyranny of the regulations" governing emigration or a deception to conceal a more noted person from such regulations. Joshua Coffin writes "No laborer of those days had two such educated sons as Robert and John Pike, Jr.; both were men of marked prominence in the Colony. We might say that no laborer of those days was himself such an educated man. The probabilities are that he certainly was a man of liberal education and much natural ability not only from his having two sons, who ranked so high in later years in the history of the colony and that of New Jersey, but from some evidence of his personal ability."

There had been a movement in England which sent many Puritans to America; a large number of them were educated men. These men of learning had much to do with forming the ideals of the pioneers, with establishing the free school, free speech and freedom to worship according to one's conscience. The town meeting became the forum for fostering these freedoms.

James Shepherd Pike, (7-383) grandson (7th Generation), of John Pike writing in The New Puritan stated: "The listing of his being from Langford may have been erroneous, for at that period it was sometimes found expedient for persons of pronounced opinions, hostile to the governing powers, to leave the authorities in the dark as to the places of residence of the zealous Dissenters who were hastening out of the country. The description of John Pike as a laborer from Langford may be therefore mythical. It is clear that a part of it, at least, is inaccurate." (The New Puritan, reprint, p. 25)

John Pike and his five children landed in this country, presumably, Ipswich, Massachusetts in 1635 and took up residence on the bank of the Parker River in Newbury, they found awaiting them the task of subduing the wilderness. As proved later, he and his sons soon became a valuable addition to the little settlement and found ample scope for all their energies.

The court records show that he acted as attorney in two cases and successfully on each occasion. Several times in the records of the Quarterly Courts we find him appearing as counsel for his friends. This fact probably accounts for the family tradition that he was a lawyer. He served in 1645 on the Grand Jury and on the Jury of Trials in 1653, and on 28 March 1654 he appeared for the Town of Newbury against John Merrill.

In February 1638 he was fined two shillings and sixpence for "departing from the (town) meeting without leave and contemptuously." He endears himself to us by very humanness. When in an argument with Thomas Bloomfield he laid hold of his coat, the latter slipped out of it and ran away. Whereupon, John Pike, enraged by such cowardice, calmly cut the coat to ribbons.

He seems to have made his home in his last years with his son, Robert in Salisbury where he died on 26 May 1654, leaving property to the amount of 230 pounds, comprising nearly 15 pounds in clothing.

Ed. Note: It is estimated that an early pound would have been in later years worth $3.32 American currency. In 1988 an English pound was worth $2.80 American currency. Therefore, John's worth may be calculated as approximately $750, of which about $50 was in clothing; not to mention his land holdings.

His home and land in Newbury and land at the new town, Salisbury, comprised his possessions. His will (see below) made 24 May 1654, two days before his death and proved in Hampton Court 3 August 1654, gave his estate to his sons: John, who was then residing in Woodbridge, New Jersey, and Robert; and 20 pounds ($66) to each of his three daughters: Dorothy (Hendricks), Ann (Fiske) and Israel (True-Fletcher).

JOHN PIKE

Compiled from: NEHGR; 121 (1967): 167 (No. 2) and Pike Family Association 1906, p. 38.

Captain JOHN[2] PIKE, was born at Whiteparish, England, baptized 8 November 1613. He arrived in America in 1635 with his father, one brother and three sisters. He settled in Newbury, Massachusetts, where he married ca. 1637, Mary[4] Turvell. She was the daughter of Thomas and Dorothy (Rogers) Turvell of Romsey, England. Ed. Note: The surname "Turvell" has several spellings. "Turvell" is the most common usage. (NEHGR: "Turvell", Pike Assoc. 1905, p. 39, "Tarville". Boston Transcript: "Travil". Also: Tarville. Early England: "Turfelde".)

MARY[4] TURVELL was a descendant of THOMAS[1] TURFELDE, a clothier from Romsey (Hampshire Co.), England. He was buried 2 November 1580. He was married at least twice and had two daughters and two sons; one son was RICHARD[2] TURVELL (note change in spelling of name).

RICHARD[2] TURVELL of Romsey, a tanner was buried 20 April 1618 and was mentioned in his father's will. He married Jane or Jone (---), and they had a son, THOMAS[3] TURVELL.

THOMAS[3] TURVELL, of Romsey, a tanner was baptized 8 December 1587 and buried 26 October 1621. He married (1st) DOROTHY ROGERS and they had a daughter, MARY[4] TURVELL, who married JOHN[2] PIKE, listed above. Thomas[3] Turvell married (2nd) MARIE CLAVER by whom he had a son THOMAS[4] TURVELL (christened: 21 February 1620/1), a tanner of Newbury. (Information on Turvell Family supplied by: Frank and Eleanor Knaus, see sources.)

Ed. Note: It is interesting to note that these early ancestors: Thomas[3] Turvell (1587-1621) and John[1] Pike (ca. 1573-1654) both came from the same area of England. John supposedly born in Whiteparish, Wilshire Co., and Thomas Turvell born in Romsey, Hampshire Co., a distance of a few miles. Both towns are located on the border between the two counties. Is it possible they knew each other in England?

John[2] Pike, well educated, soon became one of the leading men of the place, was educated a lawyer, was elected selectman in 1647-1651 and 1660. He was appointed Lieutenant of the Newbury Company in 1651 and served as Deputy to the General Court in 1657 and 1658, a position which he most ably filled. Certainly, a man of considerable prominence in Newbury. In one court incident he acted as attorney in seeking a grant of land for his brother-in-law, Thomas Tarville. (Coffin: History of Old Newbury.)

John[2] was educated a Congregationalist, but later in life became a Presbyterian. Quoting from the history: "When in Newbury there was a contention in the church regarding church discipline because the pastor and teacher had changed their minds after the first few years, from the Congregational to the Presbyterian form." It seems the matter was carried into court for adjustment, and John, being summoned as a witness, testified: "That he was present at the gathering of the church of Newbury, and that he heard the pastor, Mr. Parker, preach from the eighteenth chapter of Matthew and 17th verse, wherein the preacher held forth that the power of discipline belonged to the whole church and he (John Pike) strongly favored this doctrine, he taking notes of what was said."

The verse in question: St. Matthew, 18-17: "And if he shall neglect to hear them, tell it unto the church, but if he neglect to hear the church, let him be unto thee as an heathen man and a publican." (Auth.: King James Version)

Early in 1665 he removed to Woodbridge, New Jersey accompanied by his sons, John (3-11), Thomas (3-13), and his sons-in-law, Obadiah Ayers, husband of Hannah Pike (3-9), and Richard Worth, husband of Mary Pike (3-10).

On 21 May 1666, articles of agreement were signed between Sir George Carteret (1610?-1680) (History of New Jersey, p.21), John Pike, Abraham Tappan and Joshua Pierce in behalf of themselves and associates of Woodbridge and Piscataway, whereby a colony was established over which he was chosen Judge and Governor, a position he held for many years. He was chosen by his fellowmen to serve in various positions: Captain of the Military Company, President of the Township Court from 1669 to 1671 and from 1675 to 1685, Deputy of the General Assembly in 1674, Assistant Justice in 1672, and finally chosen, over his own objection, Judge of the Corporation Court for life.

His first wife, Mary Turvell, having died ca. 1680, John married (2nd) 30 June 1685 in Piscataway, New Jersey, Elizabeth (Blossom or Blesse) FitzRandolph, widow of Edward FitzRandolph, the pilgrim immigrant. (Wolk, p. 34.)

He died between 9 and 20 January 1689/9 and was buried in the Presbyterian Church Cemetery, Woodbridge, New Jersey. His will was made 20 January 1688/89 and proved in Middlesex County Court, New Jersey, 20 January 1689/90. It mentions his "late wife, Mary", his children: John, Thomas, Ruth, wife of Abraham Tappan; Joseph and Hanna. There are legacies to his sons-in-law, Richard Worth and Obadiah ayers and John Worth.

3. ROBERT[2] PIKE, Major, (John[1]), son of John and Dorothy (Day) Pike. He was born 17 March 1616, probably Langford, Co. Wilts, England and died 17 December 1708, Salisbury, Massachusetts.

He married (1st) 3 April 1641, SARAH SANDERS. She was born ca. 1622, Langford, England and died 1 November 1679, Salisbury, Massachusetts; the daughter of JOHN and ALICE (COLES) SANDERS. John Sanders was the son of HENRY SANDERS and grandson of SIR EDWIN SAUNDERS (note change in spelling) who died at the time of Henry VIII (1457-1509), King of England. (Information on Saunders Family supplied by Earl Pike from records of Mrs. J. Malcolm Loring.) (Hoyt, Old Families of Salisbury and Amesbury, pp. 309 and 589, in footnotes.)

Major Robert married (2nd) 30 October 1684, Salisbury, Massachusetts, MARTHA (MOYCE) GOLDWIRE. She died 26 February 1712/13. She was the daughter of JOSEPH MOYCE of Salisbury and the widow of GEORGE GOLDWIRE. No children by 2nd marriage.

MAJOR ROBERT PIKE
1616-1706

Robert Pike, referred to as Major Robert Pike, was born in Whiteparish, Wilts, England ca. 1616. He came to America aboard the ship "James of London" which sailed from Southampton, 5 April 1635; arriving in Ipswich, Massachusetts 2 June 1635.

He was the second child of John G. and Dorothy (Day) Pike and of the second generation of Pikes in America.

He spent part of his early childhood in Whiteparish and arrived in America with his father, his brother John and three sisters: Dorothy, Ann and Israel. He would have been about 19 years of age. His family went first to Ipswich, but soon afterward moved to the newly settled town of Newbury, Massachusetts, where he lived until 1639 when he joined the colony which founded Salisbury, Massachusetts. Ed. Note: It is interesting to note how many of these early American towns were named after places in their departed England, i.e. Salisbury, Southampton, Amesbury, etc.

It has been said that he was a man of much strength and of a robust constitution. Tradition states that on the voyage to this country he asked the captain for an increase of rations. When questioned as to his need for more food to keep up his strength; he took a large iron bar and bent it into a U form. This so surprised the captain that his request was granted. (Pike records 1900-1901, page 10.)

At the age of 21, 17 May 1637 he took the oath as freeman, just before the exciting election at which John Winthrop (1588-1649, q.v.) defeated Sir Henry Vane (1613-1662, q.v.) for governor, and is said to have been of the Winthrop faction.

Ed. Note: To understand the political situation when the Pike's arrived in America, it is well to read the brief biography of John Winthrop (1588-1649) found in encyclopedias. Of note, he presided over the court which found Anne Hutchinson guilty and banished her from the colony. Sir Henry Vane (1613-62) was chosen governor of Massachusetts, but his advocacy of toleration robbed him of his popularity, and he returned to England. John Winthrop had served as his deputy governor.

On 3 April 1641, Robert married Sarah Sanders. Sarah was born in Langford, England ca. 1622, the daughter of Henry Sanders who was the son of Sir Edwin Sanders who died at the time of Henry VIII (1491-1547) of England. Her mother was Alice Coles.

Robert and Sarah (Sanders) Pike had eight children: (1) Sarah, who married WYMOND BRADBURY (Wymond Bradbury was the son of MARY BRADBURY who was accused of witchcraft; convicted but not executed. Robert Pike, Sarah Bradbury's father defended Mary Bradbury.) (see: Appendix 15); (2) Mary died young; (3) Dorothy who married (1st) JOSHUA PIERCE and (2nd) JOHN LIGHT. It is assumed that Dorothy had gone to Woodbridge where her Uncle John had founded the town. (4) Mary Pike married (1st) JEDIDIAH ANDREWS and (2nd) CAPT. JOHN ALLEN; (5) Elizabeth who married WILLIAM CARR; (6) John who began as a renowned minister in Dover, New Hampshire married SARAH MOODY; (7) Robert, Jr. who married MARY FOLLINSBEE and became the ancestors of ALLEN PIKE; and (8) Moses who married SUSANNA WORCESTER and was the ancestors of the Pike's that settled along the coast of Maine and ancestor of RONALD PIKE and NORMAN NEAL PIKE, et al.

Sarah, Robert's (1st) wife, died 1 November 1679 and on 30 October 1684 he married (2nd) Martha (Moyce) Goldwire, widow of George Goldwire. No children are recorded by the second marriage.

When the Town of Salisbury was settled in 1638, we find Robert, then a young man of 22, one of the 60 odd pioneers who crossed the Merrimac to dispute with the red man and the wolf the possession of the soil. In the choice of a house lot, fortune seems to have favored him with two acres in the corner of the way to Hampton and the way to the Great Neck (later called the "Beach Road"). The land later became the possession of D.R.M. Deal. Here he built his home and where was born to him a family of three sons and five daughters, mentioned above, who reached mature years.

Together with others of the "commoners" he received allotments of land in all of the divisions, the chief of which was his pasture (later referred to as the "Pike Homestead" on the Old Ferry Road), 100 acres at Batt's Hill and a large division at Amesbury. This land he mostly disposed of by deed or gift to his children during his life leaving only a moderate estate at his death. His home and lot of three acres he gave to his grandson Robert (4-56), son of Robert (3-21), the year prior to his death. Robert, the grandson in later years sold the property to his father-in-law, William Hook, Jr. and Robert, the grandson, moved to Exeter. (See: Salisbury map 1639-1705, Pike Assoc. 1902, p. 34.)

To his younger son Moses (3-22), he deeded his pasture where he later settled and which remained in the family for many years.

Ed. Note: In 1959 this house on "Old Beach Road" was still standing. This writer visited with Frances Pettengill, who served as a tour guide around the area where the early Pikes made history. An elderly couple on welfare lived in the house at that time. I still have photos of the house taken at that time.

Much has been written about this early pioneer of the Pike Family, especially by JAMES S. PIKE (7-383), The New Puritan, New England 200 Years Ago, An Account of the Life of Robert Pike: The Puritan who defended the Quakers, Resisted Clerical Domination, and Opposed the Witchcraft Prosecution. (First Published: 1897, New York, Harper & Bros. Reprinted 1989: Parker River Researchers, P.O. Box 86, Newburyport, Massachusetts 01950.)

He early took a prominent position in the militia being a Lieutenant at 32, Captain at 37 and Major when 41 years of age. During King Philip's War (q.v.) he was in command of all the forces of Norfolk Co., Massachusetts, and those located in the State of Maine (although Maine did not become a state until 1820 q.v.). As early as 1650 he was what would now be called a trial justice and in 1672 an associate judge of the courts of Norfolk Co. In local affairs, a selectman from 1661-1677 and on many responsible committees. In political life a member of the General Court when 32 and of the Governor's Council from 1682 to 1696, when having reached the age of 80 years he retired to the private life of the farm. (Records of the Pike Family, 1900-1901, p. 9ff)

As may already be realized, Major Robert Pike was a very active man. He deserves a high place among the defenders of civil and religious liberty in Colonial Massachusetts as documented in The New Puritan. Elected to the General Court in 1648, he criticized it in 1653 because it made preaching by one not a regularly ordained minister a misdemeanor. The law was designed to prevent certain Baptists from exhorting in the absence of a minister. For his action, which was also to the advantage of the Quakers, he was arraigned before the General Court, tried, convicted, fined, and disfranchised. As a result of his protest, however, the General Court at its next session repealed the law. Nevertheless, Robert's disfranchisement remained. Fifteen of the numerous petitioners in this behalf were bound over for trial in the county courts. Whether they were actually tried or punished does not appear. Robert's civil disabilities were removed in 1657. He was immediately elected by the people of Salisbury to represent them again in the General Court.

In 1675 he was engaged in a controversy with his pastor, Rev. John Wheelwright, who sent him a document containing criticisms of his conduct and a warning that he might be excommunicated. Robert Pike, as magistrate, summoned Wheelwright to appear before him to account for the document. Wheelwright then excommunicated Robert. Appeals to the General Court resulted in the admonition of both parties, the lifting of the excommunication, and the receiving back of Robert into the fellowship of the church. (1638 Town of Salisbury Tercentenary - 1938; noted Men of Salisbury, p. 47ff) Major Robert Pike is listed first "The names of those yt (that) were of ye (the) ch. Salisbury when James Allen, third minister was ordained. (Records of the First Church at Salisbury, Massachusetts 1687-1754. Communicated by William P. Upham. 1879.)

An amusing incident in Robert Pike's life occurs about this period. Mrs. Frances L. Pettengill in a report delivered before the Old Newbury Historical Society in August, 1952 tells the following story which is also recalled in The New Puritan:

> Robert was prosecuted for profaning the Lord's Day. On a certain Sabbath in March, after attending the two services and finishing the day with evening prayers, Major Pike and his friend Samuel Dalton set out for Boston. The roads were bad and unless they could get across the ferry that night, they would be late for their engagement in Boston.

The sun set behind a cloud but as they passed the home of Ephraim Winsley who held an old grudge against Major Pike, a lighting showed on the horizon. This was Winsley's chance and Major Pike was arrested for travelling on the Lord's Day which did not end until sunset.

In 1692, at the height of the Witchcraft delusion, Robert raised his voice against the character of the legal evidence upon which the convictions were based. The argument is contained in a letter addressed to Magistrate Jonathan Corwin and signed by the initials, "R.P.". The argument was directed not to proving that witchcraft was a delusion, but to stressing the invalidity of specter testimony. "Is the Devil a competent witness?" Robert asked. Robert's biographer describes this letter as a cool, close, and powerful argumentative appeal to the judges who were trying the witchcraft cases. This and his defense of the witches so far as to question the value of testimony given against them were events in his life which were far-reaching and the right of petition as well as the right of honest and impartial trial have been legacies left by him for which the whole country yea the world itself can do homage to his memory.

In spite of his controversies with the powers of authority, Robert was not fundamentally opposed to the existing regime and was evidently valued as a man of force and character. As indicated above he was a true servant of the people. He served as major in the Indian Wars. During a period of fifty years, except for short intervals, he held public office continuously. In 1688-89, after the revolution in England and the deposition of Sir Edmund Andros (1637-1714 q.v.) in Massachusetts, Robert was elected near the head of the poll at a popular election of magistrates. Later when a list of appointees to fill the same office was decided on by the Crown, Pike's name was on the list though the names of several of his conspicuous colleagues were omitted. From 1689-1696 he was a member of the Governor's Council. He was one of a group who brought the Island of Nantucket from Thomas Mayhew in 1659 and had pecuniary interests there at the time of his death. He appears to have lived and died in comparative affluence. He headed the list of commoners of Salisbury after the minister, paid the largest tax in 1652, and he and his wife were first in the list of members of the Salisbury Church in 1687. He educated his son, John (3-20), later minister at Dover, New Hampshire, at Harvard, and defrayed the expenses of a medical education for his grandson, Robert (4-56).

His trips to Boston when 80 years of age on horseback, a two day's ride, shows what a rugged physique must have been given him. After 1696 he retired to private life and was engaged in giving away to his heirs the property which he had accumulated during his lifetime. The last ten years was passed in the quiet of his town, Salisbury, where he died December 12, 1706 at the age of ninety-one.

Robert's second wife, Martha (Moyce-Goldwire) Pike, outlived him by six years. She died 26 February, 1712/13.

Major Robert's estate transactions and disposition of his property while living is reported in The New Puritan, Appendix III and IV, p. 195ff.

Major Robert fought against all forms of what he termed injustices toward humanity. His concern for people is well illustrated in John Greenleaf Whittier's (1807-1892 q.v.) poem "How the Women Went From Dover," which tells how he refused to persecute those accused of being witches. Whittier after reading the warrant issued against the Quakers by Major Waldron in 1662 wrote the poem in which he calls Robert Pike: "Of all the rulers the land possessed, Wisest and boldest was he, the best."

Ed. Note: A copy of this poem may be found in the Records of the Pike Family 1900-1901, page 28ff. Also in the same book, A Tribute to Robert Pike, by Mrs. Helen Walton Pike, which was delivered at the first reunion of the Pike family at Ipswich, Massachusetts, 12 September 1900.

It is ironical to observe, after almost three hundred and seventy-five years, that many of these events and activities perpetrated in the name of the church still exist today. The Pilgrims and Puritans came to America seeking religious freedom. As assuring as this sounds in our many history books, it didn't apply to other persons seeking the same freedom. When the Quakers arrived seeking their religious way of life they were ridiculed, punished even murdered by the protestants, especially in the Massachusetts area. It did not take long for these religious cults to realize that in order to impose their puritanical philosophy upon the populace they needed strength. That strength came through the confiscating and holdings of property, especially from the local Indians. Thus, when newcomers arrived, viz, the Quakers, it was not so much the Quaker beliefs as it was the possibility of their taking over the land. Thereby becoming strong.

No stone marks Robert's grave on the Old Beach Road. However, in the center of the City of Salisbury, Massachusetts, has been erected a memorial plaque to Major Robert Pike. The plaque reads:

IN MEMORY OF
MAJOR ROBERT PIKE
(1616-1706)

One of the first settlers of Salisbury, a leader in civil and military affairs. He stood far in advance of his time and having the wisdom and courage to proclaim witchcraft a delusion and to advocate religious freedom.

Major Robert's son, Rev. John Pike (3-20), in his journal stated that his father was very temperate in eating and drinking.

This man of strong robust constitution, humanistic understanding and pioneer born over 380 years ago (1610-1994) became the sire of the generations of Pikes in Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Maine, and eventually across the country. It gives us pause to reflect upon such a man and his sons who became threaded into the history of our country, The United States of America.

Many years after Major Robert Pike's death the public library in Salisbury was named in his honor. When the new library was completed (1957) his name was removed. However, today (1994) a large room is dedicated as the "Major Robert Pike Memorial Room"; much to the concerns and thanks of the Pike Family Association which had been collecting money for this purpose for several years.

Major Robert Pike Memorial Fund
Salisbury Library

This project was consummated by the former officers of the Pike Family Association, Dr. Maurice Pike of Hartford, CT, President; and M. Elizabeth Kilburn of West Newton, MA, Sec-Treasurer. (Following are the minutes of a 1956 meeting.)

On November 15, 1956, Miss Kilburn sent out Robert Pike Memorial Fund check:

"To the Town of Salisbury (Salisbury Public library) the sum of twenty-one hundred and twenty-five dollars and four cents ($2,125.04) to be expended by the trustees toward a Robert Pike Memorial Room."

Ward F. Messenger, Secretary to the Salisbury Public Library Board of Trustees wrote on March 14, 1959:

"The library building was built in 1956 and 1957 and was in use most of 1957. The Trustees and Building committee had an open house reception May 5, 1958 which was well attended. An oil painting of Captain Robert (artist, Sam Sargent) was hung in the entry of the building and we expect it to stay there as long as the Library stands. The people of the town were all made aware of the Pike Family's contribution to the new library."

Mr. Ward Messenger, issued an invitation to any member of the Family to call at the Library when in Salisbury and thanked the Association for the generous gift.

This writer visited the library in 1976 and took several photos of the room, including the Capt. Robert Pike portrait. An engraving of his portrait may be found in Records of the Pike Family Association, 1902, p. 32. It is believed that the painting is the same which this writer was shown at the NEHG Society several years ago, when the Society was located on Beacon Hill in Boston.

Major Robert's house was located on the site where the Citgo Gas Station was located in 1992 in Salisbury, Massachusetts.

ca. 1596-1657

JOHN[1] AYERS, Obadiah's father, was born ca. 1596, at New Sarum (Old name for Salisbury) or Nottinghamshire, England, (this is the same area from which John Pike and family resided). He died 31 March 1657 at Haverhill, Massachusetts.

He married ca. 1620 (the year the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth, Massachusetts), HANNAH (WEBB) EVERED. She was born in 1598, England and died after 1692, the year when she signed a deed with her sons.

John Ayers is said to have come in the James in April 1635, but has also been mentioned as being the grocer who came on the James and arrived in America in 1635. Banks does not list John Ayers as one of the passengers with John Pike.

John Ayers was in Salisbury, Massachusetts, in 1640, Ipswich in 1646, and Haverhill in 1647. His will was proved 6 October 1657. (An inventory of his estate may be found at the end of Chapter 10, Frank and Eleanor Knaus Genealogy.)

She married 11 September 1667 in Newbury, Massachusetts, RICHARD[1] WORTH, one of the first Worth brothers in america. He was born ca. 1640, St. Andrews, Plymouth, England, and died 1692, Woodbridge, New Jersey. He was the son of JOHN[B] WORTH (bapt. 11 April 1606), who was the son of JOHN[A] and WILMOT (STUTTEVER) WORTH. John[B] was killed ca. 1643, during the Great Rebellion in England, at the siege of Plymouth Fort along with his father John[A] Worth, Richard's grandfather. Their estates were confiscated by Charles I (1600-1649) (q.v.). It was during this rebellion (1642-1646) that John[B] sent his sons: WILLIAM[1], LIONEL[1], and RICHARD[1] to America. It was also during the reign of Charles I that JOHN[1] PIKE, MARY (PIKE) WORTH'S grandfather brought his family to America.

NOTE: MARION (FARR) SEARFOSS descends from Richard and Mary (Pike) Worth. She was born 12 February 1914, Rockport, Maine. She m. 4 July 1936, Kittery Pt., ME, ROBERT DUANE SEARFOSS, b. 29 Dec. 1909, Clermont, PA; d. 17 November 1982, Ft. Sam. USAF Hosp., San Antonio, TX. Her sister, GRACE (FARR) FRITZ went to school with a JOHN PIKE of Kittery. This John Pike was a descendant of JAMES PIKE (1785-1856) of Charlestown. Prior to his death, 5 Sept. 1984, John Pike had accomplished considerable research on his family. However, it was not until he corresponded with this writer, did he realize he was not a descendent of our John Pike of Newbury but rather of James Pike of Charlestown. It is through the correspondence with Marion Searfoss that this writer became acquainted with John Pike of Kittery, Maine.

RUTH G. PIKE has published an excellent book entitled Some Descendants of James Pike of Charlestown and Reading, Massachusetts, and the Times in Which They Lived. She published the book privately but has donated a copy to several libraries. Many of these relatives are residing in the Poughkeepsie, New York area. A copy of the book is in the ALLEN PIKE files along with an appendix which he prepared on other members of this family.

11. JOHN[3] PIKE, called Judge (John[2], John[1]), son of John and Mary (Turvell) Pike. He was born 30 March 1650, Newbury, Massachusetts, and died 13 August 1714, Woodbridge, New Jersey.

He married 2 February 1675, Middletown, New Jersey, SARAH STOUT of Middletown, New Jersey. She died between 18 November and 20 December 1714; the daughter of RICHARD and PENELOPE STOUT.

John Pike was a Lieutenant in the Military Company of Woodbridge; Constable in 1675; Tax Collector in 1681; Deputy to the General Assembly in 1684, 1693, 1694, 1697, 1698, 1699; and Judge from 1689 until his death in 1714.

His will was made 3 December 1711 and proved 18 November 1714. However, a later will, the same in most respects but with different witnesses, was proved 29 December 1714. He bequeathed to his wife, Sara, his children John, Zebulon, Joseph, Hannah, and Penelope, and his son-in-law, Richard Cutler.

His widow made her will, 18 November 1714, the day her husband's will was proved. Her will, also, was proved 29 December 1714. She bequeathed to her children John, Mary Cutler, Penelope, Hannah, Zebulon and Joseph.

20. JOHN[3] PIKE (Rev.), (Major Robert[2], John[1]), son of Major Robert and Sarah (Sanders) Pike. He was born 13 May 1653, Salisbury, Massachusetts, and died 10 March 1710, Dover, New Hampshire. (Inter: Dover, NH.) He was ordained 31 August 1681, Dover, New Hampshire.

He married 5 May 1681, Dover, New Hampshire, SARAH MOODY. She was born ca. 1664 and died 24 January 1702/03, Salisbury, Massachusetts. She was the daughter of REV. JOSHUA MOODY and granddaughter of EDWARD COLLINS of Cambridge, Massachusetts.

Rev. John Pike was graduated from Harvard College in 1675 and came to Dover in November 1678. He followed John Reyner, the younger, as minister of the church in Dover. He was a man of unusual ability and Mr. Jeremy Wise of Berwick writes: "He never preached a sermon but was worthy of the press." According to his Journal the family seems to have been continually on the move. They removed to Portsmouth, New Hampshire, 28 June 1689, to Hampton, New Hampshire, 24 October 1690, to Newbury, Massachusetts, 4 February 1691, returned to Portsmouth 6 October 1692. He was chaplain of the fort at Pemmaquid, Maine, in 1694. In November 1698 he returned to Dover where he remained until 21 October 1702 when he moved to Salisbury. There he stayed until 1 January 1706/07 when he again returned to Dover where he died. It should be noted, however, that although he removed temporarily from Dover he was the settled minister there until his death.

The Journal which he kept from 1673 while in Harvard College until 22 November 1709 is valuable to students of the history of that time and place. There are no extant Dover church records before Dr. Jeremy Belknap's ministry and the Dover town records are very defective, due partly to Indian troubles, partly to Proprietors' difficulties. The Rev. Mr. Pike's record of marriages beginning 21 June 1686 and ending 16 February 1709/10 is of special value. (NEHGR: July 1967, page 166.)

ROBERT PIKE
1655-1690

Robert Pike Jr, (1655-1690) was the seventh child of Major Robert and Sarah (Sanders) Pike. He was born 26 June 1655 in Salisbury, Massachusetts. On 1 December 1686 he married Mary Follansbee (1667-1736) in Newbury, Massachusetts. She was the daughter of Thomas Follansbee of Portsmouth and Newbury. (Ref: Hoyt, p. 570.)

He took an oath of allegiance in 1677 and is listed as a freeman 18 April 1690. It is noted that he signed a certain petition in 1680 and was admitted to Salisbury Church, 20 May 1688.

A petition dated 25 September 1694 by Major Robert Pike, his father, states that this Robert died leaving a wife; a son, Robert; and a daughter, Sarah. (Ref: Essex Pr. Ct., No. 21923 and No. 21924. A copy of the petition appears in The New Puritan, p. 221.) He died 22 August 1690 of a malignant fever. (Ref: Journal of Rev. John Pike.)

Mary (Follansbee) Pike, his wife married a second time, William Hook, Jr. This William Hook plays an important role in the Pike Family because he purchased 28 November 1718 the Pike Homestead in Salisbury, Massachusetts. This transaction is mentioned in the life of Major Robert as well as in the life of our next Robert[4] (1687-).

Robert[3], Jr. had but two children (i) Robert[4], mentioned above and (ii) Sarah[4] Pike, who married Jacob Stevens. Robert would have been three years of age and Sarah, one year of age, when their father died.

In a petition to the County Court in Ipswich, Massachusetts, 25 September 1694, Major Robert Pike, guardian of his grandson, Robert, says:

> This is to inform you that in the year 1690 my son Robert Pike of Salisbury died and left a widow and two children, a boy and a girl; and at the County Court at Ipswich, at the request of the widow, I the subscriber, presented the case and had administration granted, I giving bonds to administer according to law; but no bond was then given or never since, by reason of the change in government. Since which the widow is married to Mr. William Hook, Jr. of Salisbury, carrying with her the substance of what was the property of her former husband without giving any account. There are also some debts due to him and from him which want order to look after. I do therefore humbly pray your inspection of the case, so as to order concerning the same and concerning the children. I have often moved the mother and her present husband to look after it but I do not know that they have or will do anything about it.

22. MOSES[3] PIKE, (Major Robert[2], John[1], son of Major Robert and Sarah (Sanders) Pike. He was born 15 March 1659, Salisbury, Massachusetts, and died 4 March 1742, Amesbury, Essex, Massachusetts (V/R Salisbury, p. 609).

He married 9 November 1687, Romley, Massachusetts, SUSANNA[3] WORCESTER. She was born 29 December 1671 and died 4 March 1742.

She was the daughter of TIMOTHY[2] WORCESTER who was born 14 May 1642; Timothy's father and her grandfather, WILLIAM[1] WORCESTER was first minister of Salisbury.

Moses Pike was born in Salisbury, Massachusetts, March 15, 1659, died there March 4, 1741/2. He took the oath of allegiance and fidelity in 1677 and was one of the signers of a petition in 1680. He married, probably in Salisbury, Susanna Worcester, born December 29, 1671. She was the daughter of Timothy and Susanna Worcester. She was admitted to the Salisbury church February 5, 1690 (NEHGR: 1967, P. 167).

Robert's grandfather, MAJOR ROBERT PIKE (2-3), deeded the homestead in Salisbury to him on 26 October 1705. In the New Hampshire Historical Society in Concord there is a deposition, dated 8 June 1720, from one JOSEPH HILTON concerning a mill in controversy between JEREMIAH GILMAN and his son-in-law ROBERT PIKE and EDWARD HALL (File # 17389).

Shortly after this, Robert Pike removed from Salisbury to Exeter, New Hampshire, where several more children were born. Apparently he disposed of his property while he lived since no will or administration has been found (NEHGR: July 1967, page 172).

ROBERT[4] PIKE, called "young Robert" in this summary, the third by this name, was born in Salisbury, Massachusetts, 3 September 1687. He married HANNAH GILMAN who was the daughter of CAPTAIN JEREMIAH and MARY (WIGGIN) GILMAN. They moved to Exeter, and later in 1720 to New Market, New Hampshire.

Young Robert, the grandson of Major Robert (2-3), inherited Major Robert's homestead and later sold the homestead to Wm. Hook, Jr., his step-father. (Ref: The New Puritan, p. 214)

Upon the death of Young Robert's father, ROBERT (3-21), son of Major Robert, young Robert was raised by his grandfather, Major Robert. Major Robert signed a petition attesting to the death of his son, Robert (3-21), leaving a wife, a son, Young Robert (4-56), and a daughter, SARAH (4-57). At the time of the petition Major Robert was married to his second wife, MRS. MARTHA (MOYCE) GOLDWIRE. When young Robert's mother, MARY (FOLLANSBEE) PIKE, remarried (2nd) to WM. HOOK, JR., Major Robert was appointed guardian of young Robert. When Major Robert died in 1706, a second cousin, JOSEPH PIKE (1674-1757) (4-27) was appointed guardian of young Robert on 12 September 1704. Young Robert was still a minor, being at that time seventeen years of age.

As mentioned, it was this young Robert who inherited Major Robert's homestead. In 1714, young Robert, then 21 years of age signed an agreement with other heirs dividing certain other properties. On 28 November 1718, he sold the homestead to his step-father, Wm. Hook, Jr. Young Robert was then living in Exeter, New Hampshire.

Hannah (Gilman) Pike traced her family back to WILLIAM HERSEY and EDWARD GILMAN.

WILLIAM HERSEY was born 1596, St. Giles Parish, Reading Berkshire Co., England and died 22 March 1657/58 at Hingham, Massachusetts. 108. JOHN[5] PIKE (Robert[4], Robert[3], Major Robert[2], John[1]), son of Robert and Hannah (Gilman) Pike. He was born 2 October 1729, a part of Exeter, New Hampshire, now South Newmarket, New Hampshire, and died 1 February 1808, Cornish, Maine, at the age of 78 years, 4 months. He came late to Epping, New Hampshire, in 1803, he lived with his daughter Sarah (Mrs. Theophilus) Smith (196). (Pike Assoc., 1946-1948, p. 17)

He married 15 February 1755, Gloucester, Massachusetts, MARY (BENNETT) DAVIS. She was born 11 July 1731, Gloucester, Massachusetts, and died 19 May 1816 at the age of 84 yrs, 10 mos, Cornish, Maine; the daughter of STEPHEN and MARY (HOOK) BENNETT, and the widow of NOAH DAVIS, son of SOLOMON and MARY (SMALL) DAVIS of Gloucester, Massachusetts. Mary (Small) Davis was granddaughter of FRANCIS SMALL who owned the Ossipee Tract, a large area of land comprising most of York County, called "Francisborough" in honor of Frances Small.

John Pike, of Epping, N.H., inherited - through marriage to Mary (Bennett) Davis, a tract of wild land in "Francisborough", in the province of Maine named in honor of Francis Small, an ancestor of the writer, Lauriston Ward Small. John Pike sent his two sons John and Bennett to "clear" a small part thereof for the purpose of expediting a profitable sale. John, the son was 19 years old, and Bennett, or "Little Bennett" as he was called in later years, was but 16 years old. The boys found their way through the wilderness to their land, felled trees, burned the off, and raised such a bountiful corp of corn that straightway they wisely decided to remain and make their home there. Their farms were at the western end of "High Road", a road which has given more brains to the world than any other county round of equal length on earth. Ahem! (Lauriston Ward Small, Historian: supplied by Robert Taylor)

Editor Note:

(Mrs.) Earle (Ethel) M. Richardson (deceased), who resided (1958) 11 Lincoln St., Brunswick, Maine in searching records for the purpose of membership in D.A.R., did considerable research on Jacob Pike (5-109, above) and more specifically his son, John (6-203) her ancestor. It was through her efforts in corresponding with the National Archives that it was determined that Jacob Pike (5-109) was the son of Robert (4-56) and

Hannah (Gilman) Pike. This writer had the pleasure of visiting with Mrs. Richardson at her home in 1958, when with his brother, Eugene were traveling from Boston to visit relatives in northern Maine. (See note: 203 John Pike.)

142-21. ELIAS[8] PIKE (PVT.), son of John and (2nd) Esther (Richardson) Pike, was born 28 June 1837, Waterford, Maine, and died at Camp Pitcher (near Falmouth, VA) (Typhoid Fever), 29 December 1862. He served in Co. B., 17th Regt., Maine Inf., Stevens Co. He enlisted 25 July 1862, Sweden, Maine, by W.M. Jenkins for a three year term: Age 25; Height 6'; Complexion: Dark; Hair: Black; Occupation: Farmer. (U.S. War Dept. Supplied by Helen Chasse)

Historical Note: If Elias had not been ill he would no doubt have participated in one of the most serious defeats of the Union: The Battle of Fredericksburg (13 Dec. 1862). It was a grave defeat for the north under Gen. Burnside. Gen. Lee's men killed or wounded 12,653 Union soldiers. The confederate casualties during the battle were 5300. On 21 Jan. 1863 Burnside moved his army back to Falmouth. Near the place where Elias had died. (George Carruth, American Facts and Dates, p. 276)

Due to poor sanitary conditions and lack of fresh water and food, typhoid fever ran rampant throughout the camps. Medical doctors, nurses and supplies were limited. Suffering and death was overwhelming and many a soldier cried out for the hand of death. Of the 359,526 Union Army casualties, 224,586 died of disease. The cause of typhoid fever would not be discovered until 1880: as being from milk, water, solid foods contaminated by feces of typhoid victims and of carriers and no specific treatment until the 1950's. The dead were buried as soon as possible. Elias having died at Camp Pitcher, thought to be an army hospital, would have been buried there. In later years all bodies were exhumed and buried in the National Cemetery at Fredericksburg, Virginia.

The Fredericksburg National Cemetery was established in 1865. 15,332 interments with 12,745 unknown. (Funk & Wagner Encyclopedia, 1966, p. 6350.) A check with the National Parks Service, which maintains the cemetery (1994) found no listing of Elias Pike. Therefore it is believed that he is one of the unmarked graves Known Only to God.

In later years: REV. CHARLES UPTON who married ADDIE E. PIKE (10-921) would write about the medical conditions during the Civil War. (q.v. 9-816. Hiram Pike.)

Elias Pike married (before 1859, when first child, Clifford, was born) HANNAH FRANCES HOWE. She was born 23 May 1837, Sweden, Maine, and died in 1923 (Inter.: Haskell Cem., Sweden, Maine, Grave No. 52.) Listed as (Bennett), Hannah F.P., wife of John Bennett. (Note: Hannah's grave is marked with 2nd husband's name, Hannah F.P. Bennett (1837-1923), wife of John Bennett - with "P" for "Pike", her 1st husband.) No children by 3rd marriage.

(APPENDIX 142F, page 724: Property inventory and funeral expenses.) Newspaper clipping, Maine Historical Soc.: He leaves a wife, Mrs. Cora F. Pike of Reno, Nev., and his mother, Mrs. H.F. Smith of Waterford.

Ed. Note: His mother, Hannah Frances (Howe) Pike, had married three times: (1st) his father, Elias Pike; (2nd) John Bennett; (3rd) Sebastian Smith, thus the name Mrs. F.P. Smith.

Clifford married 26 April 1883, Sweden, Maine, CORA FLAVILLE PLUMMER. She was born 6 June 1860, Sweden, Maine (Whitman's History of Norway, P. 232), and died September 1919 (Torrey, New England Marriages Prior to 1700). On 24 November 1911 she was residing in Lynnfield, Massachusetts when she wrote a letter to Mr. George T. Little of Bowdoin College. (Correspondence with Lynnfield Historical Soc., finds no information of her residence in Lynnfield). She may have died in Reno, Nevada and burial place unknown. She was the daughter of JOHN P. and CORDELIA A. (BENNETT) PLUMMER of Sweden, Maine. (Continued: APPENDIX 142C, page 718, Samuel Plummer Family. (Lapham's, History of Norway, p. 329)

Clifford and Cora F. (Plummer) Pike did not have children. According to a letter written to Clifford by his mother on 16 July 1909, Clifford and Cora were in process of getting a divorce at the time of Clifford's death. (See APPENDIX 142D, page 720: Ltr. to Clifford L. Pike from his mother, Hannah F. (Howe) (Pike) Bennett.)

Clifford attended common town school at Sweden and Bridgton High School at Bridgton Centre graduating in 1878 after a four year attendance. He taught at two schools: one of twelve weeks in Sweden, his hometown, the fall and winter of 1875; the second of eight weeks in the State of New Hampshire, Town of Freedom, the fall of 1878. (Taken from his application to Bowdoin College, dated April 1878. Recommended by Dr. Charles L. Wilson of Waterford, Maine.) (Bowdoin College Alumni Files)

Clifford graduated Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Maine, M.D., Class of 1881. He also attended a course of lectures at the Portland School for Medical Instruction during the season of 1880.

He arrived in Norway in the autumn of 1881 and purchased the residence and business of Dr. Osgood N. Bradbury. Dr. Bradbury (1828-1897) was also the author: Norway in the Forties.

Two years later he married Miss Cora F. Plummer of Sweden. Both took great interest in music and sang in church and were very popular.

Doctor Pike had a literary turn and wrote some commendable poetry. He acquired a good practice in Norway, but after some years removed to Saco into a more promising field, where he died. With sufficient hospital practice he might have been a very skillful surgeon. (Whitman's History of Norway, Maine, p. 232)

He was Chief Templar two terms in 1880; Ass't. Stewart, Grange two years: 1879-1881; Member of Odd Fellows (Bowdoin Records). (See APPENDIX 142-E, page 722: Tribute to Clifford L. Pike.)

In later years he about gave up the practice of medicine to devote his time to researching and writing the Pike Family History, as may be found in Pike Family Association Record booklets. However, his life's work was destroyed when upon his death, his wife was unwilling to turn over the records to the association. A report of this attempt has been reported in the Pike Family Association Records and reproduced in APPENDIX 142-G, page 726, Attempt to Secure Dr. Pike's Family Records (q.v.).

He married ELIZABETH (---). She married (2nd) 6 July 1777, Leominster, Massachusetts, widower CALVIN GRAVES.

Perley Pike served as Ensign and Lieutenant at St. John and Nova Scotia on military expeditions from 13 March 1758 to 30 November 1762 under Capts. Joseph Newhall, Samuel Gerrish, Moses Parker and Henry Young Brown. No date or place of marriage could be found nor wife's family name. Perley Pike died after 7 August 1773 (the date he signed his last note), without leaving a will. A court appointed inventory was ordered and dated 18 June 1774, listing his personal estate: Homestead, about 50 acres of land (266-13-4), also two acres of land with a dwelling and shop (30-0-0), and also one-half acre of land with a tan yard and bark house (26-13-0), plus various household goods, personal items and claims of several creditors. Final examination of all claims was allowed and received by L. Lincoln, J. Prob., Worcester, MA, 4 June 1778.

According to Cunningham History which covered Lunenburg families from 1719 to 1866, there was a girl named Hannah, b. 17 Sept. 1748 living with Perley and Elizabeth Pike. She is believed to be Perley's sister whose birthdate was 6 Sept. 1748, Newbury, MA. She married 2 March 1769, William Holt of Lunenburg.

Elizabeth Pike and Calvin Graves (her 2nd husband) had children born in Leominster: LUCINA GRAVES, born 21 January 1778 and CALVIN GRAVES, JR., born 2 July 1780.

Pike, Nicholas (Oct. 6, 1743 - Dec. 9, 1819), teacher, arithmetician, was born at Somersworth, N.H., the son of Rev. James and Sarah (Gilman) Pike, and a descendant of John Pike who emigrated from Langford, England, to Massachusetts in 1635. Nicholas graduated from Harvard College, in 1766, and later received the degree of A.M. there. For many years he was master of the Newburyport grammar school, occupying that position as least as early as 1773. He also conducted a private evening school (1774-86) and for a time, a school for young ladies. He was town clerk of Newburyport from March 14, 1776 to 1780, served as selectman in 1782-83, and for a considerable period was justice of the peace. Testimony concerning the quality of Pike's teaching is given by Gen. Henry Sewall, who stated that in 1769 and several years previously he had studied under Pike at York, in what is now Maine, particularly "arithmetic and trigonometry." Pike, Sewall says, made some improvement in the school there "with the accession of a new spelling-book, but did not make grammar and geography any part of school studies."

Pike's fame rests chiefly upon his treatise, A New and Complete System of Arithmetick, Composed for the Use of the Citizens of the United States. (2nd Ed., 1795. Printed at Worcester, MA, by Isaiah Thomas. Sold by him in Worcester, sold alfo (also) by faid (said) Thomas and Andrews, D. West, and E. Larkin, in Boston; and by faid (said) Thomas and Carlisle, in Walpole, New Hampshire; and by Bookf(s)ellers in the United States. Allen Pike has a copy of this book.) In the year 1793 he published a smaller work. Pike was able to secure, also, the hearty recommendations of the work by the presidents of Yale, Harvard, and Dartmouth, several of their professors of mathematics, and Governor Bowdoin of Massachusetts. Even George Washington gave a guarded recommendation when a copy was sent to him.

Pike was the first American arithmetician to attain wide popularity in the field of school textbooks. In his arithmetics, the orderly presentation of the subject to children is stressed, the Federal money (then new) is given adequate treatment. The larger edition was an admirable effort, furnishing excellent material in geometry and trigonometry.

John F. Pike (1909-1984), descendant of James Pike of Charlestown, writing to this editor, 19 April 1982, states:

One day last summer (1981) Barbara Moulton and I visited the old cemetery in Newburyport, Massachusetts, and found the grave of Nicholas Pike, the author of the first arithmetic book. While in the region we also visited the home of Rev. James Pike, Nicholas' father, nearby. From the size of the architecture of the place he must have been a very wealthy preacher.

He married MARTHA TREVETT.

John Pike lived in Rollinsford all his life and inherited his father's homestead. He was the town clerk for 13 years and served as selectman of the town many times. Professionally he was a surveyor of land and surveyed most of the farms in the town. At one time he was given the task of surveying the town of Rollinsford and made an accurate and complete map. He was born at Rollinsford Junction in the old homestead of his ancestors. For many years he was a successful schoolteacher. He was at one time the assistant teacher to the "Saint Payson". He was the author of two spelling books and a grammar reading book, which were widely used in the schools during his life.*

In the late portion of his life he went blind. He died at his grandfather's homestead in Rollinsford at the age of 65 years.

She married 18 November 1787 in Salisbury, Massachusetts, JOHN AYER.

John Ayer of Standish, Maine, married Elizabeth Pike, of Salisbury, Mass. She being a descendant of John Pike, who came to America from England in 1630. John and Elizabeth were admitted into membership of the Congregational Church at Standish, May 11, 1777. Some time after 1777 they settled in Hiram, Oxford Co., Maine. (Vol. I, Eastern Maine deeds of Massachusetts.) It appears that Nathaniel Wells deeded (1791) to John Ayer and Joseph Bean, "Settlers within Cutler's grant, so-called in the county of York, husbandmen, who settled within Cutler's grant and made separate improvements thereon before the first day of January 1784." John Ayer was evidently of strong religious convictions, for he is spoken of by historians of the period as an exporter and itinerant preacher, and the first religious services of which we have any account in the town of Hiram were held by him. He was industrious and enterprising, and is said to have built the first saw and grist mill in the town of Hiram, which was located on his property on the thirteen mile brook, so called, just above the "red mill". He and Captain Wadsworth built the first bridge across the Saco River, in Hiram, about 1805. (Savage's Genealogical Dictionary)

185. JANET[6] PIKE (James[5], Zebulon[4], Judge John[3], Judge John[2], John[1]), daughter of James and Mary (Heriot) Pike. She was born 21 February 1748, Woodbridge, New Jersey and died there 3 May 1821, AE 73. Her given name was Jennet, at times spelled Jeanet, however, she is called Janet in legal documents, Jennet being the old spelling for Janet.

She married in Woodbridge PHILIP GAGE. He was born ca. 1743, and died in 1780, age 37 years. Records indicate that they had at least four sons.

There is a disagreement as to the date of Janet's birth and her husband. Pike Assoc. (1956-58, p. 25) gives her date of birth as 21 February 1755 and married to JONATHAN GAGE. The information given above is from documentation from Woodbridge, New Jersey records.

On 15 August 1778, Janet's husband, Philip Gage's name appeared with others, who had either joined the army of the King of Great Britain, or had otherwise offended against the form of their allegiance to the state, their property was confiscated by the state. His holdings were quite large - large homestead and over 200 acres of property. Philip Gage died in 1780 at the age of 37.

When the property was offered for sale, Janet (Pike) Gage, his wife being the highest bidder was able to secure the property which they had lost by his allegiance to the Crown. Her patriotism and friendship which existed with her neighbors was certainly a contributing factor in her regaining possession of their property.

Janet (Pike) and Philip Gage lie buried in the Methodist Churchyard, Main Street, Woodbridge, NJ. Beside the burial yard was the original burial lot of "the members of the Silent Communion", the Quakers. In this yard were tombstones of brownstone marking their last resting place - Tory and patriot, side by side. With them is buried a son, Thomas, who died at the age of 22. (Janet (Pike) Gage is well documented in Ruth Wolk's, "The History of Woodbridge, New Jersey" 1970, p. 31.)

An honor and respect later bestowed upon the memory of Janet Pike Gage was when the Woodbridge, NJ chapter of DAR (Daughter of the American Revolution) named their chapter "The Janet Gage Chapter of the DAR" as reported by F.W. Gardner, 5 October 1923 in the history of the chapter. We find Janet to have been a descendant of the first families of the town of Woodbridge, N.J., the mother of at least four sons, the wife of a Tory, the sister of a prominent officer, Zebulon Pike (5-187) in the American Revolution, the aunt of a Captain, who later became a General, Zebulon Montgomery Pike (7-315), the great aunt by marriage to the son of an early President of the United States, William Henry Harrison, and above all a true patriot.

187. ZEBULON[6] PIKE (Col.) (James[5], Zebulon[4], Judge John[3], John[2], John[1]), son of James and Mary (Herriot) Pike. He was born 18 September 1751, Woodbridge, New Jersey, and died 27 July 1834, Lawrenceburg, Indiana.

He married 17 April 1775, New York City, ISABELLA BROWN of Somerset Co., New Jersey. She was born 20 July 1753, Southhold, Long Island, New York, and died 25 December 1809, Lawrenceburg, Indiana. (Pike Assoc. 1956-58, p. 25)

Colonel Zebulon Pike (1751-1834) was an officer in the Revolutionary War. His commission of Captain and Major were signed by George Washington and that of Col. by Jefferson or Madison (in possession of Mrs. Sarah Sturdevant family). He was noted for his bravery and the Indians called him the "Great Brave". He always visited their wigwams without any fear in making his treaties with their tribes. (Carter, p.3; Pike Assoc., 1906, p. 48)

Being a soldier and officer in the army, the family moved according to his assignment. They resided in Bucks and Northumberland Counties, Pennsylvania; Ft. Washington, Cincinnati, Ohio (1790); and (1802), Ft. Knox, Vincennes, Indiana. (Carter, p. 5)

OBIT: Sarah Wardell Sturdevant (Pike Assoc., 1910, p.16) Sarah Wardell was born 9 April 1812, Lawrenceburg, Indiana, two months prior to the beginning of the second war with Great Britain. W.R.[9] ADAMS of Larned, and CHARLES[9] STURDEVANT of Alva, OK. Rev. Charles Sturdevant was a Presbyterian minister. After the war he was President of a female seminary at Independence, MO. In 1870 the family settled at Olathe, Kansas, and in 1876 moved to Larned, which became the family home.

Sarah Wardell was raised by her grandfather, Col. Zebulon Pike (6-187). She recalled, as a girl of thirteen, that General Lafayette during his trip to America as the nation's guest in 1821, visited her grandfather, Col. Zebulon Pike.

Several men who served under Captain Robert Pike are mentioned in The Newmarket Advertiser, Chapter XVI.

Robert Pike's name is listed among the 162 from Newmarket, over twenty-one years of age (he must have just reached 21), who signed the declaration, which is commonly known as the Association Test. (The Association Test was issued by the Continental Congress, 14 March 1776, and later issued in New Hampshire in April, 1776. It amounted virtually to a declaration of independence by all inhabitants showing the standing of each inhabitant as to his loyalty to the cause of liberty.)

193. WILLIAM[6] PIKE (Robert[5], Robert[4], Robert[3], Major Robert[2], John[1]), son of Robert and Elinor (Perkins) Pike. He was born in 1748. He was killed in 1804 on his farm by a falling tree, when he was 56 years of age.

197. JOHN[6] PIKE (John[5], Robert[4], Robert[3], Major Robert[2], John[1]), son of John and Mary (Bennett-Davis) Pike. He was born 16 October 1765, Newmarket, New Hampshire, and died 21 December 1857, Cornish, Maine.

He married (1st) 22 February 1769, Epping, New Hampshire, NANCY THURSTON. She was born 5 February 1769, Epping, New Hampshire, and died 3 August 1809, Cornish, Maine.

He married (2nd) 7 July 1824, SALLY CHICK. She was living in Cornish in 1850 at the age of 58.

John moved from Epping, New Hampshire to Cornish, Maine 20 March 1787 and is listed in Cornish census of 1790.

John, like his brother Bennett (6-198), was tall, broad shouldered, erect, and fine-looking, as all true Pikes should be, but vain withal. He, it was who put birch bark in his shoes to make them squeak when he walked down the church aisle on Sundays. In his swallow-tailed blue coat, nankeen pants tightly strapped down, and an enormous bell-crowned beaver hat, he was indeed a fine specimen of the genus homo.

John loved good horses, and these he rode like a veritable Centaur. It was his horse, ridden by himself, that won the great race when the church was dedicated in 1804, and for a short time thereafter, or until people were sober again, he was almost as great as Deacon Jewett. When he was probably past his eightieth year, I remember seeing him ride by my father's house almost daily in fair weather, and even then he rode well.

John was social and fond of a little gossip, but not genial, and never popular like his brother, Bennett. He became a Methodist and a Democrat, and as it was an intensely Baptist and Whig neighborhood, that may have been the cause of much of his unpopularity. In that neighborhood and time it was as disreputable to be a Methodist and a Democrat as it was to be an Abolitionist at a later time.

John married Nancy Thurston and had the following children, whose names I cannot give in order of birth: Job, Mrs. Whitten (Mary), Mrs. Johnson (Nancy), Thurston, Elder John, Deacon Samuel, Wyer, Simeon P. Later he married Sarah Chick, and had one son, Eben B. Pike.

He died at the home of his son, Wyer, at about the age of the late King William, having been blind several years. (Historian Lauriston Ward, supplied by Robert Taylor)

*332. x. SIMEON PEASE[7] PIKE, b. 3 Aug. 1809, d. 1 Oct. 1855.

Child of John and (2nd) Sally (Chick) Pike:

333. xi. EBEN BARKER[7] PIKE. Eben B. Pike, the youngest of John's sons, and the only child by his second marriage, was probably the tallest of the Pikes. He was a merchant, a banker, a civil engineer - assistant to the Chief Engineer of the Northern Pacific R.R.; a steamboat owner, and army officer - everything in turns, and nothing long. He was rich and poor many times. He was the smartest and least sensible, the richest and poorest, the noblest and meanest of his race. He lived in New York, Chicago, Miles City, Montana, St. Louis and other river towns. Among all the Pikes he is the one of whom to be proudest and most ashamed. His home was the world, he was married and left one daughter. He died in the west (Historian Laureston Ward Small).

Pike (7-324): When Job K. migrated to northern Maine he inherited his father's diaries and they were passed down to his descendants; eventually, to Elizabeth June Pike (10-910). Elizabeth June Pike (Called "June") willed the diaries to the Caribou Historical Society, Caribou, Maine. This writer had the opportunity of reading the diaries when June Pike shipped a suitcase filled with memorabilia to him for study in the 1970's. They are extremely interesting for a picture of the times in which the early pioneers lived.

198. BENNETT[6] PIKE (John[5], Robert[4], Robert[3], Major Robert[2], John[1]). He was the son of John and Mary (Bennett-Davis) Pike. He was born 4

August 1767, Epping, New Hampshire, and died 18 April 1853, AE 85 yrs. 8 mos. 14 days in Cornish, Maine (Inter: High Rd., Cornish).

He married (1st) 1787, DOROTHY "DOLLY" MORRILL. She was born 31 May 1769, probably Epping. The daughter of OLIVER and ABRA (BROWN) MORRILL of Epping, New Hampshire. She died 1791, four years after their marriage leaving one son, Oliver Morrill Pike.

Bennett married (2nd) January 1793, HANNAH BRASBREE. She was born 1774 or 1775 the daughter of WILLIAM AND HANNAH (BURLEIGH) BRASBREE and step-daughter of EBENEZER BARKER. She died 25 January 1855 at Ae 75 yrs. William Brasbree, her father, of Stratham, New Hampshire, was of Scotch-Irish blood and had died of camp fever during the Revolutionary War. Her mother, Hannah (Burleigh) Brasbree married (2nd) Ebenezer Barker and they moved to Cornish Maine where they lived and had a large family.

Bennett resembled Henry Clay in person. He was tall and spare and remained spare all his life; but spare as he was, he was the champion wrestler of all the country around in his youth, and many stories of his prowess are yet extant. He was a bright, nimble witted man, intellectually superior to every other man in the settlement, Deacon Jewett and Elder Remick not excepted. He was thrifty, too, and became the most wealthy farmer in town, albeit "Squire Pease and Cotton Lincoln" had more of this world's goods. I remember him as a pleasant old gentleman in a swallow-tail blue coat with bright buttons, the collar of the coat coming well up to the top of his head and with a huge puff on each shoulder as the fashion once was. A rare man was Bennett. He died in old age, and now sleeps in the little graveyard at the mouth of the road.

In 1787 - 99 years ago - he married Dolly Morrill, of Epping, and had one son. He then married Hannah Brasbree, the step-daughter of Eben Barker, who when a child was being led to church by her widowed mother at the time Eben fell in love, as I wrote in the sketch of that good man. I will not say that Bennett's second wife was the best brained woman ever raised in Maine, but I will say that she was one of the rarest of her sex. Books and newspapers were not common in those days, but she managed to get a fair supply from which she informed herself and then informed her husband, and Bennett would never have been the man he undoubtedly was but for his noble power behind the throne which was greater than the throne itself. Intellectually this couple were not only superior but vastly superior to any other married couple in the little town, and of the two Aunt Bennett possessed the best brains.

Thus we find among Bennett's descendants eight lawyers: Bennett, Ezra, Nathaniel, Edwin, Bennett, Vinton, Alvin and Jack; also two other graduates:

Dr. William and his son, Fredrick. The entire balance of the town has not turned out as many scholars, and I think not as many graduates. The would-have-been great men of the family, had they lived, were the second Bennett and Ezra. The great scholars were Ezra, Judge Bennett and Martha. The histrionic one was Jack (Lauriston Ward Small writes, supplied by Robert Taylor).

He graduated from Bowdoin, was admitted to the bar and died. He was another great scholar and many thought that he would have even excelled his brother Bennett had he lived. DUDLEY PIKE
1760 - 1838

Dudley[6] Pike, second son of Jacob (6-109) and Joanne (Marshall) Pike was born at Exeter, New Hampshire 2 September 1760, of rather a large family: an older brother, Henry (6-201), three younger brothers: John (6-203), Jacob Jr. (6-206) and Robert (6-207) (q.v.) and four younger sisters: Hannah (6-204), Martha (6-205), Joanna (6-208), and Mercy (6-209). At this writing, the only information that has been found is on Dudley and his brother John.

Dudley and his brothers were born at the beginning of great unrest in the colonies. Dudley would have been sixteen years of age when representatives from the thirteen colonies met in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania and signed the "Declaration of Independence" on 4 July 1776. Although, they lived far from the center of action around Boston and news came to them late, usually by horseback rider or stage coach, they soon found themselves involved in the struggle for independence. Both Dudley and his older brother, Henry, enlisted and served during the Revolutionary War. Dudley enlisted September 1775, when he had just reached his sixteenth birthday, at Rochester, New Hampshire. (War Pension No. W26896, on file National Archives, Washington, D.C. and N.H. Historical Society, Concord, N.H. A flag "War of 1776" was flying over Dudley's grave when Allen Pike visited the family graveyard in 1959.).

At the age of 54, he served under Gen. John Stark, the hero of Bennington, (Whitman, p. 92), War of 1812.

On 11 September 1783, Dudley married Celia Weston in New Gloucester, Maine; the daughter of John and Mercy (Samson) Weston. They were married by the Justice of Peace, Celia being listed from North Yarmouth. (Microfilm No. EE20-21, Maine Archives, Augusta, Me.) Celia Weston traced her ancestors on her father's family to the early pioneer, John Weston (1662-1736) and on her mother's family to Abraham Sampson, whose son Isaac Sampson (1660-1726) married Lydia Standish, the daughter of Alexander and Sarah (Alden) Standish. Sarah (Alden) Standish being the daughter of John and Priscilla (Mullens) Alden of the Plymouth Colony, Massachusetts. (Ed. Note: the spelling of "Sampson" often appears as "Samson".)

Dudley is listed as a direct tax-payer in 1798, with assessed value (1816) of $1750. (Lapham, p. 562)

The Norway, Maine census of 1790 lists Dudley, his wife Celia, with three male and 2 female children. In 1800 the children had changed to five males and 4 females.

Dudley moved his family to Norway, Maine, from Paris, Maine around 1789, his fourth child, Hannah was the first to be born in Norway, 26 July 1789. They lived in a log cabin until the big house was completed on Pike Hill in 1803. (Dudley's log cabin and later the big house is well documented by Bradbury, p. 297 and 557. q.v.: The chimney plate of the big house had the initials D.P. (Dudley Pike) and date 1803. (Photo by Allen Pike, 1959).

The activities of these two young men, Dudley and John is well documented by Lapham in his History of Norway, Maine (p. 562). Dudley proved to be a strong personality and to have dominated the entire line. They secured a farm on what came to be called "Pike's Hill". There was built a rather large house for the year 1803.

Dudley and John, other than clearing their land for farming, also were employed for erecting stone walls and fences, digging and stoning cellars, as well as hauling logs to be sawed into planks and boards. No doubt, they assisted in constructing many of the early homes in the area - many of which exist today. (1991)

From Dudley's will dated 1 January 1818 with subsequent codicil dated 11 February 1829, we gather that Dudley was an affluent man for his time. The concern and thought which went into making this will indicates what a methodical man he must have been. His concern for his wife, Celia, serves as an example:

I give and devise to my beloved wife Celia Pike the eastwardly front room, the bedroom at the west corner of the kitchen, one undivided third part of the kitchen, all in the house where I now live, one undivided third of the cellar under said house, and one undivided third part of the buttery at the end of the kitchen, an undivided fourth part of the Barn...Also one undivided half of all the land I now own...I also give my said wife the privilege of cutting wood for the support of one fire for her own use..I also give my said wife one cow, five sheep and all the household furniture in dividing bedding and all the clothing except my own wearing apparel.

Dudley was also considerate of his children in his will:

...my eldest son, John Pike twenty dollars over and above what I have given him in my life time to be paid in one year after my decease.

...my son William Pike twenty dollars over and above...

...my son Nathaniel Pike..all my home farm situated on the Northwestwardly side of the road excepting sixty acres, hereafter given to my son Henry in dividing the house, barn and out building excepting what has been given to my wife and one chamber hereafter given to my daughter Joanna also one undivided half of the land situate on the southwestwardly side of the road opposite the house excepting also the thirty acres given to my wife on the Northwestwardly side of the road...I give and devise to my two sons, Nathaniel and Henry a certain lot or tract of land situate in Hebron and between land belonging to Jonathan Pottie and Jonathan Woodman containing about twenty acres to be equally divided betwixt them.

...my son Henry Pike...sixty acres of land to be taken from the Northwestwardly end of my home lot to be laid out in the most convenient manner reserving from the wood given to my sons Nathaniel and Henry the privilege of cutting wood for the support of one fire for the use of my wife during her natural life...

...my daughter Joanna Pike the southwestwardly chamber in my house to have and to hold so long as she shall remain unmarried...

...my said daughter Joanna one hundred and eighty dollars to be paid in two years after my decease.

...my daughter Judith Crocket twenty five dollars over and above what I have given her in my life time...three years after my decease.

...daughter Mercy Pike one hundred and twenty dollars to be paid four years after my decease.

...my daughter Sally Pike one hundred and twenty dollars to be paid in five years after my decease.

...my daughter Caroline Pike one hundred and twenty dollars to be paid in six years after my decease.

I give and devise to my said son Nathaniel his heirs and assigns forever the reversion of all the real estate given my wife at her decease and also the reversion of the Chamber given to my daughter Joanne.

I give and devise my pew in the Congregation Meeting House in Norway to my Children who shall survive me and their heirs and assign forever to each one an equal share.

He further wills his wearing apparel to his sons. All his household furniture "at the decease of my wife" is divided equally among the girls. The will is witnessed by Rufus Bartlett, Joseph Bradbury and Jonathan Woodman.

On 11 February 1829, Dudley added a codicil to his will, wherein he further gave Nathaniel: my clock, desk, two good beds and bedding and all cooking utensils, all my five... (unable to read writing), and my family Bible. The codicil was witnessed by: Joshua Smith, Levi Whitman and David Smith. The will and codicil carries Dudley's finger print. (a copy of the will is in the editor's files.)

Dudley died 30 July 1838 and his wife, Celia (Weston) Pike died a year later, 30 April 1839. They had been married 55 years. Truly, two of the early pioneers of Maine. They rest together in the Pike Hill Cemetery, which is located a short distance north of the homestead on the east side of the road, along with many of their family and descendants.

Around 1946, Rev. Charles R. Upton and his wife, Addie Evelyn (Pike) Upton (10-921, q.v.) visited the Dudley homestead. Addie (Pike) Upton was a direct descendant of Dudley: Hiram Jr., Hiram, John, Dudley. Rev. Upton's memoirs contains the following observations on their visit:

Dudley Pike was born in New Hampshire but moved to Norway, Maine in early manhood, and settled in Norway. After a time he secured a farm on what came to be known as "Pike's Hill". There he built a large house. I have been told that it contains 14 rooms, a rather large establishment of 1787, or there about. Its large brick chimney, in the middle of the roof provided ample draft for the six fireplaces, five of which have been closed to give way to the more modern contrivances - the stove.

Some years later the big house was mortgaged and being unable to pay the mortgage it was foreclosed and passed out of the Pike hands. It is sad to know that one who had worked so hard in clearing upland and fitting it for cultivation and so useful to the early settlers should have lost his pioneer home in his old age.

The owner of the farm, not a descendant of the builder, has on several occasions shown a rare courtesy to visitors, and in 1946 he escorted a great-granddaughter, Addie Evelyn Pike Upton (10-921), of the builder over the premises. To her and her husband who accompanied her, the owner showed a special care in opening the one room that has been allowed to remain as it was built. Amidst all changes of ownership this had been preserved as a sample of that early architecture. The wide boards of the floor, are hand planed, as are also the special wide boards of the wainscotting. The scroll attract attention as does the big fireplace and other signs of the skill and appreciation of the old time builder for the beautiful and the useful that made old Dudley Pike a marked man in his day. On the old chimney there is a panel bearing the letters (placed there when the chimney was laid up) "D.P." The owner had often wondered what the letters stood for. We were able to enlighten him that the initials were those of the builder, Dudley Pike.

The ancient upper room might well have been intended for the comfort of honored guests, but the large family which came along suggests that there was a more common use for that room.

Dudley was a soldier in the Revolutionary Army and is supposed to have been one of the surviving heros of the famous battle, Bunker Hill. He was a loyal citizen, and like others he paid all taxes assessed him. One year he was assessed $1.50; his son was assessed $1.50, also. But in those days a strong farm hand could earn as much as $.50 a day and his dinner.

Allen Pike, the writer of this history, also visited the Pike Homestead and Graveyard in 1959. His visit was not so well received as that of his Charles and Aunt Addie Upton:

After locating the big house, which was in badly need of repairs, Allen approached the front door and knocked. After knocking and banging on the huge door for sometime, he was about ready to give up. As he turned to return to his car the door slowly opened and a little child of under five years of age peered through the crack. Allen returned to the door and asked whether mother or father was home. No answer. Shortly a young lady pushed her head through the open crack above the child. Explaining that he would like to see the house and take some photographs, the lady started shaking her head, "No, No!" Trying to tell her that the house was built by his ancestors got no results. Asking for the husband brought the response in broken Spanish: "Me no speak English." Pointing to his camera and asking when the husband would be home got the same reply: "Me, no speak English."

About this time a big dog bound out the door just about knocking Allen down. Fortunately, it was a friendly dog who couldn't understand English either: "Get down!" The lady could make the dog understand much to Allen's relief.

Preparing to take some photos brought further exclamations from the lady. So no photographs.

Returning to his car he left the premises feeling saddened at the thought that the house had truly passed out of the Pike Family.

Some years after visiting the homestead this writer had the pleasure of spending an evening with Harold S. Pike (#943, q.v.) in Waterford, Maine. At that time Harold was a State Senator from Oxford County. He was a direct descendant of Dudley's son, John Pike (#341, q.v.), Seth B. Pike (#633, q.v.) and Elbridge B. Pike (#826, q.v.), his father. Harold S. Pike had in his possession the Dudley Pike Family Bible from which verification of dates of Dudley's family are quoted.

It was almost twenty years after Allen's first visit to the homestead, that in 1978 correspondence with persons in Norway, Maine would bring further information and another visit to the homestead.

In 1973, Lyle and Jayne Reeves, who, at the time, also had a home in So. Casco, Maine, (1979: Box 61, So. Casco, Me. 04077) purchased the house and began to restore the house to its original - after much research and finding the correct period wallpaper, etc. It was through their research and great concern for this beautiful old house that we have further information on the history. After these many years it was a great delight to ascertain factual data on its occupants. Mrs. Reeves relates the history with slight additions by this writer:

The farm originally had 289 acres bought at $1.00 an acre. Dudley left the house to Nathaniel (6-347, q.v.), his son. Nathaniel had married Lucy Bearce. This marriage was childless. Thus, the homestead was willed to a grandson of Dudley's, Seth (8-633, q.v.), the son of John (7-341). (Note: This Seth B. Pike was the ancestor of Harold S. Pike (10-943, q.v.) mentioned early in this history.)

Seth's widow, Polly W. (Brackett) Pike (8-633, q.v.) sold the house nine years after Seth's death (ca. 1897) to Geo. Hobbs. At the same time (1897) the house came into the ownership of the Carl Schenk Family.

Dudley had given sixty acres of the farm to his son Henry (7-348, q.v.). Henry's youngest daughter, Carrie (#651, q.v.), married John Roberts (also, a Senator to the State Legislature) and their child, Thaddius, married Lena Schenk, the eldest daughter of Carl Schenk who then owned Dudley's home. An Annie Schenk married a Wiles. So the Pikes and Schenks have had close ties. (Ed Note: There are Schenks and Wiles buried at Pike Hill Cemetery.)

The Schenks kept the old homestead in the family. It went from father, Carl, to his son, Robert, then to his son, Leon who owned it until the mid sixties. During the 50's and 60's it was rented out to a number of strange families (one probably, the Spanish speaking resident living there at the time of Allen Pike's visit in 1959). During these years, much of the land was sold off by the various owners.

At one time it was the residents of "old folks welfare home". A fire in the house occurred at about this time - as visible from burned beams in the attic.

We bought the house with 42 acres. Since, 1973 when we purchased the farm, we have been able to add an additional eight acres.

So it was that Dudley Pike became the ancestor who brought the Pike family into western Maine and eventually through descendants into northern Maine.

John was listed as a direct taxpayer: assessed valuation $1,560 (Lapham, p. 562).

John Pike, son of Jacob, born in Middleton, N.H. came to Norway in 1793. He built the old house on top of the hill south of the village, named for him and his brother. He had a stentorian voice and took the lead in moving buildings (erected before the roads), erecting stone walls and fences, digging and stoning cellars, and hauling big logs to be sawed into planks and boards. He mortgaged his farm later, and being unable to pay, it was foreclosed and passed out of his hands. It is sad to know that one who had worked so hard in clearing up land and fitting it for cultivation and so useful to the early settlers should have lost his pioneer home in his old age. He died in Oxford on the farm on the west side of the river, below the covered bridge, 27 October 1844, ae 78 (Lapham, p. 488ff).

Moses Pike, born probably in Salisbury, Mass., on February 20, 1785. He married there, in 1805, Sophia Dearfield Marston, daughter of Captain Simon Marston and granddaughter of Major Daniel Marston. Sumner T. Pike (#879) son of Jacob Clark Pike, (#710), and therefore first cousin to Diana's father, Carleton M. Pike, (#887) has this to say about Moses: "As near as I can make out, my great-grandfather Moses who would be Diana's great great grandfather, moved down here (Lubec, Maine) during the Napoleonic wars. He was still living in Salisbury, Mass., in 1810 when the father of his wife, Sophia Marston, came down there to visit them and died there. He (Moses) and his family were certainly living in Lubec in 1816 when he subscribed a small sum towards the building of the church which is now right in front of my house. He was Captain and probably owner of the "Barque Abo" which was engaged in what was called the Baltic Trade in Naval Stores, including rosin, turpentine and hemp. Legend has it that the "Abo" landed here from the Baltic in June 1811 when the citizens were trying to decide what to name the town, (recently set off from Eastport). Somebody in the crew said that this village looked very much like the city of Lubeck, Germany where they had called on their way back from Finland, and as nobody could think of a better idea, that's how the town got its name.

"Obviously, he moved down here for the smuggling. During these wars in Europe with blockades, orders in council, and embargoes, almost all trade with Europe was declared illegal by somebody or other. The Eastport Customs House has a record that the "Abo" left Eastport on Friday with a cargo of flour for Vigo, Spain, which at the time, I think, was occupied by Wellington's troops. It appears that the "Abo" showed up again at the Eastport Customs House the next Monday with a cargo of sugar from Vigo, Spain, with all the papers in order. I think this still stands as a record for a sailing voyage across the Atlantic and back. Obviously there had to be some hanky-panky, including bribery in Spain, to get these papers made out in blank beforehand."

Sumner (#879) says in a delightful article he wrote for the Saturday Evening Post "To understand grandfather and his smuggling activities, you have to understand Lubec. The town was a sort of general headquarters for smugglers in the early 1800's because of its proximity to Canada. Flour, for instance, was worth five dollars a barrel in the United States and twenty dollars in Canada, and that simply was too much temptation for the penny-wise Maine folk to resist.

"Lubec was formally settled in 1811, but didn't come into its own until after the British, who were feuding with us about the Canadian-United States boundary, had grabbed Eastport. As I understand it, the British were going to seize all the public assets and slap taxes on mercantile inventory in Eastport. The smarter Eastporters loaded as much of their stuff as they could into dories, and rowed by night through Broad Cove to the mainland, where they established a nice little town at Lubec. I'd loyally estimate Lubec's population today at about 3800."

Moses died June 24, 1862 and is buried at Lubec.

Bond by: Lewis Deweese; also Boone Co., KY, Marriages, Book A, p.2.)* She was born ca. 1783, Boone Co., Kentucky, and died ca. 1847, age 64 (Inventory of her estate was dated 13 April 1847). *(Inter.: to the memory of Clara H. Pike/widow of the late Gen. Z.M. Pike/she died at her residence in/Sugar Grove, Boone Cty., KY/in the 64th year of her age/She was willing to die, and/believed in her Savior. Clarissa H. Brown was the daughter of CAPTAIN JOHN BROWN, who settled in Boone County, Kentucky. Capt. Brown was a brother to Zebulon

M. Pike's mother, ISABELLA BROWN. Clarissa and Zebulon were first cousins. Captain John Brown was born 22 October 1752 in New Jersey, and died 18 November 1824, Revolutionary Soldier. (Inter.: the memory of/Capt. Kentucky Cemetery Records, D.A.R., Vol. I, p. 42.)

Sugar Grove Cemetery: There is a graveyard located on the property of Mr. Bernard Southgate, on Route 298, down the Ohio River from Ludlow, Kentucky, about one mile beyond the end of the paved road, on the right side of the road. This is on the Ohio River almost directly across from the tomb of President Harrison. The Brown, Harrison, and Pike families intermarried. (The Kentucky Genealogist, p. 34.)

Biographical Note: During his trips supplying the forts on the Ohio River, Zebulon had time to visit some of the planters whose estates lay on the river's banks. He never failed to stop at one plantation - Sugar Grove - which was fifteen miles below Cincinnati and owned by Captain John Brown. There was a good social reason for the stops here, for Captain Brown was the brother of Zebulon's mother (Isabella Brown Pike). But another reason presented itself in Captain Brown's dark-haired and pretty daughter Clarissa. She was his partner at dances held in the plantation house. Sometimes they walked by the river together, slipping away from the rest of the party. It was not long before they were deeply in love, but Captain Brown opposed the match.

"A soldier for my daughter's husband, sir?" he said when Zeb asked for Clarissa's hand. "I cannot agree to it. What is your future? Garrison duty on the frontier, small pay and few promotions. I want more than that for my daughter."

Clarissa had anticipated her father's reaction. Now she showed that she had just as much spirit as he. She and Zebulon eloped to Cincinnati and were married over her father's protests. The marriage brought about a breach between the Brown and Pike families and Zebulon was not welcome at his father-in-law's or uncle's estate afterward. (Leonard Wibberley, Zebulon Pike, Soldier and Explorer, Funk & Wagnalls Co., p. 49.)

Ed. Note: Although there may have been a breach in the relationship: Clarissa "Clara" is buried in the Sugar Grove Cemetery next to her father, Capt. ZEBULON MONTGOMERY PIKE

Editor Note: Much has been written about General Zebulon M. Pike as indicated by source references (q.v.). Perhaps one of the best biographical sketches is the following taken from "Dictionary of American Biography of Learned Societies" p. 600, used by permission.

PIKE, ZEBULON MONTGOMERY (Jan. 5, 1779 - April 27, 1813), soldier, explorer, was bred to a military career. His father, Major Zebulon Pike (6-187), served in the Revolution and afterward as an officer in the United States Army; an ancestor, Capt. John Pike (2-2), had fought in the early colonial wars; he was a founder of Woodbridge, N.J., in 1666, and the son of John Pike (1-1), first of the family in America, who immigrated to New England in 1635. Zebulon Montgomery Pike, whose mother was Isabella Brown (6-187), was born at Lamberton, now a part of Trenton, N.J. His childhood was spent in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, where he attended country school.

While yet a boy he entered his father's company as a cadet, and at twenty was commissioned a first lieutenant. For several years he served with the frontier army, restlessly awaiting an opportunity to distinguish himself. At length it came, when Gen. James Wilkinson (1757-1825), Commander in Chief of the Army, directed him to lead an exploring party to the source of the Mississippi.

Editor Comment: The reader is referred to an encyclopedia biographical sketch for further information on Gen. James Wilkinson, a most colorful soldier and adventurer and Aaron Burr (q.v.) with whom Gen. Pike was associated and as seen later involved in a conspiracy scheme for establishing a separate empire in the Southwest. Wilkinson reported the conspiracy to then President Thomas Jefferson (1743-1826). Burr was arrested for treason and after a six month trial was acquitted. Gen. Wilkinson after a court-martial was also acquitted but later relieved of his command in Montreal during the War of 1812 in which Gen. Pike was also involved in Canada.

At the head of a company of twenty men Pike set out from St. Louis on Aug. 9, 1805, with four months' provisions stored away in his seventy-foot keelboat. When they were some distance beyond the Falls of St. Anthony, winter weather set in. Leaving some of the men in a rude stockade, Pike and the others continued the journey, dragging their goods on sleds. They reached what Pike mistakenly took for the source of the river, and after visiting some British trading posts and holding councils with the Indians of the region, returned to St. Louis on April 30, 1806.

The young lieutenant was soon dispatched upon a longer and more important expedition, setting out from St. Louis on July 15, 1806. He was instructed to explore the headwaters of the Arkansas and Red rivers and to reconnoitre the Spanish settlements of New Mexico, being warned to "move with great circumspection... and to prevent any alarm or offence". After visiting the Pawnee villages on the Republican River, Pike (whose promotion to a captaincy occurred by routine on Aug. 12, 1806) moved up the Arkansas to the site of the present Pueblo, Colo. Here, on a side trip, he made an unsuccessful attempt to reach the summit of the peak that bears his name. After exploring South Park and the head of the Arkansas, he turned southward, seeking the source of the Red River. He crossed the Sangre de Cristo Mountains and on the Conejos branch of the Rio Grande constructed a fort of cottonwood logs. The Spaniards of New Mexico, learning of his presence within their territory, sent a body of troops to fetch him to Santa Fe. He acceded without opposition, for he desired to visit the region and study its geography and resources. From Santa Fe he was taken on to Chihuahua, where he was examined by the commandant general. Here he was well treated, except that his papers were taken from him. (These were destined to rest for a hundred years in the Mexican archives and then to be discovered by an American scholar, H.E. Bolton. The papers are now in the Archives Division of the Adjutant-General's Office, War Department, Washington, D.C.)

After returning to the United States, Pike found his name coupled, in some quarters, with the Aaron Burr (1756-1836), Vice President of U.S. (1801-1805) and Gen. James Wilkinson scheme for empire in the Southwest. There seems little doubt that Wilkinson ordered the tour with the expectation that its findings would be helpful in promoting his designs, but whether or not young Pike was aware of the connection cannot be determined. He protested his innocence and Henry Dearborn, the secretary of war, in a formal statement gave him a clean slate. Nevertheless, historians continue to differ in the conclusions they draw from the circumstantial evidence. The information Pike gathered was of value to his government, his conduct was not incompatible with patriotic motives, and his subsequent career evidences genuine patriotism. (Excellent report (q.v.): Jackson, How Lost was Zebulon Pike.)

Zebulon Pike was commissioned major in 1808, colonel in 1812, and following the outbreak of the second war with Great Britain, brigadier-general in 1813.

When the attack on York (now Toronto), Canada, was launched in April of that year the immediate command of the troops was entrusted to Pike. He led his men to victory, but was killed in the assault (April 27) when the enemy's powder magazine exploded. A distinguished officer, who was at the Battle of York states that as he passed the general, after he was wounded, he cried, "Push on, my brave fellows, and avenge your general."

As the general was breathing his last and the British standard was brought to him and placed under his head, he replied, "I die content." On his body was found a note addressed to his son, consisting of two sentences: "Preserve your honor free from blemish" and "Be Always ready to die for your country." (Pike Assoc., 1906, p. 27, 29) Ed. Note: None of his sons survived to manhood.

He married in 1801 Clarissa Brown, daughter of Gen. John Brown of Kentucky. Several children were born to them, only one of whom, a daughter, Clarissa, reached maturity. She married Symmes Harrison, a son of William Henry Harrison (q.v.).

In 1810 Pike published "An account of Expeditions to the Sources of the Mississippi and through the Western Parts of Louisiana", which is the principal source of the story of his explorations. The work has been published in London and translated into French, Dutch, and German. An extensive listing of sources is given in the above quoted reference.

An excellent map covering Pike's expeditions may be found on page 15, "American Heritage," February 1965 with an excellent article and color photo of Zebulon M. Pike, written by Donald Jackson, editor of the University of Illinois Press, excerpted from his "Journals and Letters of the Zebulon M. Pike Expeditions, published by the University of Oklahoma Press.

Of the many honors posthumously given to General Pike, not the least "Pike's Peak" (one of the most famous peaks in the Rocky Mountains located in the Front Range, El Paso Co., Colorado) are the many places throughout the country that bears his name. His military fame was widespread. Ten states named counties for him: Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, Arkansas, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Ohio and Pennsylvania. (Pike County Chamber of Commerce, Troy, Alabama.)

A lesser known event concerning General Pike was when the Chamber of Commerce and the mayor of Colorado Springs attempted to have the General's body exhumed from Sacketts Harbor, New York and a "magnificent tomb" built on the mountaintop of Pike's Peak for the body. Time magazine of 10 May 1948 gave considerable space to reporting this event. (Excerpts from Swindell Family Files, No. 817-3 q.v.)

Colorado: No Bones? General Pike in a Hogshead of Whiskey

Last week, the Chamber of Commerce and the mayor of Colorado Springs, which lies on the plain below Pikes Peak, uncorked a magnificent scheme to build a tomb for Zeb Pike on the mountaintop he never reached. Zebulon Pike, then a lieutenant, had seen the mountain during his expedition in 1806 and thought it was part of the "Mexican Mountains". Pike predicted that the summit would never be reached by man. But 14 years later it was scaled (by someone else); in 1835 it was recorded on a map as Pikes Peak.

Colorado papers, scenting another tourist attraction, played the story big: the Colorado delegation in Congress whooped it up. Said a Chamber of Commerce official: "If we can just get old Zeb and add him to the rest of the stuff we got here, it'll mean millions, boy, millions." Pike's direct descendants had already approved the transfer of his body.

The East is not altogether effete, however; the Colorado Springs boosters had reckoned without the citizens of Sacketts Harbor. Growled Mayor Carl M. Jackson: "General Pike's been buried here for more than a century, and we mean to keep him here. Any attempt to remove the remains of General Pike from the military cemetery here will be resisted by "an armed guard". Mayor Jackson said the cemetery property had been deeded specifically to the village of Sacketts Harbor, and that "Colorado or nobody else had anything to say about it."

Army officials said the Rev. C.W. Harrison of Gainesville, Tex., a great-great-grandson of General Pike, had requested the transfer.

A Watertown, N.Y. (near Sacketts Harbor), historian entered the controversy with a disquieting story of what had happened to Zeb Pike's body. Legend had it that when Pike was killed in the capture of York (now Toronto) by his forces, his body was shipped back to Sacketts Harbor in a hogshead of whiskey. (See note below).

In 1909, the cemetery in which he was buried was moved to another section of the town. Of 130 corpses, only four - not including Zeb Pike's - were positively identified. The historian recalled that among the bodies moved was one apparently submerged in alcohol in a metal casket. The casket's glass top was broken in disinterment, said he, and the body, exposed to the air quickly disintegrated.

Note: A common method of pickling corpses, as late as the 19th century. The body of Admiral Horatio Nelson (British admiral and naval hero, 1758-1805, q.v.), who was killed aboard the "Victory" off Cape Trafalgar, was undressed except for a shirt and jammed into a large, upright cask of brandy. One black and stormy night, the marine guarding the cask noted in terror that its lid was slowing rising. He hurriedly summoned the ship's surgeon, who spoke knowingly of a disengagement of air. Some of the brandy was drawn off from the cask's lower bunghole and it was refilled from the top. The legend that sailors tapped the cask and drank off the brandy is apparently apocryphal.

Well, so much for the Time Magazine report.

On 11 September 1929, the Colonel Archibald Lochry Chapter D.A.R. in Lawrenceburg, Indiana, dedicated a memorial to General Pike at the entrance to Greendale Cemetery. It is a large granite boulder more than six feet high, bearing a bronze table with the inscription, In honor of Brigadier General Zebulon Montgomery Pike, the explorer and discoverer of Pike's Peak, born January 5, 1779, killed at York, Canada, April 27, 1813, in the War of 1812. His father, Colonel Zebulon Pike, was the original owner of the tract of land of the Greendale Cemetery. Colonel Pike's grave in Greendale Cemetery was also suitably marked. (D.A.R. Magazine, 11 Nov. 1929, Vol. 63, p. 684. Photo of marker, p. 683.)

This writer, visited Sacketts Harbor in 1986 with a special visit to the Military Cemetery, located just east of the village on route 75. A most beautiful and serene cemetery. The fence about the cemetery originally bordered England's Buckingham Palace. (Village of Sacketts Harbor tour bulletin.) At the entrance is the memorial stone "To Brig. Gen. Z.M. Pike and his officers. Killed in Battle of York, Upper Canada, April 27, 1813". Among the graves are several burial spots of the unknown dead from that war. 320 Americans (including Gen. Zebulon M. Pike) were killed or wounded by the explosion of the powder magazine, during the Battle of York. About 1,600 troops embarked (22 April) from Sackett's Harbor and raided York (22 April), garrisoned by about 600 British troops. Historians would record in later years, that the burning of the public buildings at York (including the Assembly houses and the residence of the governor - York being the capital of Upper Canada at that time), later gave the British their pretext for burning Washington in 1814.

326. JOHN[7] PIKE, Rev. (John[6], John[5], Robert[4], Robert[3], Major Robert[2], John[1]), son of John and (1st) Nancy (Thurston) Pike. He was born 25 August 1793, Cornish, Maine and died 29 November 1877, Fryeburg, Maine, Ae 84 years, 3 months. Rev. John Pike became a Free-Will Baptist preacher. It is said that he was quite gifted as a preacher.

He married 23 March 1819, Cornish, HANNAH HUBBARD. She was born in 1795, Limington and died 28 November 1881, Fryeburg. (Ref.: Ruth Gray, Ed., Maine Families in 1790, Vol. 3, p. 143ff, Asa Hubbard Family).

Obituary HANNAH (HUBBARD) PIKE, supplied by Robert Taylor: Mrs. Hannah H. Pike died in E. Fryeburg, Me. (1881) after a brief illness, Nov. 28, relict of the late Rev. John Pike, aged 88 years and 11 months. Mrs. Pike (maiden name Hubbard), born in Limington in 1795, was married March 23, 1819. Rev. and Mrs. Pike ever made their home at E. Fryeburg. They worked faithfully together more than 58 years, honored and beloved by all. She was the mother of 5 children. One died in infancy; one, Mrs. R.B. Wentworth, lives in Port Portage, Wis.; another, Mrs. Stephen Gowan, lived in Biddeford, Me.; another, Mrs. Chas. Stearns, in E. Fryeburg. The son, John Pike, resides on the old homestead. The good mother has gone to the home that knows no sadness, and now a second generation rises up in the home she has left, "to call her blessed." The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. J.R. Mason, Pastor of the Cong. church of Fryeburg Village.

Thurston was a short Thurston like his mother and not a long Pike. All short Pikes have their mother's blood, and are not Pikes at all. Thurston was the best of his family, I have heard, a sturdy honest man, the main pillar of the Methodist Church, its deacon, choir leader, and factotum. He married Charity Trafton and resided in Cornish. Laureston Ward Small, Historian, (supplied by Robert Taylor).

328. SAMUEL THURSTON[7] PIKE (John[6], John[5], Robert[4], Robert[3], Major Robert[2], John[1]), son of John and (1st) Nancy (Thurston) Pike. He was born 9 November 1798, Cornish, Maine and died 4 April 1875, Boothbay, Maine, Ae 76 years, 5 months. He died at the residence of his son, Rev. Ezra B. Pike. He was formerly of Hiram.

He married 4 January 1826, (both of Cornish), MARY JEWETT. She was born 28 June 1799, Cornish and died 28 October 1864, Hiram, Ae 65 years.

Deacon Samuel, of Hiram, was also a short Thurston and not a long Pike. On one occasion the deacon had his two godless nephews, David and Ezra, to board with him during a school term, and as he neglected not to look after their religious training, he habitually said a long grace before each meal to the disgust of those hungry boys. Now his wife, the pretty Polly Jewett, had become an invalid and was addicted to Spear's Bitters, and as the bottles were sightly and convenient, she had cleaned one of them, and it was used upon the table for maple syrup. Upon one occasion this unfortunate, pretty Polly Pike accidentally placed a bottle of bitters upon the table instead of the accustomed maple, and the deacon, after a long grace, freely poured the bitters upon his flap-jack and then put a quarter-section into his mouth.

Over the deacon's face flashed a look of alarm, and then that flap-jack flew from his mouth all over the table as though shot from a mortar, followed by a wild whoop of "Hell and Judgement!" in the loudest tone at the deacon's command. Thereafter, as long as those boys remained, the deacon was as meek as Moses and said grace no more, and the boys reveled in ghoulish glee over the deacon's mishap. The deacon had one son, Ezra Pike, who married Lizzie Michell and is now a preacher, I think. (Laureston Ward Small, Historian, supplied by Robert Taylor)

He married 16 August 1826 (both of Cornish), PATIENCE C. AYER. She was born 3 April 1805, Cornish and died 27 May 1883, Cornish.

Wyer C. Pike married Patience Ayer and resided upon the homestead of her father in Cornish. He was tall, never well, thrifty, and much given to quiet and sly fun. They had the following children: (i) Henry Pike, who married Amanda Stone and had a flock of children; (ii) David C. Pike, who married Ellen Bennett and lived upon the homestead and whose youngest boy, Fred Pike, is supervisor of Schools; (iii) Nancy Pike, now Mrs. Fernald of Boston. (Lauriston Ward Small, Historian, supplied by Robert Taylor.)

Simeon Pike proved himself a man of much business ability. Half a century before his death he was one of the leading stage coach drivers following that business for quite a term. Later he conducted a very successful coat manufactory in town.

After his marriage, he remained upon the homestead until near the close of his life, when he became a hotel keeper in the neighboring town, where he died. He was a tall Pike, and every inch of him was loaded with drolleries of a side-splitting kind. His widow ultimately married Joshua D. Small and is still living, being the only one of Uncle John's children by both marriages who has not crossed the river. (Lauriston Ward Small, Historian, supplied by Robert Taylor.)

334. OLIVER MORRILL[7] PIKE (Bennett[6], John[5], Robert[4], Robert[3], Major Robert[2], John[1]), son of Bennett and Dorothy (Morrill) Pike. He was born 30 August 1788, Epping, New Hampshire, and died 16 June 1867, Sebago, Maine, Ae 78 years, 9 months, 16 days.

He married 20 March 1814, Epping, New Hampshire, SARAH "SALLY" DUDLEY PAGE. She was born 10 December 1791, Epping, New Hampshire, the daughter of WILLIAM AND SARAH (DUDLEY) PAGE of Epping. She died 5 May 1876, Sebago. She is buried with her husband in the Pike Cemetery on the Allen Farm, Sebago.

Oliver came to Sebago in 1812 - then part of Baldwin. He was one of the earliest settlers, then a wilderness. He married Sarah "Sally" Page from Epping, N.H. and brought her back to his home on horseback. By his assiduous and persistent toil, during 55 years, he made one of the best farms in the state; raising a family of 7 sons and 3 daughters, all of whom scattered from San Francisco, California to Damariscotta, Me. Later he built a large house near the original dwelling, which in later years was owned by an Allen family.

He represented his town (Baldwin) in the Legislature in 1828-29, and held other positions of trust. He selected his burial place by the side of his infant daughter, (#613) who had 39 years preceded him.

Two of his sons Nathaniel (#608) and Edwin (#610) were lawyers. (Robert Taylor, p. 94.)

Bennett Pike, Esq. was a counsellor and lawyer, first resident member of the bar at Bridgton. He came to Bridgton in 1819.

Bennett was said, by Dr. Thompson and Others, to have been the handsomest man ever raised in Cornish, and as able as handsome. He possessed the broad, deep understanding of his mother, and less coruscating brilliance than some other members of this remarkable family. He won distinction as a lawyer in Bridgton where he settled, and died at the early age of 32. William Pitt Fessenden, of honored memory, was his successor, but not his superior when of equal age. Bennett was born to be a great man. He left four children: Mrs. Noah Thompson, now living in the village; Bennett, who was the best and best-looking boy in school when I was a little fellow, and who married Abbie Small and went to California and died at the age of 32 years, leaving three children; Llewellyn, Luella and Bennett; Mrs. Edward Trafton; and Charles, who was a great wit and died unmarried. (Lauriston Ward Small, Historian, supplied by Robert Taylor, p. 94, no. 3.)

337. WILLIAM BRASBREE[7] PIKE, M.D.

(Bennett[6], John[5], Robert[4], Robert[3], Major Robert[2], John[1]), son of Bennett and (2nd) Hannah (Brasbree) Pike. He was born 21 November 1798, Cornish, Maine and died 24 December 1870, Cornish; Ae 72 years, 1 month, 3 days.

He married 2 July 1829, Parsonsfield, Maine; MARY MERRILL of Parsonsfield, he from Cornish. She was born 23 July 1809, Parsonsfield, Maine. and died 7 May 1876, Cornish; Ae 66 yrs., 9 mos.

William graduated from Bowdoin College and practiced medicine for a time, but his health failing he followed the drug business for the balance of his life. He was a scholar but a little deficient in "horse sense", i.e. like many other scholars he was a better theorist than practical man of business. The Doctor was a poet of no mean order of excellence, and in his young and roguish days wrote several humorous pieces. Upon one occasion a long-legged, cadaverous-looking, disagreeable chap by the name of Bartholomew Jones, came to Cornish and there loudly proclaimed that for $5.00 he would teach any man in a single afternoon to cut his own clothes. He also assumed to be a great beau and gallant. The girls wanted to rid the town of him but could not easily, where-upon the then young Doctor came to their aid with a humorous poem which caused Mr. Jones' immediate flight. It commenced in this wise:

Some weeks ago there came along,
To visit here this busy throng;
With spindle shanks and visage pale,
Holding up high his trade for sale
Bartholomew Jones the tailor.

The Doctor married Mary Morrill and had four children: (i) Martha, who was the best female doctor ever raised in Cornish, and died unmarried; (ii) Ellen; (iii) Achsah, who continues her father's drug business; (iv) Frederick, who graduated from Bowdoin and died soon after. (Lauriston Ward Small, Historian, supplied by Robert Taylor, p. 95, no. 4.)

Dr. William B. Pike and Samuel W. Cole probably did more for certain young people than all the rest of the educated men that ever lived in Cornish. They not only taught gratuitously, but often furnished books, and always encouraged. (Letter from Charles William Pike (8-626), son of Col. John Pike (7-338).)

He married 3 January 1826 (both of Cornish), ELVIRA CHICK. She was born 31 January 1799 and died 1 January 1887, Cornish, Ae 87 years, ll months, 1 day. (Inter. High Road Cemetery, Cornish)

John or Jack, as he was universally called, married Elvira Chick and lived upon the homestead. It has been my fortune to know many men who had reputations as wits, story-tellers and mimes, but I have never seen Jack's equal. He was not a great scholar, but his histrionic powers were marvelous. Beecher, Joe Jefferson and Warren of the Boston Museum are great actors, but I am of the opinion that had Jack possessed opportunities he would have been ever greater. I once saw a diver go down 80 feet in the water of Lake Michigan, and although we could see him no more, we could track his walking about at the bottom by the bubbles which arose from his breathing. So a blind man could always tell where Jack was in a crowd of men by the loud shouts of laughter which arose therefrom. He died in middle life leaving a wife who is yet living at the ripe age of 88 years, and four children: (i) Charles W. who married Sarah Lewis and lived upon the old homestead, and has long been supervisor of schools, and his three children: Vinton, Alvin and Jack - all of whom are lawyers; (ii) Hannah, now Mrs. Benj. Clark; (iii) Bennett, was the best male scholar ever raised in Cornish, and is now an ex-judge in St. Louis; (iv) Albert, unmarried. (Lauriston Ward Small, Historian, supplied by Robert Taylor.)

First of Dudley born in Hebron, March 10, 1734, was named John. He was four years and sixteen days old when his father, Dudley (#202) moved into his log cabin on Pike Hill.

He was a soldier in 1812 and was a Sergeant in Capt. Bodwell's Company. He was named for his uncle John (#203), who settled on Pike Hill, a few years after and northeasterly of his father.

The Timothy Jordan who died some ten years ago (ca. 1880) at Steep Falls, well down on the left of the road, was a brother to his wife.

John Pike purchased a farm of the proprietor on Rust Gore in the south west corner of the town. To reach his farm in those days he went through the southerly Millett neighborhood, down the great Millett hill, past Lombard's mill and so on straight up the rise to the southerly side of Frost

Hill. There, at the end of the road, on a fine ridge of land sloping gently to the south, he lived and died, and his fifth child, Esther Jordan (#635), who married our much respected townsman, Silas E. Hall, represents him today at his old homestead.

The house that John Pike first built on his farm and into which he moved his wife, while the whole country nearly was yet a wilderness, was the first framed house built in that school district. It was of one story with the front door in the center opening into a small entryway, with square rooms at the right and left, while right back of the entryway was the large chimney. The house also had a small addition or ell in the back. (Bradbury, p. 305)

Jordan - Mann - Pike Relationship:

Mercy Jordan, John Pike's wife traced her father's ancestors back to REV. ROBERT JORDAN, who was an Englishman and on her mother's side to the emigrant William Mann.

MERCY[7] JORDAN (Timothy[6], Joseph[5], Jeremiah[4], Jedediah[3], Jedediah[2], Rev. Robert[1]), daughter of Timothy and Esther (Mann) Jordan.

TIMOTHY[6] JORDAN was the son of JOSEPH[5] and ELIZABETH (ROBINSON) JORDAN. He was born 19 October 1767 and died 29 March 1849, Otisfield, Maine. He served in the war of the Revolution; was at Yorktown when Gen. Cornwallis surrendered his army to Gen. Washington. He married ESTHER[6] MANN of Wrentham, Massachusetts. They resided in Otisfield.

JOSEPH[5] JORDAN was the son of JEREMIAH[4] JORDAN. He was born in 1750, at Falmouth, now Cape Elizabeth, Maine. He married (1st) 1765, ELIZABETH ROBINSON; he married (2nd) 1776, MARY STEEL of Scarborough, Maine, she died in Norway, Maine, in 1830. Joseph settled first at Cape Elizabeth, then moved to Gorham, Maine and from Gorham, about 1780, with his whole family, to Norway, Maine, about the same time with his brother Moses. Joseph Jordan had 7 children. (For a continuation of these ancestors see: The Jordan Memorial, family records of the Rev. Robert Jordan and His Descendants in America" by Tristram Frost Jordan.)

REV. SAMUEL[2] MANN, son of WILLIAM[1] and MARY (JARRED) MANN. He married ESTHER WARE, daughter of ROBERT and MARGARET (HUNING) WARE.

WILLIAM[1] MANN married MARY JARRED.

342. WILLIAM[7] PIKE (Dudley[6], Jacob[5], Robert[4], Robert[3], Major Robert[2], John[1]), son of Dudley and Celia (Weston) Pike. He was born 1 December 1785, Paris, Maine and died 11 July 1858.

He married 10 May 1807, NANCY THURSTON of Oxford. She was born 3 April 1783 and died 12 April 1859.

The second of Dudley (202) was born in Paris, 1 Dec. 1785, and was two years and nearly four months old when his father settled on Pike Hill. He was named WILLIAM. He married NANCY THURSTON of Oxford.

His first settlement was on Fore St. in Oxford, just below the covered bridge, where Woodbury Stanton now lives, where he lived some fifteen years. From there he went to the next farm below, the original Lee farm, where the old two-story house now stands. There he remained a few years. He then moved to Norway, halting just below Steep Falls just on the edge of Oxford, where the two roads branch going down. He built the ancient one-story house now standing on the place. Wm.M. Brooks, a well known school teacher and citizen now owns the place.

He had but two acres of land. He was a carpenter and builder, and most of his work was framing and building. In that house he and his wife ended all their days here. He died 8 July 1858.

On turning out his horse one day, as he slipped the halter from his head, the jubilant fellow threw his heels into the air, accidentally striking his owner a heavy blow in the stomach from which he died in a few days. (Bradbury, p. 298.)

William is listed in his father's (Dudley, 6-202) will to receive $20.00.

346. MERCY[7] PIKE (Dudley[6], Jacob[5], Robert[4], Robert[3], Major Robert[2], John[1]), daughter of Dudley and Celia (Weston) Pike. She was born 12 April 1793, Norway, Maine and died 7 February 1860.

She married 10 September 1818, TIMOTHY JORDAN, JR. of Oxford. (Timothy was the brother of Mercy's sister-in-law, her brother John's (7-341) wife, Mercy Jordan. See Jordan Family information under John (7-341).) He was born 18 August 1799 the son of TIMOTHY and ESTHER (MANN) JORDAN. After Mercy's death in 1869, he married (2nd) ABBEY E. FLATBEID of Freeport, Maine; and m. (3rd) NANCY BROWN; daughter of JOSEPH BROWN of Boston.

Timothy Jordan, Jr. traded in Albany two or three years and then moved to the plains of Oxford where the brick house now stands. He lived for many years on that spot in a small one-story house. Afterwards he built a two-story house which was burned before the war. He then moved to the Falls below the village, into the house which stood just on the right going down the hill, and was burned ca. 1880. His wife, Mercy Pike, had died in that house (1806). Jordan afterwards built on the other side of the road further down, where he died some year later. (Bradbury, p. 299ff)

347. NATHANIEL[7] PIKE (Dudley[6], Jacob[5], Robert[4], Robert[3], Major Robert[2], John[1]), son of Dudley and Celia (Weston) Pike. He was born 27 April 1795, Norway, Maine and died 23 May 1877, Norway, Ae 82 yrs. (g/s, Pike Hill Cemetery.)

He married 30 October 1841, LUCY BEARCE of Hebron. She died 29 December 1864. They had no children.

Nathaniel married Lucy when he was forty-six years of age. Lucy was an excellent neighbor, and a good wife, and I have no doubt "Uncle Ned" considered himself fortunate in waiting as he did for her arrival.

He was always known as "Nat". It was his fortune to remain on the old homestead of his father's (Dudley, 7-202) on the Hill, and die at last in the house standing on the place into which his father moved him from the log house, when he was eight years old. (Bradbury, p. 300, no. 118)

348. HENRY[7] PIKE (Dudley[6], Jacob[5], Robert[4], Robert[3], Major Robert[2], John[1]), son of Dudley and Celia (Weston) Pike. He was born 7 February 1797, Norway, Maine and died 2 September 1886.

He married (1st) 26 March 1823 (When Maine was only three years old): ABIGAIL POTTLE. She was born 18 September 1799 and died 22 September 1842 (g/s, Pike Hill Cemetery); the daughter of JONATHAN and SARAH (JENKINS) POTTLE. Jonathan was one of the pioneers to Norway coming from Rochester, New Hampshire. Abigail was a sister to EBEN J. POTTLE.

He married (2nd) 26 June 1843; SARAH FOBES. She was born 11 September 1811, Paris Maine and died 2 September 1881; the daughter of DANIEL and ELSIE (HATHAWAY) FOBES of Paris, Maine.

Henry was born in his father's (Dudley #202) log cabin on the hill, living in it until he was six years old, then going with the family into the great house built in 1803.

He settled on the westerly corner of his father's land toward Ford's Corner. His father, Dudley gave him the land. He put up a large two-story house on the east side of the road, just opposite to James Buck's, and in that house he spent his long life. The old house stands much as he built it, a good sample of the houses built in town. In later years, his daughter, Carrie, the youngest of his children resided there.

Editor Note: Bradbury continues much more about this family, which is worth reading, especially of Henry's relationship with his brother "Nat" (7-347) and tribute to Henry's (7-348) (2nd) wife, Sarah (Fobes) Pike. (Bradbury, p. 300ff)

She married 2 October 1803, BENJAMIN TUCKER. He was born 20 September 1776, Canton, Massachusetts, and died 27 October 1857, Norway, Maine (Inter.: Rustfield Cem.). He was the son of BENJAMIN and JANE (BABCOCK) TUCKER of Milton, Stoughton, later (1801) Canton, Massachusetts. (Bradbury, p. 670).

Benjamin Tucker was the first saddle and harness-maker in town, the grandfather of the present Cyrus S. He came here from Canton, Mass., in 1801 (not 1802 as the History has it). They lived in a large one story house, built in 1802, which stood about where Tubbs' store stood.

I hope to give the history of this man and his descendants later. They have always been prominent in town and village affairs. I only say here, they had fifteen children, nine of whom died early.

Benjamin died Oct. 27, 1857, after which Mary lived with her daughter, Rosilla C. (Morgan), in New Gloucester, where she died Oct. 5, 1859. She then returned to her old home and was laid by the side of her husband in Rústfield Cemetery. (Bradbury, pp. 314, 678)

355. SAMUEL[7] PIKE (John[6], Jacob[5], Robert[4], Robert[3], Major Robert[2], John[1]), son of John and (1st) Mary (Tarbox) Pike. He was born 11 December 1788 (ae 62, Norway Census 1850, Whitman p. 568), and died 20 December 1871.

He married in 1814 or 1815 (just after he returned from the war), SUSAN WOOD of Waterford. She died in September 1856.

When Samuel and Susan (Wood) Pike were first married he kept house about two years in the Stephen Greenleaf house, later and now the Hatch house, just above the Meadow Brook bridge, nearly opposite the tannery. His first child, Prescott was born there. He then moved to Fore St., in Oxford to the old Capt. Lee place. His second child, Harriet, was born there.

After a year or two he went upon a new farm on the southeasterly side of Horse Hill, well down to the feet of the old mountain, where the remainder of his ten children came into the family. While there he was one-third of a mile from the road leading from Webber's to Woodman's not far from the present granite quarry.

About 1840 he moved out upon the road where he lived a short time and where Geo. McAllister later lived.

After two or three other moves, he halted at last on the Lem. Mariner place, just above where the old Wilson tavern stood on Fore St. The farm was later occupied by Twitchell, the well-known hulled corn man.

He died on that farm at the good age of eighty-three years. His wife died Sept. 1856. (Bradbury, (May 1891), p. 315)

Editor Note: The name "Twitchell" appears in the biographical sketch above. HAROLD SETH[10] PIKE's (10-943) daughter, FLORENCE EVELYN[11] PIKE (11-1032) married RAYMOND DONALD TWITCHELL. They resided Norway, Maine in 1988.

After a few years he moved over the pond to the Wm. Knights farm, where Charles Swell Penley resided.

Jacob Pike, the sixth child of John, had a serious impediment in speech. There were many words he could not pronounce. The attempt to do so set up a stammering he could not control. Dollars were "rounders" and potatoes, "murphies", to him all his life. (Bradbury, pp. 318, 329)

Charles Pike was a man of unusual physical vigor and his industry was untiring. He possessed much of that element the moderns call "push" and it always puzzled him to know why others could not work as he worked.

He was temperate, and prompt in the discharge of all duties. He remained on the old farm with his father until he was twenty-nine years of age, living in the house, after his marriage, which his father had built on the upper side of the road opposite his own house.

In 1826, he moved to the town of Freeman, and in 1828 to Kingfield. Up to this time he had been a farmer, but after one year in Kingfield he bought out the trader in that place by the name of Lemuel Bartlett. (Mr. Bartlett died at the Elm House in Norway, ca. 1885) He continued in trade there some twenty-five years, and in 1857 went to Argyle, Wis., where he died twenty years later, on Oct. 5, 1886 at the great age of eighty-nine and a half years. (Bradbury, p. 319)

He was born 21 July 1839, Calais, Maine, and died 21 August 1900, Hingham, Massachusetts *(Inter.: Old Ship's Cem., Lot 116, Sec. D. An eight grave lot. Only James and Mary C. Last recorded in the name of Reginald Robbins) (See obits below.) Dr. James Henry Robbins was the son of JAMES and MARY (PARKMAN) ROBBINS of Calais (g/s).

Dr. James and Mary C. (Pike) did not have children.

Dr. James H. Robbins had married (1st) 16 September 1868, Calais, Maine, LAURA D. DAILEY. She was born in October 1837, St. Stephen, N.B. Canada (Census: 1850, 1860, 1870, Washington Co., Maine). She died 14 December 1875, Machais, Maine (Inter.: Calais Cem.) (Perhaps result of childbirth, as her son, REGINALD LAURAN ROBBINS, was born nine days before her death.) (See obit below.) She was the daughter of ANSEL and MARY ANN DAILEY. (Ansel Dailey was born in 1804, Livermore, Maine. Mary Ann Dailey was born in 1815, St. Stephen, N.B. Canada. Ansel and Mary Ann Dailey had five children (1850 Census). "We are called upon to record the unexpected death of one of our most estimable females, Mrs. Laura Robbins, wife of Dr. J.H. Robbins, and daughter of Mr. Ansel Dailey of this city (Machais). Mrs. Robbins had resided in Machais but a few years since her marriage with the Doctor, but by her social qualities and estimable character she had gained many enduring friends. She was a native of Calais, and her remains were taken there for burial. Our deepest sympathy to her husband and friends."

Ed. Note: It is strange no mention is made in either obituary of her newborn son, Reginald Robbins, born nine days prior to her death.

Six years after the death of his (1st) wife, Dr. Robbins married (2nd), 30 April 1881, Calais, Maine, MARY CAROLINE[8] PIKE.

As stated above: Mary Caroline (Pike) Robbins had no children so there are no descendants of JAMES SHEPHERD[7] PIKE (383).

James H. and Mary Caroline (Pike) Robbins went to Hingham, Massachusetts in 1880, where they built their house in about 1885 (218 Main St.). They were residing at that address when the History of Hingham was written in 1893, Caroline (Pike) Robbins was an ardent and knowledgeable horticulturist and she planted all the trees on the property and laid out a pretty formal garden which still existed in 1993. She also wrote a book entitled, The Rescue of an Old Place, published by Houghton in 1892. It is the story of their home at 218 Main St. The land was the site of the settlement made by the first Cushing Families to come to America which had been sold at auction. Reginald Robbins, James' son by first marriage, inherited the property when his step-mother, Caroline died in 1912, Dr. Robbins having died in 1900. (Source: Ms. Winston I. Hall, Hingham Historical Soc., 5 March 1993.)

Upon the death of James Shepherd Pike's second wife, Elizabeth (Ellicott) Pike, Mary Caroline became the administrator of her father's estate which had not been settled prior to the death of Elizabeth E. Pike, her step-mother and second wife of James S. Pike.

OBIT: Dr. James Henry Robbins. The Hingham Journal, August 25, 1900. - AN EMINENT PHYSICIAN AND HIGHLY RESPECTED CITIZEN REMOVED FROM EARTH - "To the reported death of Dr. James H. Robbins from angina pectoris on Wednesday morning, the community was stunned. It seemed almost impossible that he, whom to outward appearance was well in the flesh but a few days ago, should have so suddenly left us for the eternal rest, and there were many sad hearts in the home circles where, as a faithful minister to their physical ailments, he had been a valued adviser, counselor, restorer and friend. He will be greatly missed, for he performed many kind deeds at the bedside of suffering, and gave unsparingly of his strength and skill, sometimes with no promise of material reward, but only with the consciousness of having performed a duty. His nature was thoroughly sympathetic; his character noble and generous.

Dr. Robbins was the son of James and Mary (Parkman) Robbins, and was born in Calais, Maine, July 22, 1839. He was graduated from Amherst College in the class of 1862, and Harvard Medical School in 1867. In 1880 he came to Hingham, succeeding to the practice of Dr. Charles H. Colburn.

He was twice married, his first wife being Miss Laura D. Dailey of Calais. They were united Sept. 16, 1868. She died at Machias, Dec. 14, 1875. His second marriage was to Miss Mary C. Pike, April 30, 1881, who survived him, together with a son, Reginald, from his first union.

Dr. Robbins was eminently successful as a physician in this town, and at the time of his death had a very lucrative practice.

He was extremely popular with all the physicians along the south shore, and in 1887, seven years after he came to this town, he was elected president of the South Norfolk District Medical Society, a society composed of the leading medical men of both Norfolk and Plymouth counties.

Funeral service will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Old Church."

OBIT: Funeral of Mrs. Mary C. (Pike) Robbins, (2nd) wife of Dr. James Henry Robbins. Hingham Journal, 3 Nov. 1912: "Funeral services were conducted from St. John's Episcopal Church yesterday afternoon by Rev. George F. Weld, pastor of the Church, in memory of Mrs. Robbins, widow of the late James H. Robbins of this town, and mother of Reginald L. Robbins, also formerly of this town. Mrs. Robbins died at the home of her son in Milton." (Ed. Note: Mrs. Robbins was step-mother to Reginald, with whom she lived in Milton, MA.)

By his first wife, Laura D. (Dailey) Robbins, Dr. James H. Robbins had one child: REGINALD LAURAN ROBBINS. He was born 5 December 1875, Machais, Maine, and died 13 February 1955, age 79 (c/r: Acute Myocardial Infraction. Cremated. Inter.: Lot 250A, Pond Ave., Milton Cem., MA. Permit 30597). He married HELEN SPRAGUE SCAIFE. She was born 28 October 1882, Boston, Massachusetts, and died 4 February 1951, age 68 (c/r: Subarachnoid Hemorrhage. Cremated. Inter.: beside husband). She was the daughter of LAURISTON LIVINGSTON and HELEN AMELIA (SPRAGUE) SCAIFE.

Reginald and wife, Helen (Scaife) Robbins later moved to Pocasset, Massachusetts, and later to Milton, Massachusetts where they both died.

Children of Reginald and Helen (Scaife) Robbins: (1) LAURA ROBBINS, b. 11 April 1909. Resided (1993): 14449 Oakglen Dr., N. Largo, FL 34644; (2) JAMES ROBBINS, b. 5 Oct. 1911, Milton, MA; d. 12 Sept. 1986, Pocasset, MA; (3) WALTER SPRAGUE ROBBINS, b. 20 March 1920. Resided (1994): P.O. Box 348, Pocasset, MA 02559.

Although the Robbins, descendants of Reginald, are not related to the Pikes, it was Mary Caroline (Pike) Robbins, who cared for and raised Reginald, her step-son, and was a grandmother to his children.

BARBARA (LEIGHTON) ROBBINS (Mrs. James Robbins) records that Walter Robbins stated: "I am not a blood relative of Mary Pike, since she was my step-grandmother, however, she was the only mother my father ever knew and he always said he couldn't have had a better mother. She instilled in my father (Reginald) a love of poetry and music, as well as, tennis."

LAURA (ROBBINS) LYMAN writes: "I was three years old when Grandmother Robbins died. She was a fine water colorist and a fine writer with a wonderful sense of humor." Laura has some of her paintings.

As stated: although not blood related, there was a certain bond between the two families.

In 1993 Allen Pike compiled a complete research on all known descendants of Dr. James and Laura (Dailey) Robbins and their son, Reginald Lauran and Helen Sprague (Scaife) Robbins. A copy of the research was mailed to all known relatives as well as filed in the following places: (1) Calais Free Library, Calais, ME 04692; (2) Chester Historical Society, 225 High St., West Chester, PA 19380-2691; (3) Hingham Historical Society, P.O. JAMES SHEPHERD PIKE

Dictionary of American Biography of Learned Societies, p. 596 (used by permission):

James Shepherd Pike's parents were among the early settlers of Calais, where his father was conspicuous in town affairs and was instrumental in establishing the first schools (1810). In this, maintained with difficulty through the War of 1812, young James received his only formal education, which he later described as "not worth mentioning." The sudden death of his father in 1818 left the family in straitened circumstances, and, at the age of fourteen, James entered upon a series of business ventures in his native town, first as a clerk, later in a grain and shipping business, and in 1836, as cashier of the short-lived St. Croix Bank.

By 1840 his success in business was such as to permit him to devote himself to the more congenial work of journalism, in which he had already shown an interest by editing the "Boundary Gazette and Calais Advertiser (1835-1836), distinguished for its Whig sympathies and its early advocacy of Harrison for the presidency. Despite his limited education, he had acquired literary taste, a vigorous and picturesque diction, and forceful style. After 1810 he lived during the winter months in Boston, New York, and Washington, becoming actively associated with newspaper work. He became familiarly known through letters signed "J.S.P." As Washington correspondent he described with characteristic vigor and effectiveness the persons and events in Washington during the debates on the compromise measures of 1850; often times embarrassing his editor with his comments.

In 1850 he was the Whig candidate for Congress from the seventh district of the state of Maine in opposition to J.J.D. Fuller. It was not until 10 days after the election that they learned of Fuller's election. In April of 1850 Pike was invited by Horace Greeley to become a regular correspondent of the New York Tribune. He became an associate editor in 1852 and spent most of his time as the Washington Correspondent. His writings at this time are the most interesting of his journalistic achievements, a vivid and colorful description of official Washington during the decade preceding the Civil War. Widely quoted, bitterly attacked or enthusiastically praised, they exerted a profound influence upon public opinion and gave to their author national prominence, first as an uncompromising anti-slavery Whig, and later as an ardent Republican.

When Lincoln was elected to the presidency he named Pike as Minister resident to The Hague; where he served from March 28, 1861 to May 17, 1866.

The remaining years of his life were devoted chiefly to writing, to collecting and publishing his earlier correspondence, and to the attractions of his summer home in Robbinston, Maine.

He died in Calais while enroute from home at Robbinston, Maine, to the South for the winter months. (Dumas Malone, Ed., Dictionary of American Biography, 1934, p. 596. Used by permission.)

One of his great works, especially to the Pike Families, was the publication in 1879 of The New Puritan, New England Two Hundred Years Ago, some account of the Life of Robert Pike (#2). The Puritan who defended the Quakers, resisted clerical domination, and opposed the witchcraft prosecution. (Reprinted: 1989, Parker River Researchers, P.O.Box 86, Newburyport, Mass. 01950).

386. FREDERICK AUGUSTUS[7] PIKE (William[6], Timothy[5], Timothy[4], Moses[3], Major Robert[2], John[1]), son of William and (2nd) Hannah (Shepherd) Pike. He was born 9 December 1817, Calais, Maine and died 2 December 1886, Calais.

He married 6 September 1846, MARY HAYDEN GREEN. She was born in Eastport, Maine, 30 November 1824 and died 15 January 1908, Baltimore, Maryland at the home of her niece, Katherine C. Ousesluys and was interred at Calais, Maine beside her husband. She was the daughter of DEACON ELIJAH DIX and HANNAH CHAFLIN (HAYDEN) GREEN, both of early Puritan stock. Mary H. (Green) Pike was a lady of worth and rare talents, who has been known as a successful author with whom her husband's domestic life has been one of unusual felicity. (Talbort)

Frederick A. Pike was well-known in the political history of the country as an influential member of congress, during the important period of the civil war, as a leading lawyer and a sagacious, enterprising and successful business man. He is often mentioned in Durden's book on his brother, James Shepherd Pike. (Maine Historical Soc., 1890, 2nd Series, Vol. I, p. 225ff.)

OBIT.: The Calais Times, 9 December 1988. Sprague's Journal of Maine History, Vol. XIV, No. 2, p. 93, April-May-June 1926 - FREDERICK "FRED" AUGUSTUS PIKE - The funeral of Frederick A. Pike, whose demise occurred on Wednesday, 2 December 1886 was held at the residence of the demised. The gathering of citizens of Calais and St. Stephen was large, and prominent men from other places were present to pay their last tribute of respect.

Mr. Pike was a graduate from Bowdoin College in 1839. He served as Mayor of Calais in 1852. He read law with Hon. Joseph Granger of Calais and was admitted to the bar of Washington County (1840) and was eight terms a member of the Maine House of Representatives, serving as speaker in 1860. In the same year he was elected, by the Republicans of the fourth Maine district, a representative in Congress, serving on the committee of naval affairs; was re-elected to the 39th Congress, serving as chairman of expenses in the State Department and of the special committee on murders in South Carolina. He was also a member of the national committee appointed to accompany the remains of President Lincoln to Illinois. He was re-elected to the 40th Congress and served on the committee of reconstruction, as well as on his old committees. While in Congress he was an earnest worker for emancipation, and the closing sentence of a speech he made in 1861, "Tax, fight, emancipate," became a watchword of his party. In 1871 he was a member of the Maine Constitutional Convention. In every office he gave credit to his native State and entire satisfaction to his constituents. He returned to the Maine House in 1876 and 1877 was his last appearance in any official employment.

Thus has been removed from the midst of this community the most prominent figure in the history of Calais. So has departed from earthly scenes one of Maine's greatest sons - a man such as it is the honor and pride of America to have produced. Distinguished in every sphere that called forth his splendid abilities, he would have adorned the highest place, had the fortune of events and the exigencies of politics yielded him opportunity.

Ed. Note: A longer biographical sketch on Frederick Augustus Pike was written by George Foster Talbort. (Copy in files: supplied by Robert S. Pike, Jr., 385-14.) It is believed this article may have been printed by the Maine Historical Society, Portland, Maine, as a similar article by Mr. Talbort was printed on Frederick's brother, James Shepherd Pike on 22 December 1885.

MARY HAYDEN (GREEN) PIKE

Mary Hayden Green's girlhood was marked by strong religious influences. At the age of twelve she formally joined the Baptist Church, the immersion being performed after ice had been cut from the river for the occasion. At the Charlestown (Massachusetts) Female Seminary, from which she graduated in 1843, her religious convictions deepened under the leadership of its president, the Rev. William Phillips. Abolitionism soon became a focus for her spiritual energy. Her anti-slavery sentiments were further confirmed by her husband's opinions and by the views of Hannibal Hamlin and James G. Blains (q.v.) intimate family friends. She visited the south where she made direct observations of slavery. Her loss of her only brother in the Civil War intensified her feeling against slavery.

Mary Hayden Pike wrote several books using different pseudonyms: "Mary Langdon", "Sydney A. Story, Jr.", to mention two. Her first novel, Ida May, published in 1854, dealt with the subject of slavery and southern life among the wealthy classes: "a child of wealthy parents who was sold into slavery, "the cruelty of race discrimination in which a quadroon girl is forbidden to marry her betrothed who is a white man," "attempt to truthfully picture the Indian interwoven with a plot of the American Revolution." 60,000 copies of the novel, Ida May, were sold in 18 months. Her other books were: Caste, Bond and Free, and Agnes. (F.A. Pike, obit.)

At the close of her husband's term in Congress, she accompanied him on a trip to Europe.

She was left a considerable estate and lived for nine years with her adopted daughter in Plainfield, N.J. She had become interested in painting and did some creditable landscape canvases. The closing years of her life were spent in retirement and poor health. She lived with her sister in Baltimore and occupied herself in various religious works. (Dumas Malone, "Dictionary of American Biography", p. 597)

JABEZ MARSTON PIKE

Biographical sketch, Jabez Marston Pike, by SUMNER[9] PIKE (see 879 under 8-710) and RONALD[10] PIKE (10-981):

JABEZ MARSTON[7] PIKE was born at Lubec, Maine, August 15, 1824. He was educated in the public schools. His early occupation was fishing and farming. Later he took over his father MOSES' (6-257) store. His was for many years the only meat market in Lubec. He attended the First Christian Church. In politics he was Republican and filled some of the local offices. His first wife was PERSIS ANN RICE who bore him two children, EMILY S.[8] and OLIVIA[8]. He married for the second time DIANA CLARK, daughter of JOSEPH and SUSANNAH SWETT CLARK. JABEZ and DIANA had seven children, including JACOB[8] CLARK, father of Sumner T. Pike, one time member of the Securities & Exchange Commission and later of the Atomic Energy Commission.

DIANA was born at North Lubec, formerly Seward's Neck, 9 January 1822 and died 22 January 1895. Her mother SUSANNAH was the daughter of CAPTAIN DANIEL SWETT of Gilmanton, New Hampshire. He followed the sea and, after his retirement, kept the Swett Tavern in Perry, Maine, a halfway house between Eastport and St. Andrews, New Brunswick. He had married the daughter of JOHN McNEIL who, with his wife and one child, JANE, came to the United States from Londonderry, Ireland, and settled in Machias, Maine. McNEIL served on the Falmouth and was the first man killed in the sea fight between that ship and the Margaretta in 1775 by the first shot fired by the enemy.

Sumner Pike, in the article referred to above, has this to say about his grandfather JABEZ: "He had a club foot which kept him from going to sea like most of the other Pikes, including his brother JAKE[7] (394), a ship's captain who died in Calcutta of cholera. Grandfather was a craggy-faced, barrel-like fellow of some 225 pounds. He wore a fringe of whiskers around his face like Abraham Lincoln, with his upper lip shaven clean. In later years his whiskers were white and his head was bald. He used to wear full-tongued heavy shoes without laces, shapeless pants, a vest that was never buttoned, and light colored cotton shirts, always rolled up to the elbow and collarless. He must have been impervious to the elements, for I never saw him with a coat on. On his head he wore a farmer style straw hat which was always busted in at the crown. Knowing grandfather and the constant state of ill temper in which he simmered, my guess is that he broke the crown of his hats the very first time he jammed them on his head.

Luckily for his children and grandchildren, grandfather, because of his club foot, couldn't move very quickly, but he was a fast man with his whip. You had to step lively to keep out of his way when he was mad, which was most of the time. I don't think I ever heard him use a profane word, but he could put more feeling into ordinary dictionary words than the most accomplished sea captain could get out of an unexpurgated foc'sle vocabulary. "Ye thunder and lightning whelp!" used to be the way he shriveled me when I'd riled him.

Grandfather inherited the store from great-grandfather MOSES[3] (3-22). It was a real, weather-beaten country store, with a potbellied stove and cracker and pickle barrels. Uncle Tom[8] (8-714) - he weighed 400 pounds when well, but sometimes got down to 360 when feeling poorly - later inherited the store from grandfather, and we used to have a wonderful time with the cracker and pickle barrels; also the slabs of cheese that stood on the counter.

Behind the store was a sort of shed built on a slope running down to the bay. That was where grandfather did his butchering. He was in his seventies when I knew him, and I can remember him stunning an ox with a blow of a wooden mallet, then cutting the beast's throat.

He also inherited part of the Pike farm, which was a blind for his later smuggling activities. It was because of his large brood that he started smuggling. With seven children to feed, grandfather had to scratch for a little extra income.

This was along about the time of the Civil War. There was a fantastically high duty on Canadian wool, so grandfather conceived the idea of running in wool from Campobello and mixing it with his own wool. Father, who was about ten, and Uncle By, who was eight, used to row over on foggy nights, muffling the oars by wrapping sacking on the hole pins, and get the wool.

Everything was going fine. On the basis of the number of sheep he had on his farm, grandfather was sending about 300 pounds of wool per sheep to the market. Then one day grandfather got word that a government man was coming over from Machias to see him. Grandfather wasn't sure whether he was somebody from Agriculture, wanting to know about these miraculous new sheep, that yielded 400 pounds of wool per year, or a Treasury man. But he didn't wait to find out. He got on a boat, and set sail for Campobello.

While grandfather was hiding out on Campobello, he had to do something about his brood at home. So he got himself a two wheeled cart and started what we euphemistically called a peddling business. Really it was just a little delivery service from the mainland for the accommodation of the Campobelloans. The only thing possibly irregular about it was that nobody bothered to pay any duty.

Once again father and Uncle By were grandfather's helpers. Grandfather would make the rounds of the villages, mainly Welchpool and Wilson's Beach, and take orders. Then, at a certain time each day, he'd go down to Mulholland Point, where the distance was only about 150 yards over to Lubec, and holler his orders across to father and Uncle By. That way he developed the most renowned set of lungs in Eastern Maine. Father and Uncle By would fill the orders from Great Grandfather Moses' store and row them over to grandfather. If they'd made any mistakes, he'd bend them over the side of the dory and paddle them so their hearing would improve.

This went on for three or four seasons and got to be a pretty good business. Grandfather was anything but a lonely exile, for the family and friends used to organize regular Sunday excursions to picnic with him on Campobello.

Grandfather got tired of being an exile, and when Ulysses S. Grant became President in the Spring of '69, a dicker was arranged that enabled gramp to come back. As I remember, it was a consent order, whereby grandfather made full confession, even unto implicating father and Uncle By, but stated that he repented his sins and wouldn't do it any more. Way later, in 1904, when the post of collector of customs for the Passamaquoddy district, a $3,000-a-year plum, was open, papa was after it. One of his competitors dug up this old confession which theoretically made father a smuggler. Apparently it didn't make much of an impression, for father got the job. Father and Uncle By, as well as grandfather, served in the Maine legislature at various times.

Grandfather had a stroke in the winter of 1901-2 and died in the spring. It was sad. The old boy lay there, very impatient to die. His brain was all right, but he couldn't move, and when he tried to express himself, the wrong words would come out. You could see his deep disgust with the whole business.

No special epitaph was put on grandfather's tombstone, just the name and date.

According to the information I have JABEZ died April 26, 1904.

451-1. AUSTIN FRANKLIN[9] PIKE, son of Uriah and Nancy (Page) Pike, was born 16 October 1819, Hebron, New Hampshire and died 8 October 1886, Franklin, New Hampshire (Inter.: Franklin, NH Cem.), during his second year as U.S. Senator.

He married (1st) 18 August 1846, Andover, Massachusetts, ELIZABETH FARLEY of Andover, Massachusetts. She was born 27 October 1822; d. 11 September 1848; daughter of ISAAC and LOUISA FARLEY.

He married (2nd) 16 December 1850, CAROLINE WHITE (who survived him). She was born 21 October 1822, Warner, New Hampshire. She was the daughter of THOMAS ROWELL and MARY HUNT (MAY) WHITE.

By his own exertions, Austin F. Pike obtained the means to prepare himself at the academics in Plymouth, and in Newbury, Vermont, for entering college in the sophomore class, but the breaking down of his health forbade him to go further. When he reached the age of twenty-two, he began the study of law with GEORGE W. NESMITH of Franklin, and in due time became his partner in practice. They did a very extensive business. Austin was of quick perceptions and sound judgement, of indomitable industry and pluck. He soon took the position of advocate. His methods were direct, logical, and forcible. He won respect for his honesty and his professional attainments, and his high standing.

He was a representative of Franklin in the legislatures of 1850, 1851, and 1852, and again in 1865, in which in later years he was a Speaker. In 1857 and 1858 he was a state senator, and president of the Senate in 1858. He was a delegate to the earliest Republican National Convention (formed in 1856), which nominated JOHN CHARLES FREMONT (1813-90) for the presidency (James Buchanan '1791-1868' was elected President). He served as a member of the Forty-third Congress of the United States, and in 1883 was chosen as a compromise candidate to the United States senatorship, for the term of six years. He lived through little more than half of the period. (Charles H. Bell, The Bench and Bar of New Hampshire, 1894, p. 581. Supplied by: NH Historical Soc.)

An account of his death is recorded in his OBIT (Franklin Transcript, 15 Oct. 1880. Supplied by: Franklin Library): Soon after dinner Friday, Mr. Pike and J.F. Richardson, Road Master of the Northern Division rode up to the farm about a mile above the village to look at some land in which the railroad was interested, and desired to purchase. They talked freely about matters pertaining thereto and Mr. Pike did not even complain of any unusual feeling. They were standing on an embankment which was about 15 feet high and Mr. Pike raised his right hand and pointing out a certain boundary and then raised his left hand to indicate the location of the other. As he did so he sank to the ground. Mr. Richardson's first thought was that his companion intended to take a seat but a moment later as he tipped forward and slipped down the bank he realized that something was wrong. He sprang to his assistance but Mr. Pike only breathed once or twice and passed away without a word or struggle.) (A three column obituary continues in the above quoted paper. Ed. note: An unusual circumstance occurred which brought about this history of Uriah[8] Pike (451) and Austin F. Pike descendants. Carol Cohen was serving on the Board of Elections, Pleasantville, NY in the spring of 1994 when by chance, also on the board was John M. Pike (11-1033). Carol mentioned to John that her daughter-in-law, Beverly Cohen was a descendant of the Pikes. John reported this incident to Allen Pike, this writer, and a telephone relationship began between Carol Cohen in Pleasantville, NY and Beverly Cohen in New Orleans, LA, and several others in NH, which resulted in completing the history on this Pike family.

Beverly J. (Runton) Cohen (451-19) has in her possession a clock with inscription inside: "This clock, formerly owned by James White of Haverhill, Massachusetts, was purchased of the Executor of his daughter Eunice White of Thelford, Vermont by his granddaughter Caroline White Pike, July 4, 1876." The clock was supposed to have been in the family a hundred years.

476. ISAAC[8] PIKE (Moses[7], Daniel[6], Joseph[5], Lt. Joseph[4], Joseph[3], Judge John[2], John[1]), son of Moses and Mary "Polly" (Ball) Pike. He was born 4 April 1799, Cockermouth (now Hebron), New Hampshire and died 14 February 1860.

He married (1st) IRENE "IRENA" DOLE. She died 25 November 1825.

He married (2nd) 27 June 1827, SARAH "SALLY" (MORSE) NOYES, widow of PERSON NOYES of Haverhill, New Hampshire.

For more than a hundred years the fortunes of Pike, New Hampshire rested in the hands of a single family. The Pikes owned a minor empire, a million dollar industry ruled by a landed gentry that resembled a feudal barony more than a business venture. The family, company and town, all "Pike," grew into prosperity and fell into obscurity together.

The Pike Manufacturing Company had its modest beginnings when lumberman Isaac Pike (#476) married the Widow Sarah (Morse) Noyes.

Isaac discovered a top quality sharpening stone among the effects of the late Mr. Noyes, and after investigating its origin, bought the mining rights to a large area of whetstone (mica schist) deposit where the stone had been found. As a village grew up around Pike's whetstone mill on the Oliverian Brook, the railroad routed through this section of East Haverhill naming it Pike Station.

Isaac Pike came to Haverhill about 1818 and began his life's career. The celebrated Scythe Stone was first put on the market in 1823. Isaac was also engaged in farming, lumbering, a general store located at "The Corners" and, also rafted large quantities of lumber and logs down the Connecticut River from Haverhill, N.H. to Hartford, Ct.

He gave the land on which the first church in East Haverhill was built.

He was a Republican in politics, actively interested in town matters but declined office.

When he died his two sons: Alonzo (1836-1891) (476-6) (q.v.) and Edwin Burbank (1845-1908) (476-8) (q.v.) took over the business.

He married (2nd) 10 September 1890, HARRIET D. TROMBLEE of Montpelier, Vermont. She was born in 1865, Port Henry, New York, and died in November 1940.

Edwin Burbank Pike had moved to Salem, Massachusetts as a young man. Upon the death of his father, Isaac (476), he returned to Pike, New Hampshire to act as head salesman for the company. He entered the family business with a will, being credited with building the company into the world's largest manufacturer and distributor of "natural" grit whetstones and boasted: "1100 different abrasive products, a whetstone for every purpose."

Edwin naturally rose to the head of the company when brother, Alonzo (476-6) died in 1891. Now the patriarch of the Pike Family, he was already known as a tyrant and autocrat. His flair for managing other people's lives showed a master stroke when he dictated that all the village houses must be painted yellow and white, "for sunshine and plurity."

Upon his death (1908), the business passed to his son, "Edwin" Bertram Pike (476-32, q.v.). (NH Profiles, April 1972, p. 23ff; Pike Assoc., 1908, p. 22, photo p. 20)

476-32. (EDWIN) BERTRAM[10] PIKE, son of Edwin Burbank and (1st) Addie A. (Miner) Pike. He was born 24 July 1866, Salem, Massachusetts, and died 17 February 1926. He was called "Bertram," not to be confused with his father, "Edwin."

He married 17 February 1911, Birmingham, Alabama, MRS. MAMIE PEARSON RIX of Birmingham; daughter of ROBERT H. and SALLY (HARRISON) PEARSON.

Edwin Bertram Pike was credited with a fine sense of humor, quite different from his father, Edwin Burbank Pike, which would seem necessary after living in his father's shadow. The Pike business under his control thrust the Pike Company into world prominence. Bertram, as he was called (not to be confused with that of his father, Edwin), was deeply involved in legislation for setting up the White Mountain National Forest, and while a member of the 1903 legislature stressed forestry protection bills. Despite his financial interests in various logging and lumber operations, his love of nature helped preserve large areas in a natural state, and later spurred him on to create a forest resort of Lake Tarleton.

By the time his father died, he was president of ten different companies including the traditional whetstone fortune. He was also president of the National Bank of Newbury, Vermont.

A few years after his father's death (1908), at the age of 45 he married the widowed Mamie Pearson Rix, heiress to an Alabama ironworks fortune.

During his reign as head of the Pike Manufacturing Company, the company would reach its peak, boasting in 1920's a million dollars in assets, $300,000 a year in income and several hundred employees. 1911 not only saw the marriage of Bertram to Mamie Rix but the realization of a dream. The White Mountain Proprietors Lake and Forest Club was opened at Lake Tarleton, four miles from Pike, New Hampshire. The club became the exclusive retreat for up to 200 guests, and quickly grew in popularity.

During the early twenties, the town of Pike reached its busiest period. While several hundred townspeople worked at the manufacturing company, more were kept busy transporting all the materials and supplies for the club from the train station to the lake. An air of prosperity followed the "Twin-Six Packards" and "Hudson Super-Sixes" cars as they taxied guests from train to club. A nine-hole golf course was added which doubled as an air strip.

Bertram had sold one-half of the whetstone stock in 1908 to the Norton Company and the company became known as Norton-Pike Company.

The company weathered World War I without permanent damage, and seemed destined for continued prosperity when, on 17 February 1926, Bertram Pike died. Within two months the company offices and records, as well as the company store, were burned to the ground. Rumors of a firebug were fed by the memory of a 1923 fire at the company. Fred Rix, Bertram's step-son took over as the Treasurer of the company and managed to keep the business in operation a few more years. In 1932, the Norton Company stepped in again and bought what was left of the Pike Company and moved the entire operation to Littleton, New Hampshire.

Those who counted themselves lucky in having jobs at the Lake Tarleton Club when the Pike factory closed, were equally desperate for work when the depression helped the club close its doors.

Despite efforts to vitalize the town, the death of Bertram Pike marked the end of an era, and a hundred years of prosperity. Eventually, Mamie Pike and her four children moved away and the Pike mansion was sporadically operated as an Inn. The Lake Tarleton Club passed through several hands and was operated as a private club as a summer hotel with some success for thirty years.

In 1972 (when this article was written), in Pike, New Hampshire, only a lone chimney was left from the once world famous Pike Manufacturing Company. Fire had taken the factory, the "Whetstone Inn," and the "Pike Station" depot. Louis T. Pike, a distant cousin and town postmaster, was the only Pike to remain in the village.

If the ghost of old Edwin Pike still takes his morning ride, he will find his villagers have become commuters, and his namesake is only a telephone exchange, but the oldtimers still remember the days when the Pike Manufacturing Company was at its height and even today (1972) there are still those who swear by their "Indian Pond Red End Scythestones." (NH Profiles, April 1972, p. 24)

Ed. Note: The above quoted article contains much more information on the founding of the Pike Manufacturing Company (q.v) and the Pikes of New Hampshire, as well as photos of the factory, club house and Pike mansion. (Copy in Pike files, supplied by Muriel W. (Day) Abernathy (476-39.)

discouragements, for her father had died (1867) and, as the eldest of six, she was called upon to care for her younger brothers and sisters. However, just before Christmas of 1871, at the age of twenty-two she did enter Western College. She graduated in 1875.

From 1875-80, she was a teacher in Warren County, Pa. From there she went to North Dakota, a missionary to the Indians. She worked with them until 1885 when her health failed. These five years of pioneering among the Indians proved too severe a nervous and physical strain. The following ten years she spent in regaining her health. For three years she acted in the capacity of housekeeper in New Jersey in the home of a friend. She returned to Oxford in 1893, where for two years she carried on a boarding house for Miami students.

While spending a summer in Chautauqua, New York, some ladies influenced her to continue her studies at Knoxville, Tennessee. She graduated there in "Domestic Science Department." In the fall of 1896, twenty years after she graduated, she came back to Western College as head of the Domestic Department, where she supervised the planning and preparation of meals. Each student was required to spend one hour a day in domestic work. The girls were divided into circles: the Bread Circle; the Pie Circle, and the Cake Circle, each responsible for baking for the dining room and for other occasions. She stated that "their bread was famous from Maine to California, and all the way between."

She continued her studies in French, History, a three year course in Bible, and received her credit for Analytic Geometry. After her retirement she continued her study in French, missionary society, the church, the Sunday School, and the Wednesday evening prayer meetings. She stated: "I'll visit the old people who can't get out."

In later years she went to live with her sister Ida Belle (Pike) Barkley (485-6 below). She died 11 March 1936, Clovermead Farm, Bath, Indiana, at the age of eighty seven, six days later she would have been eighty-eight, good pioneering stock. She never married.

Source: Manville and Irene Pike (11-986) adds a sad note to Sohpronia's story. It seems prior to Sophronia's death, she had destroyed all of her papers, much the same way that Clifford Pike's lifetime work was destroyed. Only information on his family is of his son:

536-1. i. ROBERT GORDON[9] PIKE, Hon., b. 28 July 1851, d. 1917. Hon. Robert Gordon Pike was born at Rollinsford, New Hampshire on July 28, 1851, son of Amos W. and Elizabeth M. (Chadbourne) Pike. On the paternal side of his family he descended from John Pike, an immigrant from England who settled in Newbury, Massachusetts in 1635. His great-great grandfather was the Reverend James Pike, the first minister of the parish of Summerworth (in Rollinsford). On his mother's side he descended from Humphrey Chadbourne who came from England to this country in 1631.

Robert Gordon Pike, after attending the common schools in Rollinsford, graduated from Berwick Academy at South Berwick, Maine, in 1868 and then graduated from Dartmouth College in 1872 with a degree in engineering.

He worked for three years in Dover, N.H. and Waltham and Boston, Massachusetts in civil engineering, and then returned to Rollinsford in 1875 and taught school for three years. He was the superintendent of the common schools in Rollinsford from 1877 to 1883.

In 1878, he began the study of law with Hon. Charles Doe who was then the Chief Justice of the New Hampshire Supreme Court and who also lived in Rollinsford. Robert Gordon was admitted to the New Hampshire bar in March of 1881, and in November of 1874, he was admitted to practice law before the federal courts.

After passing the bar he opened his law practice in Dover. He served as the City Attorney form 1887 to 1889. On December 28, 1893, he was appointed Judge of the Strafford County Probate Court.

On April 14, 1896, Honorable Robert Gordon Pike was named Associate Judge of the Supreme Court of the state. The legislature separated this court into a Superior and Supreme Court in 1901. Prior to that time the judges would sit both as Judge of a trial court and on a panel as supreme court.

Robert Gordon Pike was named as a Judge of the Superior Court where he served from 1901 to 1913. At that time (1913) he was named a Chief Justice of the Superior Court, a position he held until he passed away in 1917.

He was trustee at Berwick Academy from 1900, as well as Victor of the Chandler Foundation of Dartmouth College from 1902. During his entire mature life he was keenly interested in the education of young people. He is buried at the Old Cemetery in Rollinsford. (The History of the Town of Rollinsford, N.H., 1623-1973, p. 615)

Of General Albert Pike, like his cousin General Zebulon Pike (#315), much has been written. They had something in common, they were both descendants of John Pike, first in America in 1635. They were both adventurous individuals and sought their fame in the west. As comes to many people, recognition given these two generals came after their deaths: the naming of "Pike's Peak" for Zebulon and high honor given Albert by the Supreme Council, House of the Temple, Washington, D.C.

ALBERT PIKE, Brigadier General

Albert Pike was a teacher, lawyer, orator, poet, editor, author, explorer, soldier, humanitarian, scholar, as well as the worlds best known Freemason, and in each he attained outstanding recognition. He was born in Boston, Massachusetts and soon after his birth the family moved to Byfield, and later moved to Newburyport; where he received his early education and at an academy (forerunner of present day high school) in Framingham, Massachusetts. From 1824, at the age of 15 to 1831 much of his time was spent in teaching and private study; in his spare moments he wrote poetry. He acquired an excellent knowledge of the classics and in his reminiscences he states that he spent a year at Harvard but there is no record of his enrollment there, though in 1859 Harvard conferred upon him the honorary degree of A.M. As a teacher he was connected with schools in Gloucester, Fairhaven, and Newburyport.

Fed up with what he termed "the restraints of New England life," in March 1831, with little money and very definite plans, he started west. Reaching St. Louis by various means of transportation, he then went to Independence, where he joined a party of hunters and traders going to Santa Fe. After some time in that town he accompanied another expedition into the Staked plains, and finally arrived at Fort Smith, Ark., having passed through many hardships and exciting experiences.

He soon became involved in several activities, from teaching school to eventually associate editor of "Arkansas Advocate", and later with some property from his newly married wife, he purchased an interest in the "Advocate". In 1835 he became the sole owner and editor of the paper, which in later years he sold when he was licensed to practice law. In the years that followed he became one of the best informed and most capable lawyers of the Southwest. Through-out this time he continued political and legal summaries of ordinary legal principles, even to being admitted to practice before the United States Supreme Court. He was a stanch Whig in a Democratic stronghold, and later one of the prominent promoters of the "Know-Nothing Party".

His career during the Civil War was an unfortunate one. Although not friendly to slavery and claiming to be opposed to secession except as a last and necessary resource, he cast in his lot with the Confederacy rather than desert his friends and abandon his property.

In the summer or 1861 he was sent as a commissioner to negotiate treaties with the Indian tribes west of the Arkansas River. In this enterprise he was partially successful. Later he was commissioned brigadier-general, and under orders of 22 November 1861, the Indian country west of Arkansas and north of Texas was constituted the department of Indian Territory and he was assigned to command the same. It was his understanding, he claimed, that the Indians recruited would be used only in defense of their own territory. When he was ordered to bring his Indian troops into service against the Yankees (which he did for one winning battle, Pea Ridge), an order which he strongly opposed; he was highly reprimanded and ordered arrested (which was not carried out). Thus, he resigned his commission on 12 July 1862. He continued his writings, most of his grievances, and tried to take back his command, at which time he was arrested 19 November 1862. However, since his resignation had been approved on 5 November 1862 he was released. During this period he wrote several letters to President Davis of what had happened with him and the Indian territory. For several years after the war he was something of a wanderer. His property had been confiscated and he was looked upon with suspicion both in the South and the North. He went to New York in 1865, but fearing arrest on the charge of inciting the Indians to revolt, he fled to Canada. On 30 August 1865, President Johnson (1808-75) (17th President of U.S.) (q.v.) issued an order permitting him to return to his home on condition that he take the oath of allegiance and give his parole or honor that he would conduct himself as a loyal citizen. While so conducting himself he was not to be molested by civil or military authorities. These conditions he fulfilled. He was in Memphis, Tenn. for a time and eventually moved to Washington, D.C. in 1868 where he embarked upon his final venture, which was to bring him fame throughout the world, when he devoted his attention to the interests of Freemasonry. He had a working knowledge of Sanskrit, Hebrew, Greek, Latin, Spanish and French which he put to good use in rewriting of the rituals, a work upon which he was laboriously engaged over a period of many years, resulting in the publication of his "Morals and Dogmas of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry".

He died in the house of the Scottish Rite Temple, Washington, D.C. in his eighty-second year. He had been elected sovereign Grand Commander of the Supreme Grand Council, Southern Jurisdiction of the United States, an office he held for thirty-two years. His final wish "Let my ashes be put around the roots of the two acacia trees in front of the home of the Supreme Council" was not granted. Instead, his funeral with all the pomp of the rites of the lodge were extensive. His body lay in state at the Cathedral of the Scottish Rite in Washington, D.C. as thousands of people filed through the building. He was buried unmarked until 1917 when, as he had requested, a small white marble stone was placed on his grave containing the simple legend:

ALBERT PIKE
Born: December 29, 1809
Died: April 2, 1891
Vixit
Laborum Ejus Superstites Sunt Fructus

(Literal translation might be: "He has lived, the fruits of his labors are his witnesses.")

The Supreme Council, Southern jurisdiction, erected a heroic statue of General Albert Pike in Washington on a reservation designated for the purpose by Congress located at Third Street and Indiana Ave., N.W. This is the only statue in the District of Columbia erected to a Confederate General. (A miniature model of the monument is on display in the "Pike Room", House of the Temple.)

The marriage of Albert and his wife, Mary Anna (Hamilton) was stormy from the start. Especially with Albert away so much of the time with circuit court and later war activities. However, not so stormy it seems, for them to have conceived ten children.

At the time she married Albert, she was a beautiful, rather willful girl of eighteen who had inherited a great deal of property and was accustomed to the carefree plantation life of Arkansas Post.

Her father had died when she was a small child, and she could not remember him, but she had been twelve years old, when her mother and her two older sisters were swept to their deaths in the raging Arkansas River. This experience had so unsettled her that it was to color the rest of her life with a sense of foreboding and disaster. (Duncan, p. 134)

In 1855, to get away from his wife and to attempt to increase his law practice, Albert moved to New Orleans, and his visits with Mary Ann, his wife were very infrequent after that. In 1857 he drew up papers giving her all the lands and furniture and the four household slaves, keeping only his books and a few personal possessions. From that time on, although Mary Ann still bore his name and occupied the mansion in Little Rock, her position as his wife was purely titular. (Duncan, p. 156) She died at the age of sixty: "her mind gone."

Albert Pike's mother was Sarah (Andrews) Pike, a devout Christian woman, beautiful in person and gifted in mind. She was a direct descendant of Lt. John Andrews, of Ipswich, Mass., who was a leader in the effort to resist "taxation without representation" posed by Sir Edmund Andros (1637-1714, q.v.) English colonial governor. (The Masonic Analyst, Sept. 1930, p. 45) (Dumas Malone, Ed., Dictionary of American Biography, p. 593 ff, used by permission)

WILLIAM HENRY HARRISON

WILLIAM HENRY[6] HARRISON (Benjamin[5], Col. Benjamin[4], Benjamin[3], Benjamin[2], Benjamin[1]), son of BENJAMIN[5] and ELIZABETH (BASSETT) HARRISON. He was born 9 February 1773, Berkeley, Virginia, and died 4 April 1841 (pneumonia) at the White House, Washington, D.C. (Buried in Harrison Tomb opposite Congress Green Cem., North Bend, Ohio).

He was one of seven children of Benjamin and Elizabeth (Bassett) Harrison: (1) ELIZABETH[6] HARRISON, b. 1751; (2) ANNE[6] HARRISON, b. 21 May 1752; (3) BENJAMIN[6] HARRISON; (6) SARAH[6] HARRISON, b. 1770; (7) WILLIAM HENRY[6] HARRISON, b. 1773.

His father, Benjamin Harrison (1726-1791), along with his many other offices was a signer of the Declaration of Independence, 4 July 1776. His grandson, BENJAMIN[8] HARRISON (1833-1901), became the twenty-third President of the U.S.A. (Burke: p. 385)

He was inaugurated as 9th President of the United States of America on the east portico of the Capitol, 4 March 1841. He took to his bed with a severe chill on the 27 March and died after only thirty-one days in office. The first president to die in office. His inaugural address, which took an hour and three-quarters to deliver, still holds the record (1975) for length. He wore neither hat nor coat, despite the rigor of the Washington winter, while he read his speech. After this unwise ordeal he attended three balls. He ended the day with a cold; the cold developed into a chill, the chill into pneumonia.

He married 25 November 1795, North Bend, Ohio ANNA "NANCY" TUTHILL SYMMES (in her father's house). She was born 25 July 1775, Morristown, New Jersey, and died 25 February 1864, North Bend, Ohio (Inter.: w/husband). She was the daughter of COL. JOHN CLEVES and (1st) ANNA (TUTHILL) SYMMES (dau. of HENRY TUTHILL) of Southhold, Long Island, New York. Col. John C. Symmes was Chief Justice of New Jersey Supreme Court.

JOHN BROWN PIKE was born at Lawrenceburg, Indiana, November 22, 1827 to James Brown (7-316, q.v.) and Elizabeth (Carberry) Pike. Both of them were children of Revolutionary soldiers. They had come from New Jersey and Pennsylvania first to Ft. Washington located on a hill overlooking Cincinnati and the Ohio River. Cincinnati at this time was only a frontier town of 400 log houses. His father, James Brown Pike (7-316) was the next younger brother of Zebulon Montgomery Pike, who discovered the mountain named for him, Pikes Peak. His grandfather, Colonel Zebulon Pike (6-187, q.v.) had been granted title to land on the banks of the Miami and Ohio Rivers for his service in the Revolutionary and Indian Wars and some of his grandparents on his mother's side had settled on the Kentucky side of the Ohio River. His grandfather (6-187) was said to be the first white settler in Boone Co. Kentucky.

At the outbreak of the Mexican War young John Brown Pike joined the Co.C 4th Indiana Infantry and was with Gen. Winfield Scott (1786-1866), Commander of the U.S. Army in Mexico, at the conquest of Monterey after which they were withdrawn and shipped to the conquest of Vera Cruz. From there they advanced against and captured the City of Mexico, 14 September 1847.

Immediately following the War with Mexico (1846-48) and the discovery of gold in California, the Pike families began their trek westward. Some joined covered wagon trains from St. Louis to Oregon and California, but John Brown Pike and his father, James Brown Pike and their families came down the Ohio River and up the Mississippi to Burlington and across the prairies to Jefferson, Wapello and Mahaska counties in Iowa.

At the outbreak of the Civil War, he and a group of men from these countries taking their own horses rode to Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, where they became a part of the 4th Iowa Cavalry organized November 23 to December 26, 1861. His Regiment served through the War, but on account of a break in his health he was transferred to the Marine Corps through the siege of Vicksburg and until the end of the War. His wife, Eliza Frazier, who he had married in the early 50's and who had battled through the war period with a family of small children, died in March 1864, Kirkville, Iowa.

He was married again, 2 December 1866, at Hopkins, Missouri to Ann Eliza Hull and as carpenter, wagon maker, millwright, he took up life at Braddyville, Iowa. While his general health had been weakened by his war service, he never liked the idea of being a pensioner on the Government. His Congressman, Major John F. Lacey made out and brought him the papers which he signed granting him a pension of $8.00 per month for his service in the Mexican War, and this was increased from time to time to the end of his life January 28, 1910 and extended to his widow to August 8, 1930.

Anxious to overcome the handicap of broken health and his to gain a competence in his later years, he, at the age of 77 years filed a claim on 160 acres of land in western South Dakota and assisted in building his own house (shack) and lived there with his wife until they where able to make final proof and receive a Government patent for the same. This he later sold to help ease the burden of their declining years. He departed his life from their humble home in Kirkville, Iowa, where they had reared their family to maturity and was laid to rest near his father and mother, James Brown (7-316 q.v.) and Elizabeth Carberry Pike who had come to Iowa with him in 1848 from Lawrenceburg, Indiana. (Pike Family Assoc., 1956-1958, p. 29)

581. ANDERSON GAGE[8] PIKE (James Brown[7], Zebulon[6], James[5], Zebulon[4], Judge John[3], John[2], John[1]), son of James Brown and Elizabeth (Carberry) Pike. He was born 13 January 1830, Lawrenceburg. Indiana, and died 2 December 1899.

He married 14 February 1861, Kirkville, Iowa, HANNAH FENTON. She was born 19 November 1840 and died 28 January 1887, Morrison, Colorado.

585. JOHN THURSTON[8] PIKE (Job K.[7], John[6], John[5], Robert[4], Robert[3], Major Robert[2], John[1]), son of Job K. and (1st) Mary (Buck) Pike. He was born 12 October 1820, Fryeburg, Maine and died 21 April 1882, Lyndon (Caribou), Maine.

He married (1st) 18 May 1846, AMANDA M. HALL. She was born 26 November 1823 and died 30 December 1877, Lyndon (Caribou) Maine.

He married (2nd) 26 October 1879, by C.B. Roberts, Caribou, Maine, NANCY F. (WALKER) WASHBURN. She was born 12 April 1830 and died 27 June 1894. She was divorced (October 1879) from SYLVESTER WASHBURN.

John Thurston and (1st) Amanda (Hall) Pike are interred Evergreen Cemetery, Caribou, Maine, (Northeast front lot facing main road with large "Pike" stone) Nancy F. (Walker-Washburn) Pike, his 2nd wife is not buried in this lot. May be in a Washburn lot.

John T. Pike's diary-journal once in the possession of Elizabeth June Pike (which this editor has read) were willed upon her death (1988) to the Caribou Historical Society, Caribou, Maine.

One diary begins 2 November 1849, believed to have been started by John Thurston Pike (#585). The last entries, which includes the listing of J.T. Pike's death in 1882 is of different handwriting, believed to be his son, Job Knight Pike (#787).

According to his diary, John Thurston Pike arrived in Letter "H" on 2 November 1949 (the date his diary begins). The town which was called "Lyndon" and later "Caribou" is a double lot. The early northern part was called Letter "I" or "Forestville" and the southern part Letter "H" called "Lyndon". An early map shows that "Lyndon" had a post office.

From John's journal we learn that he had been approved for teaching school in Denmark, Maine on 26 November 1839, a small town slightly south of Fryeburg, Maine where he was born. His diary also often mentions his visiting in Letter "B", which would be west of Houlton in Ludlow, Maine area. It is interesting to note these early visitations as much of lot Letter "B" was owned by J.B. Madigan Estates. They were big early developers in Maine. It was Albert Madigan that purchased Hiram Pike's farm at Bailey Mitchell Bridge in 1892. (Hiram Pike being the grandfather of this editor, Allen Pike)

John Thurston was an active member of the Masonic Trinity Lodge No. 130, Presque Isle, Maine on 14 March 1873.

Milton Lufkin writing in a column for the Aroostook Republican, Caribou, Maine wrote (Microfilm: Caribou Public Library): "John T. Pike of another (other than Hiram Pike) Pike Family came from Oxford County with Harvey Ormsby of Fryeburg in 1849. They assisted Ivory and Jacob Hardison in erecting his log house. Pike took up Lot 75 in Lyndon. I do not remember him, but his son, Job T. was for a lifetime Caribou's cabinet maker, saw filer and household appliance man par excellence."

Ruth Keech Whittier also mentions John T. Pike in her book Reminiscences of Other Days. This is an excellent book about early days in Caribou, Maine. (Caribou Historical Society) (Family records and Pike Diaries. Caribou Historical Soc., Caribou, ME)

586. ASA OSGOOD[8] PIKE (Job K.[7], John[6], John[5], Robert[4], Robert[3], Major Robert[2], John[1]), son of Job K. and (1st) Mary (Buck) Pike. He was born 25 November 1822, E. Fryeburg, Maine and died 19 April 1888, Fryeburg, Maine, ("Congestion of the lungs - disease of the heart").

He married in 1843, HARRIET WARREN. She died 27 May 1904; the daughter of SILAS WARREN ESQ. Both interred: Pine Grove Cemetery.

The Pike Family of Cornish came from Durham, New Hampshire.

In 1860, Asa Osgood Pike built the large brick mansion in East Fryeburg, which he occupied many years as a dwelling, post office, store and semi-hotel. Here he laid the foundation for an ample competence, which by hard work and superior business capacities he early secured. In 1874 he came with his family to this village and purchased the Oxford House, which he and his son remodelled and greatly enlarged. They ran the house very successfully eight years, and more recently it was leased to another party, till it was destroyed by fire, Feb. 14, 1887. It was Mr. Pike's plan and wish to rebuild a fine hotel on the pleasant site of the old inn, which had been a welcome resort for the tourist and traveler since the first settlement of the town. He had been a Trial Justice nearly forty years, and has been honored by his townsmen with positions of trust on frequent occasions. At the time of his death he was an assessor of the Village Corporation, president of the Fryeburg Horse Railroad, member of the Main Board of Agriculture, and president of the West Oxford Agricultural Society. Without exaggeration, it may be said that Mr. Pike has been a very useful man in Fryeburg village, and that the enterprises that have quickened the pulse of Fryeburg's business life during the past decade, if not the direct result of his push and public spirit, have, at least, received from it very solid and material aid.

He was for several years a noted school-teacher, and a prominent farmer in E. Fryeburg. From 1864 to 1874-5, he also carried on a large business in trade and lumber operations.

He was often addressed as "The Squire".

He shall be missed at our social gatherings, our public meetings, our business enterprises will all miss him.

The funeral services, to be conducted by the Revs. Stone and Livingston, will take place at the Cong'l church, under charge of the Masonic Fraternity.

She was the daughter of THOMAS[6] and DORCAS (LOWELL) LADD. It is assumed they were divorced, although after much research, no records have been obtained to support this assumption. Perhaps it is as Bradbury (p. 305) states: "Hiram's wife Sarah proved to be poor help in his family and just up and left." Whatever happened, Sarah would have disappeared prior to 1844 when Hiram married second time. (See further information: Hiram's biography below.)

HIRAM M. PIKE
1809-1887

Compiled by Allen R. Pike:

Hiram Pike was born 18 October 1809, Norway, Maine in the house which his father, John Pike (7-341, q.v.) had built on Rust Gore in the southwest corner of the town. He would share the home life of the farm with his nine brothers and sisters. His grandfather, Dudley Pike (6-202, p. 85, q.v.) was one of the first pioneers to cross from New Hampshire into Maine and build the family homestead on Pike's Hill. His mother, Mercy (Jordon) Pike (7-341) traced her paternal ancestors back to Rev. Robert Jordan, an Englishman, who arrived in America about the same time as Hiram's grandfather, John Pike, in 1635. On her mother's side she traced her family to that early emigrant, William Mann.

As a young boy he attended the local school and no doubt worked on the farm as did all young boys of his age. His father had built the first house in the school district. He certainly knew his grandparents, Dudley and Celia (Weston) Pike, and spent happy days in the big house on Pike's Hill. He would have been twenty nine years of age when his grandfather died (1838).

By this time, Hiram had already left Norway, for perhaps "greater adventure, most likely for employment" as he was married in Bangor, Maine, 4 December 1832, at the age of 23. In later years, it would appear, he was not a successful farmer, but like many of his descendants, would be a successful carpenter.

The first records we have of Hiram Pike is his marriage to Sarah Ladd on 4 December 1832 in Bangor, Maine. The marriage had been publicized on 20 November 1832. Hiram's residence is listed as Bangor and Sarah's residence is listed as Bucksport, Maine. (Record of Marriage, State of Maine, City of Bangor, copy: 8 January 1979.)

SARAH[7] LADD (Thomas[6], Simeon[5], Paul[4], Nathaniel[3], Nathaniel[2], Daniel[1]), was the daughter of THOMAS[6] LADD of Nottingham, New Hampshire and DORCAS (LOWELL) LADD (Lowells in America, No. 13(XI), p. 667) of Winthrop, Orrington and Bucksport, Maine (Ladd Family Memoir, p. 23). Sarah could trace her paternal ancestors back to DANIEL[1] LADD who arrived in America and was living in Ipswich, Massachusetts in 1693, later in Salisbury and in Haverhill, New Hampshire in 1693 (Stackpole, p. 471). A descendant of emigrant Daniel Ladd later wrote: God sifted a whole nation that He might send choice grain over into this wilderness. Of this grain was 'that Daniel Ladd' from whom we are descended. He came here in the prime of his youth, and for sixty years thereafter labored, trusting in God and fearing nothing, neither labor, nor cold, nor privation, nor savage enemies, so that he might help to build up, on these rough shores, a better England than he had left behind. (Ladd Memoir, p. 471).

Although there is in the literature considerable references to Hiram and Sarah (Ladd) Pike's marriage and their children, it is nevertheless unfortunate that this writer through personal research and the employment of a professional genealogist, has been unable to determine the exact date of birth and what happened to her after the last accounting in Norway, Maine in 1840 (Maine Archives: 1840 Census, Norway, Oxford Co., Me). Credit must be given to Anna Cora (Killmon) Swindell (Mrs. George Benson Swindell) (817-3), Sarah Elizabeth (Pike) Barickman, q.v.) for her earlier research on the Pike Family and especially for Sarah (Ladd) Pike, when she too was unable to find what happened to Sarah.

Lapham (p. 488) mentions Hiram Pike as married to Sarah Ladd.

Jordan (p. 369) lists Hiram Pike as m. (1st) 23 Jan. 1832 (m/c 4 Dec. 1832), at Bucksport, Sarah, dau. of Thomas Ladd, who d. in Boston, Mass.; m. (2nd) 25 Sept. 1844 (m/c correct) Charlotte Knowles, dau. of Henry Knowles of Trenton; res. Bangor and Portland.

Ladd lists a Sarah Ladd (#1088, p. 73) as daughter of Thomas Ladd of Nortingham, N.H. Since no birth dates are given for these children, it is assumed that Sarah is out of place in the listing and that she should be one of the first children. Based upon census reports (Maine Census: Orrington 1810; Bucksport 1820; Bucksport 1830) and listings in genealogical references, this writer would place Thomas Ladd as follows:

THOMAS[6] LADD (Simeon[5], Paul[4], Nathaniel[3], Nathaniel[2], Daniel[1]), son of SIMEON[5] and LIZZA (HINES) LADD of Nottingham, N.H. He was born ca. 1782, Nottingham, N.H. (Listed: 1810 Census Orrington, Me. 1 male 25-45) may have died prior to 1830 (not listed in Bucksport, Me. 1830 census).

He married 1 December 1803, Bucksport, Me. DORCAS LOWELL, b. ca 1785 (Orrington, Me. census 1810, 1 age 16-25); d. 15 April 1864 (Inter.: Riverview Cem., Bucksport, ME); dau. of ABNER LOWELL and 2nd marriage (Lowell: p. 666 and p. 667, No 13,XI). In 1850, Dorcas (Lowell) Ladd listed as age 53 (Bucksport Census 1850).

Hiram married Sarah Ladd. About the time he married his wife, his father, John (7-341) built a new house and having no further use of the old one gave it to Hiram. He also gave him a strip of land off the easterly, or northeasterly side of his farm and moved the old house upon it and set him up in housekeeping (1832). Hiram's wife, Sarah proved to be poor help in his family. Hiram was a carpenter by trade and a very excellent one. He went several years to Calif., was in N.Y. a few years and later came to Portland, where he died. (Bradbury, p. 305)

The next records we have of Hiram Pike is that he sold property in Bangor on 3 July 1835 to Edmund Hall. This would have been three years after his marriage. If they ever lived on the farm in Norway, given to him by his father, it would have been a short time. Hiram is listed as a trader and house wright (Deeds: Penobscot Co., Vol. 59, p. 521). The property had been purchased in 1833.

Hiram and Sarah Pike sold to Edmund Hall of Frankfort, yeoman: Lot of land situate in Bangor...thence running east one hundred and thirty two feet to land belonging to heirs of Richard Pike..being the same lot I purchased of Philip Coombs 5 October 1833.

Ed. Note: In signing this deed Sarah only made her mark. Her mark is witnessed by Philip Coombs. Her name written by Simeon Treadwell.

Ed. Note: It is interesting to note that the names Richard Pike, Philip Coombs appear further in the Penobscot Co. Probate Records (p. 175). Richard Pike of Newbury, Massachusetts estate was administered May 1828 - land in Sebec and Bangor - for minor children: Elizabeth Ann ae 12 y, Mary Boardman ae 20 y, John ae 15 y. Petition signed by Mary Pike, Sarah J. Pike, James Morse, Benjamin Wyatt, Philip Coombs (2:151, 8:448). Richard Pike supposedly b. ca. 1768; d. 2 June 1827, son of John and Martha Pike (V/R Newbury, Mass., p. 694 Vol. 2).)

While holding this property 1833-1835, a son Hiram (9-816), was born to Hiram and Sarah, 4 July 1834, Bangor, Maine (V/R: Norway, Me. Records of Births, and Deaths). Hiram Pike is listed in 1834 as "joiner, at George Soule's" (1834 Bangor City Dir. George Soule is listed: "laborer, h centre, east side".)

Shortly after Hiram and Sarah sold the property in Bangor they must have moved to Frankfort, Maine. On 5 January 1836, Hiram owned land in Frankfort, Maine. On this date he sold for $200, a lot of land in Frankfort to Jeremiah Holmes (Lot No. 8, Main Street. Waldo Co Deeds: Vol 22, p. 249.) Then we find them back in Bangor area, when on 15 February 1836 a daughter, Sarah Elizabeth Pike was born. Then on 3 December 1837, they were back in Frankfort when Dorcas Amanda Pike was born.

The family is listed in the 1840 Norway census (R.K. 405-4-6 (307) 1700-1892, Norway, Me. Maine Archives, Augusta, Me.):

1 Male under 5 yrs under 10 (Hiram, Jr., b. 1834)
1 Male 30 yrs under 40 (Hiram, Sr., b. 1809)
2 Females under 5 yrs (Sarah, b. 1836; Dorcas, b. 1837)
1 Female 20 yrs under 40 (Sarah, mother: b. 1809)

The only census records found listing the family by names is in 1843. (v/r: Norway, Maine. Copied by this writer from original handwritten copy, Town Hall, Norway). This information was recorded by parents in 1843 after a fire on 4 January 1843 which destroyed the town records. We assume that the father, Hiram recorded or had recorded his and his children's names, place and date of birth. The name of the mother, Sarah Pike is not listed, so we may assume she had already left the family.

Within three years 11 March 1840, after the birth of Dorcas Amanda Pike in Frankfort, Hiram returned to Norway and sold 120 acres of land to Seth Pike (8-633, q.v.), his brother, who had inherited the Dudley homestead. (Lib 59 p. 165 & 166, Oxford Co, South Paris, Me.). This probably was the land given to Hiram by his father.

The next record on Hiram is his (2nd) marriage, 20 September 1844, Dracut, Massachusetts to Charlotte[7] Knowles (m/c Dracut, Mass. in writer's files).

Charlotte Knowles (Henry[6], Henry[5], Deac. Thomas[4], Edward[3], John[2], Richard[1]), was born 26 September 1819, Eden (Today: Bar Harbor), the 7th child of Henry and Rebecca (Kettle) Knowles of Trenton, Maine.

Henry Knowles, Charlotte's father, went to Mount Desert, Me. with his father when about five years old. Said to be "of Eden" at time of his marriage. He was a farmer and lived on the homestead at Hull's Cove, Bar Harbor (Hufbauer, p. 112). Charlotte Knowles traced her ancestors back to Richard Knowles: b. 1637. (Well documented in Virginia Knowles Hufbauer: Descendants of Richard Knowles.)

Hiram again begins his ventures as he and Charlotte begin their marriage. They go to Brooklyn, New York, where Hiram seeks employment in the Brooklyn shipyards. Their first two children are born there: Samuel Higby Pike (9-819), b. 20 May 1845 and James Henry Pike (9-820), b. 29 July 1849.

Shortly, after the boys are born the family moved back to Maine. On 10 September 1851, Hiram Pike of Scarborough, Maine bought land from John M. Staples (Deeds: Cumberland Co: 235/549). He sold it to Ameyle A. Thurston 28 April 1854 for $200. 10 Acres. (Lib: 520/252)

Ed. Note: A Mary E. Brooker, d. 11 Dec. 1897 Ae 74 yrs. 8 mos. was daughter of Hugh Staples who married Hannah Connant. Thus, a connection between Hiram Pike and John W. Staples, from whom Hiram purchased the Scaroborough property. Mary E. Booker was originally interred in the Hiram Pike lot (Lot 225J, Evergreen Cem., Portland) but removed to another location, perhaps to a Staples lot.)

The next child, Ida L. Pike (9-821) was b. ca. 1852; d. 20 Oct. 1891 (g/s, Evergreen Cem.)

1870 Portland census:

Hiram Pike, age 60 yrs., carpenter (Ed. note: he was born 1809)
Charlotte Pike, age 50 yrs., keeping house (b. 1819)
Issue:
James H. Pike, age 20 yrs. (b. 1848)
Frederick F. Pike, age 16 yrs. (b. ca. 1854)
Eugene M. Pike, age 11 yrs. (b. 1859)

Samuel Higby Pike had married 15 Feb. 1879 and not at this address. Ida L. Pike had married 6 Jan. 1869 was probably living in Scarborough with husband Freeman S. Sanborn, as he died there 22 April 1881.

This accounts for their five children.

In the 1880 Portland census (p. 359D and 360A), 291 Portland St., Portland only the following are listed:

Hiram Pike, age 70 carpenter
Charlotte, his wife age 60, keeping house
Eugene M. age 21, his son - Druggist
David Crockett (black), age 30, brick maker, born Virginia

Hiram Pike died 8 July 1887 (V/R, City of Portland, Augusta Archives) Ae 77 yrs., 9 mos. (Bowels) and is interned in the George Dow lot (Lot 225J) next to his daughter Ida (Pike) (Sanborn) Dow.

Charlotte (Knowles) Pike died 11 January 1893, Ae 72 and is buried next to Hiram in the George Dow lot.

Ida, their daughter and her (2nd) husband, George Dow took care of the old folks and had them buried in their lot, Evergreen Cemetery, Portland, Maine.

In the same lot are stones for Pike children:

Ernest C. Pike, d. 4 July 1881, ae 16 mos.

Ethel Maud Pike, d. 3 Sept. 1882, ae 7 mos.

These two children are believed to be those of Frederick A. and Esther A. (Sylvester ?) Pike. Although the stones are in this lot they are not listed in the cemetery records as being in this lot. The cemetery records indicate they are buried in lot 94N which belongs to Esther A. Pike, who supposedly m. (2nd) a Sylvester.

Also in the George Dow lot (225J) is Isabel D. Dow, d. 27 Feb. 1918 ae 52 (2nd wife). Also a Sarah A. Eldridge, d. 8 Jan. 1900 ae 67, surely a mother of one of the others.

It is also interesting to note, if in fact Charlotte (Knowles) Pike was married (1st) to Leonard Curtis and had children, especially if one daughter Melinda married Moses Josselyn. A Moses F. Josselyn d. 7 Oct. 1897, ae 69 is buried in Lot 223J, in the same section at the George Dow lot (225J), where Charlotte and Hiram Pike are buried. This might indicate some connection between Charlotte Pike and her (1st) marriage and the Josselyn Family. Also in the Josselyn lot are two children: Abbie Carol Josselyn, d. 16 Sept. 1861, ae 4 wks. and Herbert Josselyn, d. 29 March 1861, ae 5 yrs. There is no Melinda. There are three other Josselyn lots: V-227, R-340, and R-437, according to cemetery records. (They have not been researched.)

632. CELIA ANN[8] PIKE (John[7], Dudley[6], Jacob[5], Robert[4], Robert[3], Major Robert[2], John[1]), daughter of John and Mercy (Jordan) Pike. She was born 3 December 1811, Norway, Maine and died in December 1883, Norway.

She married in 1834, Norway, Maine, CEPHAS SAMPSON. He was born 30 November 1811 and died in February 1867, ae 56 yrs. He was the son of WILLIS SAMPSON, the pioneer.

Celia Ann was named for two aunts of hers, sisters of her father (7-341), one of whom was born eleven years and the other ten years before she came into her father's house, and both of whom died young (i.e. Celia Pike: b. 3 Feb. 1800; d. same day; and Celia Pike: b. 6 Dec. 1801; d. 5 Nov. 1804.).

She married Cephas Sampson, the well known "Captain" of the name through all the Forties. He was the son of Willis Sampson, the pioneer, who settled in about 1805 on a small farm taken from the original John Parson's farm, three-fourths of a mile southerly from Ford's Corner. Cephas took his wife home and there they lived and died. The place was later occupied by Charles Gammon.

Cephas was born Nov. 30, 1811, just three days before the little girl Celia Ann whom he made his wife in about 1834, when they both were twenty-three years old.

Cephas Sampson was as straight as an arrow, quick at repartee, very rapid in speech, with a tendency to stutter, which he generally managed to overcome fairly well. He owned the piece of low land, through which a small stream travels south, on the old Waterford road beyond Dea Perry's. It was then called Sampson's meadow and was a favorite resort in the Forties for little boys with fish hooks.

He was a live, ambitious man. He was a carpenter and builder and had a good reputation as a farmer.

He framed the Elm House when it was enlarged, the original Academy building in the village also the Dension building, later the Noyes drug store. He died Feb. 1867, aged fifty-five years.

His wife, Celia Ann (Pike) Sampson died Dec. 1883, aged seventy-two years. The last two years of her life were spent with her daughter, Mercy Maria Martin (632-3), in Waterford.

Sampson was chosen Ensign of South Company, Sept. 13, 1832, and on April 20, 1836, was chosen Captain, hence his title ever after. (Bradbury, p. 306ff)

Children of Cephas and Celia Ann (Pike) Sampson:

632-6. vi. WINSLOW F.[9] SAMPSON, b. 12 Sept. 1843.

Bradbury was a school teacher in district No. 6 in those far away years of '49 and '50 and he well remembers the countenance and the names of five of this family among his scholars: Luther, Nathaniel, Mercy, John Willis and Winslow. Luther was tall and slim, Nathaniel considerably shorter, Mercy shy and timid and very quiet, while the other two were but little fellows. One of these last had two thumbs upon one hand but whether it was John Willis or Winslow, he could not recall. The extra member was of no special use and I imagined when he became older he would have had it removed. (Bradbury, p. 306ff)

632-7. vii. AUGUSTUS[9] SAMPSON, b. July 1845; d. May 1847.

632-8. viii. OTIS[9] SAMPSON, b. 17 Dec. 1846; m. FANNIE HARMON of Scarboro. When she died he m. (2nd) wife from Essex, MA, where he resided.

633. SETH B.[8] PIKE (John[7], Dudley[6], Jacob[5], Robert[4], Robert[3], Major Robert[2], John[1]), son of John and Mercy (Jordan) Pike. He was born 5 December 1814, Norway, Maine and died 3 October 1886, Norway (g/s, Pike Hill Cem., "Father").

He married 23 May 1844, Harrison, Maine, POLLY W. BRACKETT. She was born 15 August 1820, Harrison, Maine and died 28 June 1895, Norway, Maine (g/s, Pike Hill Cem). She was the daughter of WALTER and CELESTA (WIGHT) BRACKETT of Raymond, Maine. (Walter Brackett was born 7 April 1796, Westbrook, Maine. Celesta (Wight) Brackett was born 26 October 1794 and died 19 February 1875. She was the daughter of DR. JOSEPH and OLIVE (MANN) WIGHT.)

Walter Brackett settled on his father's farm near Caswell's Corners, Harrison and was a respected citizen. (Bradbury, p. 307)

Seth Pike was named for his uncle SETH (1791-1813), who died on 22 May 1813, at Burlington, Vt., while a member of Captain Bodwell's Company.

When first married they lived about three years in the Cyrus Cobb house near his father's. In 1873, they moved to Stewart's Corner in Harrison near Ryefield bridge, the first house on the right beyond the bridge going west. He was there but a short time when he moved to Oxford on the Allen Hill on a farm. Was there about two years. From Allen Hill he went to Mason, where he was on a farm nine years - then on a farm on Sandy River about five years.

Like many another Norwayian who wandered from the town, he returned again in 1865 and made his final home in this world on his grandfather's old farm, on the top of Pike Hill. There he lived just twenty-one years. He modernized the old house, improving its appearance very materially. He also became much interested in repairs upon the fence surrounding the old "graveyard" where so many of his kith and kin had been laid away to sleep. He built it all over new upon the street and hung a new gate, it being his very last work in this world. He immediately sickened and died and was the first traveller to pass through on his way to his final rest.

Village people will remember him as a prominent and very pleasant speaker in the Reform Temperance movement. (Bradbury, p. 307)

Bradbury stated (p. 308):

Nathaniel, I have no doubt was named for his mother's uncle, Nathaniel Pike (1795-1877). Some years ago they moved to Walla Walla, and later to Portland, Or., where he has been a stirring man of business - cashier of bank, agent for steamboat companies and as broker buying and selling real estate in that growing country.

Early in the winter (1890) his wife's health, which had been poor a long time, failed so rapidly they thought it well to try the beautiful climate of southern California at Pasadena. But the change in her very feeble condition proved of no avail and she sank rapidly and died amid the flowers of that summer land on Feb. 5, 1891.

Mr. Hall carried her back with him to Walla Walla, where their home had been and friends were and laid her away to rest, and returned once more to his business in Portland, Oregon.

On March 21st (1891), he wrote his friends here (Norway) from that city, giving the impression that though he was far from well, still he was much as usual and attending to business. But on March 20 (1891), nine days after the letter was written and only a day or two after it was received here, word came by telegraph to the old home under the southerly border of Frost Hill that he too, the oldest child of the family had closed up all labors and would be laid by the side of his wife at Walla Walla.

He was in the service during the war three years, and holds honorable discharges from the 1st, 10th and 19th Maine Rgts. He has been in every state in the Union. His travels include: 1868, Panama, where he ran a locomotive across the Isthmus daily for about a year; Lima, Peru; San Francisco, arriving in that city to be an eye witness of the great financial panic and miner's riot of 1876; thence to Sacramento; Mormon city of Salt Lake; Aspinwall, Port Limon, Costa Rica, where he ran a locomotive, drawing trains of about a dozen cars loaded entirely with coffee and bananas; Gulf of Vera Cruz; finally settling in West Minot, at the age of fifty-three (1891). (Bradbury (excerpts), p. 302)

She married (2nd) 24 September 1886, WOODBURY STANTON, the well-known farmer just below the covered bridge on Fore St. in Oxford.

Willis Farrington Works of Oxford was a capable, stirring business man, quick in thought, correct, upright, and exceedingly companionable.

Soon after the war when the European and North American Railroad extended its line up to Penobscot and so east to the New Brunswick line and to St. John, he became connected with it as baggage master and later as conductor. In those capacities he gave entire satisfaction to the Company.

Needing a reliable and trustworthy man as depot master at Vanceboro, where the road enters the Queen's Dominions, he was selected, going there in 1872, and for several years and until his death, he added greatly to the life and building up of the place.

He performed the parts of depot master, postmaster, and express agent, and was always "on time" with his duties.

He died suddenly on March 27, 1880.

Bradbury further recalls: I had known him well for some years and had learned to greatly respect and esteem him. We always met with a cordial greeting, and with what words we spoke of the ways of the world we were in and the progress we were making through it, and always separated with a cheery good bye when we parted. And I had learned to feel that wherever we were, whether we met again or no this side the eventful journey, we were friends always. So when the sad news came that he had gone on ahead with no time to say farewell, it seemed that much sunshine had gone from the world, and that other country seemed nearer for his having gone into it.

Like so many others of the old friends, death brought him home again, and so after visiting the upper church in our village and silently saying good bye to such friends as came, we carried him towards the east and laid him at rest in Norway's Pine Grove.

One morning in the twilight o'er the city,
There came an icy breath:
My friend had passed beyond my love and pity
The border land of death.

When first married they lived awhile in Oxford, later in Norway, then a Bangor, and when he as stationed at Vanceboro they went to housekeeping at that place. (Bradbury, p. 220)

JABEZ MARSTON PIKE, JR.

By Ronald Pike (10-981):

Jabez Marston Pike, Jr. was born at Lubec, Maine 30 June 1863. He was educated in the public schools. Later he took over his father's, Jabez M. Pike (7-402), store on the waterfront. He attended the First Christian Church where he taught Sunday School for many years.

He married Mary Harmon Parker (b. 18 May 1865) on 14 Jan. 1885 in Lubec, Maine. Her father Isaac Parker was a well known sea captain. They lived in a large brown and white trim house on the top of the hill next to the church. I recall twin umbrella trees beside the front walk.

Jabez, called "Tom" was an interesting character. He not only ran the store, but was postmaster of Lubec for many years and for a time the Post Office (I recall it well) was in the same building (Pike Building) on Water Street. He was a large man - and as I remember him he couldn't walk except with two canes, he was so heavy. He was around 450 lbs. when he died. It was the first funeral I recall. The casket was very big and heavy and part of the front door jam had to be removed so they could get it in and out (I've often wondered why they didn't tip it sideways!!). Anyway - he loved sports - encouraged us to play them all. We would visit every so often. I can see him now sitting in the big stuffed morris chair by the bay window. From there he could see Lubec Narrows and watch ships coming up the Lubec through the channel. I remember a riddle he taught us - the name of a Biblical King - 500 begins it - 500 ends it, 5 in the middle is seen. The 1st of all letters and first of all numbers has taken their places between!! -- I think the first Joe Louis - Max Schmelling fight was in 1938. Me, Ros (Ronald's twin brother) and Jabez listened to it on his radio. He was mad as a hatter when Louis lost in the 13th!! I loved this old gent. He was kind to kids and animals - but as you can see by the stories no one could cross him. He ruled his home with an iron hand. Mary (Parker) Pike, Grammy Pike was a timid little woman who didn't have much to say - as some of my stories will relate. They are both buried in Lubec, Maine. He died in 1939, she in 1943.

I recall often eating in their kitchen at the Lubec house. He'd come to the table - slowly with canes - sit and start piling on the food. I recall one dinner, bacon and potatoes, etc. There was so much pepper on the potatoes, you couldn't see they were white. He loved the fat scraps off the bacon - would chew it with relish. He always tucked a white napkin in his shirt front and let it hang over his belly!! It was great ("Bruce, your dad has the striking clock that was in their kitchen.")

Stories told to Ronald M. Pike (10-981) by Clifton M. Pike (10-979):

Jabez always called his wife "Molly", her real name was Mary. He was the only one who called her by that nickname. She called him "Tom"! Jabez really didn't get large, or huge, until passed fifty years of age.

Clifton recalls when the old homestead, where Grampy and Grammy Pike lived, had kerosene lamps. Their two boys Harold (9-888), Clifton's father, and Roscoe (9-889), my father, chipped in and had the house wired for electricity. Grampy Pike was too stubborn and didn't want to spend the money.

Jabez used to be the Post Master in Lubec. In the early morning between six and six-thirty he would drive the horse and wagon down to the wharf to pick up the mail bags brought in by boat. One morning as he backed the wagon onto the wharf he wasn't watching what he was doing and backed right over the edge. The wagon was very heavy and he, the wagon and the horse ended up in the ocean! The wagon and horse sank and the horse drowned. Grampy was so full of fat that he floated and somehow paddled around to the steps leading up the side of the wharf where some people helped him out, I guess he was as mad as a hatter.

Uncle Harold (9-888), Jabez' son, had a "Chandler" car, he would take Jabez on rides to the Post Office and the store. Jabez usually sat on the front seat since it was easier for him to get in and out that way. Well, this one time he decided to sit in the back seat. On returning home and trying to get out of the back seat, Jabez slipped and got stuck in the car door frame. Being so big, he couldn't move! Uncle Harold pulled from the front and Clifton tried to lift from the back. After about fifteen minutes they finally extracted him!

Jabez was a very stubborn man. One day Clifton (#979) was trying to open a 100 lb. bag of sugar by pulling the string at the top of the bag. But the string wouldn't unravel so Clifton took out his jackknife to cut it. Grampy Pike laid into Clifton telling him what a pudding head he was, etc.

Well, Clifton used his knife anyway. Then Grampy Pike told Clifton that he had better shape up. Clifton got upset at his point and told Grampy Pike off, rather disrespectfully, and then walked off. Uncle Harold talked to Grampy Pike to try and smooth things over, but for four months Grampy never spoke to Clifton when he drove him back and forth to the store. He had been insulted by a young whipper snapper who had reminded him that he was a huge man that couldn't even walk without help. Finally, Uncle Harold convinced him to start talking to Clifton again. He sure was a stubborn old character!

Clifton remembers when my Mama and Pa, Jabez' second son, got married. They left for their honeymoon in Pa's Sedan Model T car. I can still remember that car sitting in our garage when I was a little boy. When Mama and Pa were first married they lived in a house on North Street, Calsia, Maine. Mama had a small garden out by the back door. When Clifton came to visit he remembers going out to pick lettuce for sandwiches. Clifton thought a lot of Mama and said she was a real doll.

Stories told to Ronald M. Pike by "Tippy" Green: 3 June 1977 during a visit to Lubec:

"Tippy" was 16 or 17 when he worked in the Pike store. One of his duties was to haul Jabez back and forth from his house on the hill to the store. One winter evening Tippy was helping Jabez out of the pung (a small buckboard wagon or sled) and Jabez slipped and went down. Tippy couldn't budge him. He tried though, at Jabez' insistence, and Jabez pulled so hard on Tippy's shirt it tore right off his back. So there was Tippy in the freezing cold naked to the waist. Jabez said, "Now Tallow Head, what are we going to do?" Well, Tippy unhitched the horse from the pung, had Jabez hold on the whipple-tree, and had the horse pull for all he was worth. The old horse came through and Jabez finally made it into the house.

One spring Jabez had pneumonia. He lost some weight while he was sick. Tippy remembers when he came back down to the store for the first time that he went out back and stepped on the meat scales. He was really mad when he only weighed 356 pounds!

Tippy worked for Uncle Harold (#888) also when he took over. He was the one who taught Roscoe and me how to drive the old blue Chevy Delivery truck. After Uncle Harold died in 1945 and the store closed, Tippy opened a luncheonette across the way on Water Street. As of this time in 1981 the luncheonette is still going strong, if one can say that anything is going strong in Lubec!

JOB K. and LILLIAN (HARRIS) PIKE

Biographical information compiled by Allen Pike:

Job K. Pike continued the diary that his father, John Thurston Pike (8-585) had written. (1992: Caribou Historical Society). Job was born in Fryeburg, Maine; married in Malden, Massachusetts; and migrated to northern Maine in 1879 and settled on a farm on the Caribou-Presque Isle Road in the Mayesville area. In later years the family moved into the Village of Caribou and resided on Pleasant and Fenderson Streets. In later years the farm was owned by H.T. Fletcher. Job became a well-known cabinet maker. In his diaries he often refers to visiting Number 13 (unidentified at this writing). Before the towns were given a name they were often referred to by number or letter, i.e. originally Caribou was called "Letter H" later "Lyndon" and in about 1877 called "Caribou".

It is interesting to note that in Job's diary he often refers to the Rideout Family. Ellen Rideout (b. 3 Feb. 1842) was often a guest at Job's home. Her brother, Lt. James E. Rideout (b. ca. 1838) is also mentioned. Their sister, Caroline M. Rideout (b. 11 Nov. 1844) married Hiram Pike, Jr. (Allen Pike's grandfather) on 6 Sept. 1862. This is the first time that the two families of Hiram Pike, Jr. (Allen's grandfather) and Job K. Pike (June Pike's grandfather) come together in this genealogy. Allen and June Pike were classmates at Caribou High School and never knew their relationship until Allen started searching the families. (Elizabeth "June" Pike, #995, q.v.)

Lillian C. (Harris) Pike was the fourth and last child of Capt. Thomas W. and Bessie M. (Loring) Harris and traced her ancestors to Fred Loring, born in 1780 and Rhodia Moody, born in 1786. (See following information: Moody-Loring-Harris-Pike Families.) In the same June Pike Collection are two "Muster Rolls" of Capt. Thomas W. Harris' Co. "F", 25th Infantry. In these records Lillian Harris Pike is listed as "later of Mayesville".

Aroostook Republican, 13 March 1924, p. 13:

J.K. Pike's entire lot of carpenter tools and machines will be on sale at his home on Fenderson Street all day Wednesday, March 19th.

Obituary: Aroostook Republican, Caribou, ME, 2 September 1924:

JOB K. PIKE, one of Caribou's oldest and most highly respected citizens, died at his home on Fenderson street Tuesday of last week. He has been in failing health for several years, and for the past eight months has been confined to his bed. The immediate cause of his death, however was pneumonia, which developed the Friday before his demise.

Mr. Job Pike was born in Fryeburg, ME, in 1849 and was the second son of John T. and Amanda Pike, who were among the early settlers of this town. When a small boy he came to Caribou with his parents, settled on the farm on the Presque Isle road, now owned by Mr. H.T. Fletcher. In 1874 he was married to Miss Lillian Harris of Maysville, who with four children survive him. Mr. Pike was a great lover of music and played several instruments. He was a good mechanic and for years conducted a repair shop on South Main Street. He was extremely fond of children, and one of his greatest delights in his declining years was to hear the innocent prattle of childhood.

Funeral services were held at his late home, Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, Rev. E.A. Trites of the Baptist church officiating. A duet was sung by Mrs. Perely Merrithew and Mrs. Wm. Thomas.

The deceased was a consistent member of the Baptist church. He was an honest, upright citizen, and commanded the respect of all, and in his demise the town has lost a valuable citizen.

Mr. Pike leaves to mourn their loss besides his wife, four children, Mrs. Bessie P. McWethy and Arthur Pike of Liverpool, NY; Harold T. Pike of Duntown and Miss Alma Pike of this town, who have the sympathy of their many friends.

Obituary: Aroostook Republican, Caribou, ME, May 1926:

LILLIAN PIKE. Mrs. Pike was born in Gloucester, Maine, on October 3, 1855. Her girlhood years were passed in Maysville, and on March 2, 1874, she married Job K. Pike, at that time a resident of Malden, Mass. In 1879 they moved to Caribou, which has since been their home.

Mrs. Pike was for many years a devoted member and an earnest, consistent worker of the Baptist church in Caribou. From the time of its organization, through all the years of her Christian life, until hindered by ill health, the welfare, growth in spirituality and strength of the church was always upon her heart and she spared no effort to promote its helpfulness and influences for good to all.

Faithful in attendance at the prayer room, her presence was always an inspiration to others. In the women's work, both in missionary effort and all work of the church, her judgement and discretion in guidance was of inestimable value. Her life was a living testimony of faith in Christ, sober and faithful in all things, ready to admonish and direct the younger women to Godly living and constancy in faith and charity.

Of her it is fitting to say. "She hath done what she could." To her, "The day has come, not gone; the sun has risen not set, her life is now beyond the reach of death and change, not ended but begun."

She died May 19, 1926, at the age of 70 years. Funeral services were held at her home on May 22, the Rev. C.E. Young of Hallowell, Maine, who for many years was pastor of the Caribou Baptist church, officiating. A wealth of lovely flowers bore mute testimony of the respect, love and sympathy of many friends.

"The Sweet, Bye and Bye," "Asleep in Jesus," and "We're Going Home," all hymns which she loved, were beautifully sung by the United Baptist Male Quartet, composed of Eugene Hale, Clyde Morgan, Warren Ellingwood and James Miller, with Mrs. Louise Kidney at the piano.

We rejoice in our assurance that what seems from this side of the mists that blind us here, to the death, is, to those passing, only the realization of perfect and eternal Life and Love.

Job K. Pike, her husband of 50 years died in 1924. She is survived by two daughters: Bessie L. McWethy of Liverpool, NY; Alma L. Pike of Caribou; two sons: Arthur W. Pike of Liverpool, NY and Harold T. Pike of Caribou. Interment, Caribou Evergreen Cemetery.

HIRAM M. PIKE, JR.

Compiled by Allen Pike from conversation with his father, Eugene H. Pike and records from Aunts and Uncles, cousins and V/R Augusta and Norway, Maine, as well as "Rideouts in America" by Golda Rideout Soffee and "Merritt Family" supplied by Hilda Merritt MacBay. (Rideout and Merritt Families as pertaining to Pike Family has been compiled by Allen Pike. q/v Pike files.) Rev. Charles R. Upton, husband of Hiram's daughter, Addie (1869-1939) in searching information on the Pike Family, wrote an interesting report on his findings from which several quotes are used.

Hiram M. Pike, Jr. was born on Independence Hill, Bangor, Maine, 4 July, 1835 (Obit. Aroostook Republican, 13 Feb. 1908) when his father owned property between 1833-1835. His father was listed in City Directory as "joiner, at George Soule's". (His birthdate is also listed in the V/R, Norway, Maine as well as census of 1843, V/R Augusta, ME Norway.)

When he was about eight years of age, his mother, Sarah (Ladd) Pike up and left the family. (Bradbury, p. 305.) (No further records have been found on Sarah (Ladd) Pike after census of 1840.) Hiram's sister, Sarah Elizabeth Pike went to live with her uncle, John Jordan Pike (8-636, q.v.). Hiram and his younger sister, Dorcas Amanda "Mary" Pike stayed with their grandfather, John Pike (7-343, q.v.). (Hiram, ae 13 and Amanda, ae 12.

Norway Census, 1850, p. 574. Living with grandfather, John Pike.) There, Hiram attended the public schools and worked on the farm as most young men did in those days.

In the meantime his father, Hiram, Sr., had remarried on 25 September 1844, Charlotte Knowles and they resided for a time in Brooklyn, New York before returning to Portland, Maine. There is no further reference to Hiram, Jr. and his father and step-mother having much relationship other than perhaps Hiram, Jr.'s frequent visit to relatives in Portland.

When he was about eighteen years of age (Rev. Upton), in 1852, he went to Boston, and more specifically, Chelsea, a suburb of Boston. There he worked for his uncle, John Jordan Pike (8-636, q.v.) where his sister, Sarah, was living. His uncle owned several "hacks" and had an office in Haymarket Square, a famous square in Boston. (This uncle was ancestor of Kenneth B. Pike (10-947) with whom Allen Pike corresponded.) Rev. Upton writes: Young Hiram was employed as a "hack driver", the equivalent to our modern "taxi" except it was drawn by horses rather than horsepower engines. There were no electric cars, buses or subways for quick transportation. As the different railways were pleased to come into the great city of Boston, each one built its own station. There was at one time five different railway stations. As some were quite remote from the others, and there was no connecting tracks, a passenger arriving on one line and desiring to continue his journey on another line, he was quite likely to make use of the "hack" to cross the city. Of course people desiring to visit homes at the edge of the city or the city proper made use of the "hacks". So the hack driver, such as our modern "taxi driver," vied for the trade. It was a common sight, at train time to see several men gathered at the side of the station where the train would stop. Huddled behind a white line on the platform, as the passengers alighted from the train. Passengers were urgently importuned by the assembled drivers to make sure of the particular vehicle - which you can be sure "was the fastest in the city!" This scene might have been seen even years later and even when horse cars had begun to run at regular times. Of such a company doubtless the young Hiram was a daily member.

Blanche Pike (Morgan) (10-927), Hiram's daughter, many years later related to her daughters that her father, when in Chelsea, also drove a horse drawn hearse. She remembers hearing her father tell how they would always light a cigar before going into a house where there had been a death thinking it would kill any germs they might be exposed too. (This remark was passed down as Blanche's husband, Clyde Morgan, was an undertaker and always smoked a cigar.)

Hiram still owned land in Norway for on 6 January 1857, when twenty-three years of age he sold to David Flood, for the sum of $500.00, thirty acres of land. (Since no record has been found of his purchasing the land, it may be assumed it may have been the land which his grandfather, John, had given to his father when Hiram, Sr. was first married.) (Libre 111, p. 238, South Paris, V/R. Copy in the Pike files.)

At about this time several of the folks from southwester Maine, i.e. Norway, Cornish, were migrating to northern Maine to take advantage of the land grants and perhaps "seeking their fortune - not in gold - but in land." Hiram, Jr. was one of these folks. He arrived in Lyndon - then called "Letter H" and later Caribou, in 1860. (Obit. Aroostook Republican, 13 Feb. 1908).

He became acquainted with the Rideout Family which had settled in the Presque Isle area. Here Hiram met Caroline Mary Rideout and they were married in Grand Falls, N.B., Canada on 6 September 1862, he being ten years older than she. She was the daughter of Edward Winslow and Ellen Nora (O'Leary) Rideout of Presque Isle, Maine.

The Rideout family had originally resided in New Castle, New Brunswick, Canada where the first five children were born. Edward W. Rideout moved the family to Presque Isle in about 1845, shortly after Caroline was born. In Presque Isle five other children were born. (Soffee, p. 105) The Rideouts traced their family back to Abraham Rideout (b. ca. 1685, England.) Abraham first settled in Haverhill, N.H. where he is listed as "scrivener" (writer) for the County of Essex, province of ye Mass. Bay Co., in New England (Soffee, p. 12). Later they moved to Falmouth (now Portland), Maine. His descendants in later years settled in New Castle and Mangerville, N.B., Canada. In the late 1800's we find families in southeastern Maine, i.e. Calais, Bath, Kennebunkport, Bucksport and later in northern Maine, i.e. Bridgewater, Blaine and Presque Isle, Maine areas. Several families had moved to New Hampshire, Vermont, Ohio, Indiana and Iowa.

Dorothy (Morgan) Barnes (10-927), daughter of Blanche (Pike) Morgan passed on a family folklore. An interesting legend concerning Mary (Sutton) Rideout (1779-), wife of William Rideout (1776-1866) grandparents of Caroline Mary Rideout (Pike). The story handed down from relatives was that Mary (Sutton) Rideout was a direct descendent of a Lady-in-waiting to a Queen of England. She ran away and was married to a forbidden lover (which would have been William Rideout) and was disinherited.

In later years Milton T. Lufkin wrote: Caroline Rideout was sister to Lieut. James Rideout of the 15th Maine, and she had a sister named Ellen Rideout. They often visited the Lufkin home. She was a cousin of my cousins and like Ellen Dwinel Sawin, seemed a member of our family. I like to look back to those middle-aged women who could sit down and tell you something. It was to them I owe my appreciation for maturity. My sisters grew up with Hiram's first family - I with the second. Only a few days ago a letter from my nephew told of being pulled out of a deep hole in the Caribou Stream by Annie Pike, almost 75 years ago. Just below the Bailey Mitchell's Bridge.

The Civil War had broken out and a call issued for volunteers for the army. The first call, for a "three months" period was soon followed by a second call for "nine months" and a third call was almost immediately issued for "the duration of the war". Even President Lincoln did not think the war would last very long.

Hiram was one of the first to answer an early call. The fact that his wife's brother, James Elbert Rideout (Soffee, p. 155) was a lieutenant in the 15th Maine, may have had some influence on his "joining-up". Three days after his marriage, Hiram was mustered into Co. "F", 26th Infantry Regiment, as a private, at Bangor, Maine, 11 September 1862 for "nine months" service.

He was soon on his way to the Southland. He was in several severe struggles, but escaped injury. A poem "A Welcome to the Twenty-Sixth Maine Infantry" delivered by Pastor Felix at their reunion, Hampden, Maine, Tuesday, August 17th 1897 gives an excellent account of the activities of the 26th Maine Infantry. Also a newspaper clipping dated 1897 (paper unknown) listing the "Muster Roll" of Co. "F" 26th Maine Regt. recorded Hiram Pike's name. (Collection: Blanche Pike Morgan. Pike Files.)

Although he escaped injury, his discharge certificates state that he ended up in a hospital where he "left sick at Mound City, Illinois, 2 August 1863. (Mound City is located on the tip of Illinois on the Kentucky border.) His service certificate states: Living in Lyndon, Maine; 28 years of age: 5 feet, 8½ inches tall; light complexion, blue eyes, brown hair; occupation: carpenter. Discharged: Mound City, Ill. August 2, 1863, "left sick" (Maine Adjutant, Augusta, ME Copy in files.) He had completed his "nine months service" but was then under orders for "duration of the war".

Rev. Upton in later years would write: After discharge from the hospital it was his personal torture to find his own way and means home. To a young man, ill and homesick, Maine must have seemed a long way from Illinois in 1863. How fortunate Hiram was to escape the torture of surgery. Hospitals were not equal to the demands for which conditions warranted, viewed by today's standards, but the best for the times. Doctors were not fully trained, nurses were not prepared, aides few and not fitted for the work they were supposed to do. In the hospitals such as they were, the attendants were not sympathetic, hardened by the sufferings of the soldiers committed to their care. Of course food, when and as it could be prepared was served badly. Many of the modern methods of preparing and preserving foods was unknown in those days. Sanitation conditions were the very worse. Good drinking water often was not to be had and what was at hand was limited in quantity. When a man was able to get out of the cot and outside the hospital tent to the water pail unaided, he was thought fitted for duty or if unfitted for future war service he could be discharged. It was his responsibility to find his way home. Field surgery was always rapid, hurriedly done, unnecessarily painful, and often fatal. Of this young Hiram escaped.

From such surroundings and prospects young Hiram was mustered out 17 August 1863 and returned to civilian life.

In search of work perhaps through connections of relatives in Portland, we find Hiram and Caroline there in 1864 when their first son, Sylvester Washburn Pike was born 24 November 1864. (V/R, Augusta, ME)

In 1866, they were back in Caribou when two other children were born: Melinda "Minnie" Josselyn Pike, 1 March 1866, and Judson Bird Pike, 1 September 1867. Hiram, following the steps of his father, had learned the trade of a carpenter and "joiner" and continued this occupation. (A "joiner" was a very special carpenter who made specific articles of woodwork: stairs, windows, doors, etc. items necessary for the finishing of buildings which were fastly being constructed.)

A further reference to Hiram's carpentry ability is mentioned by Milton T. Lufkin. Both of the Pikes, Hiram and John T. (1820-1882, No. 585, q.v.), Sylvester, Hiram's son, and Luke Smith helped to build our first Union Meeting House. Hiram also built four covered bridges that outlived him. It is well to add here, Lufkin's further remarks: The "Master Builder" as "Hi" introduced himself. "A Milton York b'God!" Best front door and two prettiest girls in town. Hiram had five daughters: two by his first marriage - "Minnie" and Addie; and three by his second marriage - Annie, Blanche and Jennie. So take your pick. They are all beauties! The meeting house to which Lufkin referred was no doubt the Lyndon Meeting House Association built in 1867. For many years the church was occupied by all the denominations in the town. Later it became the first Universalist Parish of Caribou (p. 19, Vol. 1, No. 1, Aroostook, a Miniature Journal, Caribou Historical Society.) (This was the church which in later years, Allen Pike's grandparents, Maurice and Elnora Russell would belong and Allen, as a young teenager sang solos.)

About this time 1869, Hiram applied for and obtained a pension from the government for his war service. Pensions were paid at the rate of $2.00 per week for time served. From Ruth Whittier's "Reminiscences of Other Days", page 100: A soldier's family received from the state the princely sum of .50¢ per week for each dependent while their husband and father was gone and many a poor mother put her brood to bed with flour, gruel, or porridge, for want of nothing better to eat. Hiram received a bonus of $900. With this money he secured a farm in what was called section Number 14, which later became the Town of Woodland. (Woodland was incorporated 5 March 1880. However, many folks lived their prior to that time. q.v. "One Hundred and Fifteen Years in Woodland: 1861-1976. Published: Woodland Bicentennial Committee.)

Hiram's children, Eugene and Blanche would relate that the farm was originally known as the "Elisha Brown Place" located on the Brown Road. However, this cannot officially be verified as the town records which were kept at the "Maccabbe Hall", Colby siding, burned in a fire 13 June 1949 and all the records except for one book were destroyed. This was prior to sending vital records to Augusta, Maine.

On this farm was born their third child, Addie Evelyn Pike, 18 August 1869. His children have reported that he didn't keep the farm for long. With what little money they were able to secure for the farm, Hiram stocked and owned a furniture store in the Village of Caribou. This was not to be a success either, possibly, he allowed the salesmen to stock it and the result was not such goods as the times and location would justify.

Two more children were born in Caribou and both died in infancy: Lucinda, 10 September 1871 and Edward, 1874. Caroline (Rideout) Pike, their mother died six days after Edward, 13 June 1874, we assume from childbirth. She was twenty-nine years of age.

Hiram now found himself with four young children; Sylvester, the oldest, being eight years of age. After the mother's death, the father had the children boarded with relatives and various families; one family was an Allen Family. The Allen's resided in back of High Street - back of what was the Tuttle Homestead. (The Tuttle Homestead was located across from the Caribou Baptist Church, which in later years was demolished and a filling station built on the site.)

It was not surprising that Hiram found a second wife. In 1890 he married Clara Alice Merritt of Grand Falls, N.B., Canada. She was born 12 March 1861. Hiram was then 45 years of age and Clara was 19; she being twenty-six years younger and only three years older than Hiram's oldest child, Sylvester.

Clara A. Merritt was the daughter of William and Mary (Rideout) Merritt. They were farmers at "Argosy", Grand Falls. She traced her family back to Henry Merritt who was born in 1783, England and died in Grand Falls, 7 October 1866. Clara's brother, Albert John Merritt (1867-1955) inherited the Merritt homestead at Argosy and it was to this home that the relatives of the Rideouts and Merritts would gather each summer for the big family reunions. Hiram's two wives were distant cousins both descending from Nicholas (1738-1833) and Sarah (Oliver) (1740-) Rideout. (The Rideout and Merritt families are well documented in "Merritt - Rideout - Pike Families" by Allen Pike from writings of Golda Rideout Soffee and Hilda (Merritt) MacBay. Pike Files.)

Blanche (Pike) Morgan recalls that her mother, Clara Alice Merritt Pike was working for a family named "Hall" who lived on the Presque Isle Road. One "Hall" girl was named "Blanche" for whom Blanche Pike was named.

Soon after their marriage Hiram moved his family to Van Buren, Maine. ("Colby's Atlas of Maine, 1855", A Classified Directory, Van Buren: "Hiram Pike, manufacturer of and dealer in carriages, sleighs; carriages - repairing and painting done to order; and caskets.") Three children were born in Van Buren: Nellie, died 4 years of age; Annie Burpee, 23 June 1884 and Eugene Hale, 23 February 1887 (Allen Pike's father). Sylvester, Hiram's oldest son working in the mills at Edmundston, N.B. Canada became acquainted with Celina Marie Pelletier and they were married there 24 April 1888. He and his family lived in Edmunston, N.B.

In 1888, Hiram, wife Clara, and five children returned to Caribou. (Aroostook Republican, 17 October 1888: "Mr. Pike and family have been residing in Van Buren for the past several years, returned to their home in Caribou.") On 28 May 1892, Clara, his wife purchased, from John B. Lucia and Albert Madigan, 40 acres of property on the Caribou-Washburn Road at Bailey Mitchell Bridge. (Part of Lot 12.) (The place in later years was referred to as the "Noble Farm".) The cost was $1,013.35. There may have been another reason for only her name being on the deed. (Lib. 123, p. 352, County Seat, Houlton, ME) On the same day they signed a mortgage with the two sellers: Albert and John Madigan for the total amount: to be paid $100 for each of the first five years and total balance $513.35 to be paid the sixth year. (Lib. 129, p. 19, County Records, Houlton, Maine.) On 9 May 1894, Hiram and Clara took out a second mortgage with Silas A. Grimes of Caribou for $500 (Lib. 142, p. 345, County Records, Houlton, Maine).

On the farm more children were born: Blanche Hazel, 27 April 1889; William Merritt, 18 September 1891; Charles Boutelle, 17 December 1883; and last, Jennie Bernice, 14 April 1896. None of the children ever mentioned that Hiram ever farmed the land; at that time much of the land had not been cleared for farming. His occupation was always mentioned and listed as carpenter.

Hilda (Merritt) MacBay likes to recall: "My father and mother, Albert J. and Martha "Mattie" Merritt came from Grand Falls in a horse and wagon to spend their honeymoon, 12 March 1895, at this farmhouse. The women folks all slept downstairs and the men folks climbed a ladder and slept in the loft. Father, Albert Merritt was a brother to Clara Merritt Pike, Hiram's wife." (Hiram and Clara had spent their honeymoon - travelling the same road and distance - at Clara's family, William and Mary (Rideout) Merritt at Argosy, Grand Falls, N.B. before her brother Albert was married.)

Hiram secured work in the village and walked the mile and a half each morning, and the same weary miles at night. We may assume that often times he would be accompanied by his children, those of right age, on their way to attend the High Street School. Later they would attend the Sincock School.

When Jennie, the baby was four years of age, in May 1900, Clara, the mother had a miscarriage and contracted blood-poisoning which resulted in her death. So again, the father found himself with several young children to care for. This time however, they were all able to stay together. The older boys were working and two of the girls were working in factories in Massachusetts.

On 27 July 1905, Hiram sold the farm to Will Ireland and Frank Hammond. (Aroostook Republican, July 27, 1905) The family moved back into the village and resided on York Street. (The house was located just at the bend in the road - on the left - going west toward Paul's Hill.)

Blanche recalls: At one time father had a carpenter shop over Fred Johnson's shop which was located across the street from Buck's Feed Store near the Caribou Millpond. One job he did was to file saws. I still recall that dreadful sound. It sends chills up my back. At one time father was the village barber. Just how remunerative this was I don't know. One of the family stories was to recall that at one time a company of children, including my sister, Addie were playing Hide-and-Seek in the shop. Addie had hid under the barber chair. Hot weather had caused pitch to ooze out of the underside of the wooden seat, and Addie's hair became entangled in the pitch. It was needless to say, the game was suspended for the day. But this incident made for a lasting impression on their memory.

At about this time Hiram worked for almost a year for a man named Jake LeVassar who ran the Linden Hotel, later called the "Caribou Hotel". Blanche recalls: LeVassar was trying to perfect a perpetual motion machine. Hiram had acquired a good measure of skill as a wood worker and he settled down to work in a shop equipped for making and repairing furniture and other wood skilled work. To this he added the skill of making and equipping caskets and coffins, as there was need for them. In this business he was assisted by his son, Judson. Here, too, Judson continued to work and at last cared for his father.

Blanche described her father as a small man, graying when young, with a mustache. He was a good father to his children. In later years his hair was snow white. Other notes from the Republican: December 27, 1906 - Hiram Pike and family spent Christmas at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John Jacobs in North Woodland. And the final note: December 26, 1907 - Hiram Pike, one of Caribou's old residents, is quite sick with heart trouble.

Blanche writes: For several years father had been troubled by his heart, perhaps as a result of the "War Fever". During the last part of 1907 he sort of faded away and on 8 January 1908 he quietly passed away. He was living at their home on York Street, Caribou, Maine at the time of his death. (D/C on file.) From the Aroostook Republican, page 12, 9 January 1908: Hiram Pike died Wednesday morning at the age of 73 years, a more extended notice will appear later.

Obituary: (V/R, Caribou Public Library, page 7, 13 Feb. 1908)

Hiram Pike died Wednesday morning, Jan. 8, aged 73. He was born on Independence Hill, Bangor, July 14, 1835, and spent his boyhood days in Norway, ME He came to Caribou in 1860 in company with Henry Allen. They came from Charlestown, Mass.

Mr. Pike was twice married, his first wife being Miss Caroline Rideout. Four children from this union survive him, Sylvester, of Edmundston, N.B., Judson, of this town, and two daughters. His second wife was Miss Clara Merritt of Grand Falls and six children by this marriage survive him.

The deceased was a member of Co. C., 26th Maine Volunteers, and took part in several important battles, being in the Red River campaign. He was by trade a carpenter and builder, and was considered a good and trustworthy workman.

During his last sickness he was tenderly cared for by his children, who did all they could to make his last days pleasant. Funeral services were held at the Baptist Church, Rev. Ramsdell, officiating. Burial was at the Evergreen Cemetery beside his two wives and family members.

His death certificate lists cause of death "Old Age". He was 73 years, 6 months and 8 days of age. The doctor was Chas. F. Thomas and undertaker G.M. Morgan. Hiram's daughter Blanche had married G.M. Morgan's son, Clyde Morgan. His birthplace listed as Bangor, Maine was correct. However, his father's birthplace was not Portland but rather Norway, Maine. But to show how little he had conversed with his children about his relatives - the name of his father and mother are listed "unknown".

From the Caribou Directory: 1895-96 are listed the following:

Pike, Hiram, farmer; home Washburn Road - 3/4 miles out (816)
Pike, Judson B., painter (920)

In the 1904 Directory it would appear that Hiram wanted to record all his children:

Pike, Hiram, Carpenter - Old Washburn Road (816)
Minnie J. (Pike) Robinson - Quebec (919)
Sylvester Washburn Pike, Carpenter - Edmunston, N.B. (918)
Judson Pike, Carpenter (920)
Addie Evelyn Pike, Factory Worker, Lowell, Mass. (921)
Annie Burpee, Factory Worker, Wakefield, Mass. (925)
Eugene Pike, Laborer (926)
Blanche Hazel Pike, Homemaker (927)
William Merritt Pike, Minor (928)
Charles Boutelle Pike, Minor (929)
Jennie Bernice Pike, Minor (930)

From the Caribou Directory: 1905-1906:
Pike, J.K., carpenter (q.v. no) (787)
Pike, Bessie L., Milliner (q.v. no) (908)
Pike, Hiram, farmer, Washburn Road (816)
Pike, Judson, painter, Washburn Road (920)
Pike, Eugene, farmer, Washburn Road (926)

Thus, the story of Hiram M. Pike, Jr. comes to a close. It has been the privilege of this writer to know and visit with upon many happy occasions or they visited our home in Carson Siding, Woodland, Maine; all of Hiram's children, my aunts and uncles, except Sylvester, who died when this writer was one year of age. However, this writer has on several occasions visited his descendants in Canada. Which brings us to another side of this story. Our relatives living in Edmundston, N.B. Canada have always maintained that they were of Canadian descendants. Sylvester Washburn Pike was certainly born in Portland as listed in the vital records, the interest comes in the fact that he married Celina Marie Pelletier who was a Canadian as was all of her relatives. Another side of the story is that both Hiram Pike's wives were born in Canada. It may be well to note here for future generations that in those early years the boundary line between northern Maine and Canada was not well defined nor patrolled as in later years. Sometimes it was difficult to determine who was a Canadian and who was an American -- other than most Canadians had a French accent. All one had to do was to get across the St. John River, by ferry before bridges, by boat, or for the more anxious, "To Swim"; and to those "Blue Noses" (as New Brunswickians were called), seeking an American wife may have been how much of the American and Canadian blood got mixed. As a young boy, this writer recalls hearing about a person securing a "Head Tax", thus a Canadian could live in America - much today (1992) as immigrants secure a "blue card" or "visa". However, to the belief of this writer, few of these relatives actually knew their relationship with each other. So it is hoped this research will straighten out the questions.

Of interest is a copy of a letter from Baltimore Cemetery:

Mrs. W.J. Salter, Sec'y. Balt. Cem. Co., Balt. Md. April 27/49

Dear Mr. Salter, Your letter of April 25th 49 received and I'm enclosing fifteen dollars in two postal notes due for the lot cleaning, etc. Hattie P. Thompson, 86 yrs. old is a daughter of the late J.A. Barickman.

My Aunt Hattie Thompson is critically ill at the City Hospital. Mrs. Madert will send the deed to you - when needed - as I may not be able to get to Balt. in time.

An "Ella Grant Barickman" died 22 July 1865, ae 1 yr. 5 mos. (Inter.: Joseph Stevens Lot 143, Area U.) Statement in Swindell records, "Ella lived with Aunt Amanda Pike." This does not seem possible in view of the burial records, if correct. Dorcas Amanda Pike lived in Saccarappa, Cumberland C., Town of Westbrook, ME where she worked in the Cumberland Mills. (No. 818, q.v.)

JOHN AMBROSE AND SARAH ELIZABETH (PIKE) BARICKMAN

Sarah Elizabeth (Pike) Barickman was born in Bangor, Aroostook County, Maine on 15 February 1836 when her father owned property in that area. (V/R., Norway Census 1840, Augusta Maine. Norway V/R, Norway Town Hall recorded after the fire 4 January 1843.) When she was about six years of age her mother, Sarah (Ladd) Pike up and left the family. (Bradbury, p. 305. No further records have been found on Sarah (Ladd) Pike after census of 1843.) Sarah Elizabeth Pike went to live with her Uncle John and Sarah (Slade) Pike (7-636, q.v.) in Chelsea, Massachusetts (19 May 1850 Census, Chelsea, Mass., p. 441 - Sarah is listed as age 14. Copy Pike Files.). It is quite certain that she would, in later years, be a great help to her Aunt Sarah when eventually eight children were born into the family.

Sarah Elizabeth Pike could trace her ancestry to John Pike the immigrant who arrived in America in 1635, and more specifically to Major Robert Pike, who became one of the outstanding citizens of Salisbury (2-2, q.v.).

It was while living in the Boston Area, Chelsea being a suburb, that she met John Ambrose Barickman and they were married 11 July 1851 in Boston (V/R, Mass. Suffolk Co., 1851-1852, Vol. 56, p. 79). She is listed as 18 yrs. of age. Place of birth, Chelsea (which is in error -- she was born in Bangor, Maine). Her father is listed as John Pike (which is also in error -- her father was Hiram Pike, Jr. These two errors indicates how little poor Sarah Elizabeth knew about her parents - which is one reason it has been difficult to find her background).

John Ambrose Barickman was born 1 March 1831, Baltimore, Maryland. At the time of his marriage he is listed as 22 years of age. His parents were Jacob and (1st) Eliza*(beth) (Burton)* Barickman.

John and Sarah Elizabeth (Pike) Barickman lived in the Boston area and more specifically Brookline for five years where three of their children were born: Julia Frances Barickman, 3 June 1852; Edith Elizabeth Barickman, 11 Nov. 1853; and Anna Cora Barickman, 12 July 1855. After the birth of Anna

Cora Barickman in 1855, they moved to Baltimore, Maryland where four other children were born: Lillian Annette Barickman, 1867; Harold Barickman, 1859, Hattie Pike Barickman, 1862; and Ella Grant Barickman, 1864.

John Ambrose Barickman died in 11 September 1868 (No records have been located. He is not listed on 1850 nor 1860 census, nor in the Baltimore City Directories. Nor has his burial place been located. Birth date: Swindell Files).

Obituary: Baltimore Morning Sun, July 5, 1875.

DIED. Barickman - On the evening of the 3rd instant, after a long and painful illness, which she bore with Christian fortitude, SARAH E. BARICKMAN in her 40th year.

JACOB BARICKMAN FAMILY
1804-(after) 1874

JACOB BARICKMAN was born ca. 1804 (Federal Census 1850, 7th Ward, Baltimore City, page 347, lines 7-18: Jacob Barickman, age 46, Grocer. Census 1860, 3rd Ward, page 727, line 40 and page 728, lines 1-6: Jacob Barickman age 56, Cooper St., value/personal $500). He died after 1874, as he was listed in the City Directory from 1851 to 1874. (His burial place has not been located - after communicating with several cemeteries in Baltimore area.)

He married (1st) ELIZABETH BURTON. She died 1 April 1846. (Baltimore Sun. Obits: 4/3/46, p. 21.)

Children of Jacob and (1st) Elizabeth (Burton) Barickman:

i. JOHN AMBROSE BARICKMAN, b. 1 March 1831, mentioned above, who m. SARAH ELIZABETH[9] PIKE (817).

ii. MARY BARICKMAN, b. ca. 1835 (1850 Census, 16 yrs. of age, in school).

Jacob Barickman married (2nd) 23 January 1849, ELIZ(BETH) (OLWINE) STEVENS (Index: Deaths and Marriages, Baltimore Sun 1837-1850). She was the daughter of RICHARD OLWINE. This was her second marriage also; her first to a Stevens who must have died prior to her marriage to Barickman in 1849. Elizabeth (Olwine-Stevens) Barickman died 17 February 1874, Ae 57 (Inter.: E.A. Barickman Lot 560, Area S. believed to be in her name, where several Barickman children, as well as several Stevens are buried.).

Children of Jacob and (2nd) Eliz(beth) (Olwine-Stevens) Barickman:

iii. CATHERINE MAY BARICKMAN, b. ca. 1852 (Ae 8, 1860 Census); d. 13 May 1916, Ae 64 yrs. 4 mos. 16 das., Hamilton, Md. (C/R, Lot 268, N.E. Green Mt. Cem.); m. 1 Dec. 1870 *(Md. Hist. Soc. iv. MARY BARICKMAN, b. ca. 1854 (Ae 6 yrs. 1860 Census) Ed. Note: This appears to be his second child with this name, first named by his first marriage. It may be assumed that first Mary Barickman born ca. 1835, living 1850, age 16 had died.

v. EMMA BARICKMAN, b. ca. 1857 (Ae 3 yrs. 1860 Census)

vi. E.A. BARICKMAN, b.d. 12 March 1859, stillborn.

x. BARICKMAN CHILD, b. 17 Feb. 1874; d. same day as the mother Elizabeth (Olwine) Barickman, so it may be assumed she died in childbirth.

817-1. JULIA "FRANCES"[10] BARICKMAN, daughter of John Ambrose and Sarah Elizabeth (Pike) Barickman was born 3 June, 1852, 10 Indiana Street, Brookline, Massachusetts (City of Boston, Census 1852, Vol. 65, p. 102. Her middle name is listed "Annette", a middle name which was given in later records to her sister, Lillian (817-4). Parents: John A. & Sara E. Barickman; Father: Painter - b. Baltimore; Mother: b. Norway, Maine). She is also listed in the Federal Census 1860, City of Baltimore: 5th Ward, Julia Barickman, age 6 yrs., b. Boston. Family of J.A. Barickman. She died in 1922 (Swindell Records). No burial place has been located. It may be assumed she went, in later years, after the death of her husband in 1898, to live with her daughter, Ella C. (Graham) Melton in Joplin, Missouri. (A Frances Graham: d. 22 Aug. 1877, Joplin, Mo., Joplin Times)

She married JOHN EDWARD GRAHAM. He was born 24 August 1851, Baltimore, Maryland. He died 7 October 1898, Ae 62. (A John E. Graham was interred 7 October 1898, Ae 62, J.E. Silence lot. Perhaps our John Edward Graham's father.) No further information. Perhaps he and wife, Julia did go west.

Julia "Frances" Graham may have written a book about Baltimore. (Swindell notes.)

Children of John Edward and Julia Frances (Barickman) Graham:

817-8. i. ELLA C.[11] GRAHAM, b. 20 Oct. 1871, Baltimore; d. June 1922, Ae 57, Joplin, Mo.; m. 23 June 1904, FRANK S. MELTON, b. 15 Sept. 1864, Kansas, Mo. A Frank and Ella E. Melton are listed in the Joplin, Mo. Directory of 1921. This Frank Melton is listed as an optometrist, residing at 1614 Main Street. Family records and information state that Frank Melton was a medical doctor. One report states that Dr. Melton delivered all his children. They had three ch.: (1) FRANCES GRAHAM[12] MELTON, b. 24 March 1905, Joplin, Mo.; (2) JOHN EDWARD MARION[12] MELTON, b. 28 Aug. 1906, Joplin. A John E. Melton is listed in the 1921 Joplin Directory. Residing 1614 Main Street (Melton Bros.) A letter mailed to 2021 Main St., 1979 was returned; (3) LOUISE[12] MELTON.

Ed. Note: A Melton family, Joplin, Missouri, were involved in the mattress business, i.e. Ozark Mattress & Upholstering Co. One name that appears several times: "Ambrose" Melton - remember Ella (Graham) Melton's grandfather's middle name was "Ambrose".

Another intriguing article is contained in the Joplin Globe, Wednesday, 31 July 1940 which reports FRANK S. MELTON, 75, ILL SIX MONTHS, DIES. The time frame b. 1864; d. 1940 fits the lifetime of our Frank S. Melton. However, the obituary information does not fit his profession. Mr. Melton was associated with four of his five sons in the operation of the Joplin Mattress Company. He was born Greenfield, Ind. and had lived in Joplin in the greater part of the last 50 years. Mr. Melton was a member of the Church of Christ, Scientist. He was a Scottish Rite Mason with membership at Mansfield, Mo., and a member of the Knights of Pythias of West Plains, Mo.

To further fit into this puzzle with likeness to the Swindell information listed above was Frank S. Melton's wife and the children: Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Ella Melton (Swindell info gives her death as 1922 - she would still be living in 1940), five sons, Leonel Melton, 2010 Anne Baster Avenue; Francis Melton of Elkhorn, Wis.; John Melton (Swindell list same), 2021 Main St.; Ambrose Melton, 523 North Mineral Ave., and Howard Melton, 1701 NY Avenue; two daughters: Mrs. June Edmendson of Patterson, Calif., and Mrs. Louise Nutz (Swindell list same), 219 North Sergeant Ave. (Mrs. Earle Richardson corresponded with Mrs. Nutz, 919 N. Sergant Ave., Joplin, Mo. 64801. A letter sent to this address, March 1958 by Allen Pike was returned.); two brothers: J.C. Melton of Paris, Tex., and E.V. Melton of Fort Worth, Tex.; 20 grandchildren; nine great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild. Clipping supplied by: Mrs. Joan Atkins, R.D.1, Box 3013, Diamond, Mo. 64840. Joplin Genealogical Society.

Rose (Swindell) Cruckshank stated that Frances Graham Melton left property in Missouri to Anna (Killmon) Swindell, her mother, which she passed on to her two children: Rose (Swindell) Cruckshank, Jr. and George "Ben" Benson Swindell. No further records.

John Edward and Julia Francis (Barickman) Graham had two other children (Swindell records):

817-9. ii. WALTER AMBROSE[11] GRAHAM, b. 5 Oct. 1873; m.; "had one dau. who m.; has children in Kansas City."

817-10. iii. ROY[11] GRAHAM.

817-3. ANNA CORA[10] BARICKMAN, daughter of John Ambrose and Sarah Elizabeth (Pike) Barickman. She was born 12 July 1855, Brookline, Massachusetts. (V/R, Brookline, Mass., 1855, Vol. 91, p. 193. "Anna Cora Barickman, Washington St., Brookline. Parents: John A. & Sarah E. Barickman. Father: painter, b. Baltimore. Mother: b. Norway, ME Also listed: Federal Census, Baltimore City 1860; 5th Ward: 5 yrs. age. Also listed: Federal Census, Baltimore City 1870; 6th Ward, page 4/6, Line 10-15; 16 yrs. age. Listed as "Cora" working in a store. States she was born in Baltimore, which is in error, she was born in Brookline Mass.) She died 1 August 1879, ae 25, six months after the birth of only child. Her death is listed as "Phthisis Pulmonary" (Tuberculous of the lungs - the same as her mother had died three years before.) (Inter: Baltimore Cem. J.A. Barickman's Lot 144, Area U. (believed to be in the name of her father, John ambrose Barickman, however he had died in 1869 and is not buried in that lot; neither is her husband, William Thomas Killmon.)

She married WILLIAM THOMAS KILLMON. He was born 18 July 1850, Baltimore, Maryland and died in November 1892, Baltimore. (As noted above he is not buried beside his wife who died thirteen years prior. Their daughter married into the Swindell Family and their family lot was in Loudon Park Cemetery. In the Federal Census 1870, there is listed a "Thomas W. Killmon", ship carpenter, 215 Gough St.)

William Thomas Killmon had two brothers: Rev. Frank Killmon and Charles Killmon. Rev. Frank Killmon was pastor of Grace Hampden Methodist Episcopal Church from 1896-1900. (Bulletin: "The History of Grace-Hampden Methodist Episcopal Church 1855-1926 by Mrs. Albion A. Bailey dated 30 May 1926. Swindell collection.) Rev. Killmon had a daughter, Mrs. Lewis (Dorothy Killmon) Turner (1981): 2-0-E. Lafayette Avenue, Baltimore, Maryland 21202. Allen Pike wrote Mrs. Turner on 15 October 1981 as well as phone call with no response on Killmon or Barickman families.

Child of William Thomas and Anna Cora (Barickman) Killmon:

SWINDELL FAMILY

George "Ben" Benson Swindell, Jr. and Rose Cora Louise (Swindell) Cruickshank traced their family to William[1] Swindell who emigrated to Boston about 1815 and who married 9 January 1820, Lydia Emmett of Boston. He died in Camden, New Jersey.

William and Lydia (Emmett) Swindell had a son, William[2] Swindell, Jr. He was born 19 February 1821, Cambridge, Massachusetts, and married 12 May 1844, Camden, New Jersey, Henrietta Mullard.

He married (1st) 15 February 1870, Oakdale, Deering (Portland), Maine by Rev. W.H. Thailer (or Shailer), D.D., ANNIE ISADORE VAN HORN. Samuel H. Pike is listed in the Portland Directory 1869, "Pike, Samuel H., joiner, boards, Portland near Libby Corner." In the directory of 1905: "Pike, Samuel H. 'Junk - 17 Long Wharf'."

Virginia Cohen from Agnes (Pike) O'Connell stated: Rev. W.W. Thailer performed the wedding ceremony but refused to sign the family Bible because he wanted to be paid to sign.

Richard O'Connell, son of Agnes B. (Pike) O'Connell (934) writes: Gramp Pike (Samuel H. Pike) was a high flyer and had a mistress, Harriett, whom he later married. Because of his carryings on, I feel my mother had little love for him. Samuel Pike ran a junk business and evidently did quite well, as he owned a few trotting horses, along with his "kept woman". My mother used to speak of an Uncle Hen (Ed. Note: No doubt, James "Henry" Pike, Samuel's younger brother), Sam's favorite brother. And there was a well-known figure skater she also spoke of. Uncle Henry's house is still standing in the Old Libbytown area of Portland and someone is now renovating it. I have an old sea chest that was owned by one of the brothers, but which one I do not know. In this chest are many very interesting letters to my Grandmother Pike. Some of the letters read like an historical novel. I am sending these to my second cousin, Virginia (Friedel) Cohen.

Obituary, Portland Evening Express, Wednesday, 8 July 1908, p. 2. Supplied by: Virginia Cohen:

Samuel H. Pike, one of the pioneers of the junk business in this City, died at his home on Boyd Street at the age of 63. His illness only dated from last Friday night. Mr. Pike who has been engaged in the junk business for 40 years is reported to have made big sums of money at various times during his life by business deals.

He was at one time prominent among horsemen, having owned a number of fast trotting horses, notable one "Saxon G.", which was claimed to be one of the speediest in this section of the country. He is survived by a wife and two daughters. The two daughters would have been: Inez May (Pike) Hodson and Agnes Brennan (Pike) Friedel. His wife would have been his second wife, Harriett, as his first wife, Annie Isadore VanHorn (Pike) died in 1898.

Kschinka, writes, p. 103:

Henry, as he was called, said he was a laborer, falsified his age, and enlisted in the Union Army on 27 March 1865. He was discharged on 5 April 1866. On his discharge papers he is described as 6 feet, one inch tall, having light complexion and hair and grey eyes.

Henry and his wife appear to have been seventh cousins, having as common ancestors Robert and Sarah (Winter) Jordan (p. 115).

Hannah Jane Ricker was baptized as "Jennie H." which appears on her gravestone in Forest City Cemetery. The family Bible records shows "Hannah Jane" and on her marriage certificate "Hanna Jane". Many people, especially her husband, called her "Jen".

Rev. Upton, writing about the Pike Family, gives a brief sketch on Henry:

Henry, in this report, is considered a half-brother of Hiram, Jr. (#816). Of this Henry, it is known that he became an engineer on the Grand Trunk Railway and for years was on the run from Portland northerly through "The Notch" of the White Mountain Region in New Hampshire. The sudden change from sea level to the higher altitude twice a day, combined with the limitations of age, demanded a change and for some time he was employed in a different position. He was married and had a son, Clifford, who was employed in a commercial office in Portland for a considerable time. Two daughters graced his home: Elsie and Harriett. One of them, Elsie May (#936) married a young officer in the U.S. Army and went with him as the changes in location of such an officer demanded. Their son was called Clifford.

Henry had a brother called "Sam" (#819). Henry, Sam and their brothers and sisters were half uncles and aunts to my wife Addie Evelyn (Pike) Upton. I have endeavored in later years to locate these families but to no avail. My wife's family had moved to northern Maine. Each busy in the daily round of employment simply drifted apart from the other and the families became so widely separated that readjustments became almost impossible.

Gerald Richmond Wescott, son of Arthur C. and Elsie M. (Pike) Wescott (10-935) reported to Allen Pike in 1981:

James Henry had high blood pressure and had several seizures. Civil War Veteran - railroad engineer: Portland to New Hampshire. Jennie Pike was a very active and intelligent person - loved children and they loved her. She would give recitations at social meetings. I with my mother (Elsie Pike Wescott) visited with relatives in Portland, Maine, especially my grandmother and grandfather, Henry and Jennie Pike. My grandfather, James Pike lived the last years with my mother, Elsie and my uncle Clifford.

Harold Sterling, (1 Sept. 1981) researching Portland records, writes:

In 1946 Hattie L. Pike Butler (#936) bought a lot in the Forest City Cemetery, Portland, Maine, and her parents "Jennie H. Pike" and "James H. Pike" were moved to the lot. Also interred in the lot: "Louise Butler" (carried on the cemetery records as "Janet L."), 1908-1913. Her death notice reads: "Louise Butler, dau. of Capt. and Mrs. M.L. Butler died 28 Jan. 1913 at Ft. Williams."

Also in the Butler lot is a stone: "In memory of Hartman L. Butler, Col. U.S.A. buried St. Augustine National Cemetery, Florida."

Obituary: Mrs. Jennie H. Pike, Portland ME, Newspaper, 28 Jan. 1919, Kschinka collection:

The community was shocked and saddened by the sudden passing to the higher life of Mrs. Jennie H. wife of James Henry Pike, which occurred last Sunday at her home on Park Avenue. Mrs. Pike had been in her usual state of health until the previous day when she had an attack which seemed to be acute indigestion, and nothing more serious appeared to develop; indeed she was comfortable and in her usual cheerful state of mind almost up to the moment of her passing, chatting happily with her family.

Mrs. Pike was the daughter if the late Andrew J. and Harriet Ricker, and was born in East Baldwin, where she grew up and received her education. Later, coming to Portland to reside, she was soon after married to James Henry Pike, and had she lived one more day it would have been the 45th anniversary of their wedding.

Possessed of an unusually pleasing personality, and a gentleness of manner which made her most attractive, she was a general favorite wherever she chanced to go, and always appreciative of either the joys or sorrows of those about her, and able to help under either condition.

She was active in a great variety of charity work, and perhaps a leader in much of the work of the Grand Army, where she was always a great favorite. These allied bodies will greatly miss her sunshiny presence and ever capable suggestions and help. She was secretary of Bosworth Circle of Ladies of the G.A.R., treasurer and past president of Bosworth Relief Corps, a member of the Pythian Sisters, and one of the oldest members of Fern Lodge, I.O.O.F. she was also a member, for many years, of the West Congregational Church, and ever ready in that body to do anything possible for the success of any and all of its enterprises. For some little time she had been superintendent of the primary department of the Sunday School, and was greatly interested in the children and their welfare, and much attached to them. She was also an active member of the Mothers Round Table, and much interested in its work.

At one time Mrs. Pike was one of the prominent elocutionists of the City and was in great demand as an entertainer, and this work she loved and continued to do, as her other duties would permit, up to the time of her death, giving much pleasure to her associates by this graceful talent with which she was always most generous. She was also a member of the Cosmos Club, and was to have entertained the members at her home on Monday last, only deciding a few hours before her passing away that she would not be well enough to do it.

Mrs. Pike is survived by her husband and by two daughters, Mrs. Hartman L. Butler, who is at her parent's home in the City at present, while Lieutenant Colonel Butler is in France, and Mrs. Arthur Wescott of Newburgh, NY, one son, Clifford H. Pike of this City, and a brother and four sisters. Andrew J. Ricker of Boston, Mrs. Abbie Reed of South Windham, Mrs. Harriet Murray of Boston, Mrs. Martha Harmon of this City, and Mrs. Everett Chadbourne of East Baldwin; also by six grandchildren.

During the summer of 1977, Allen Pike visited with and recorded a conversation with his Aunt Jennie (Pike) Farley (#930) in which she related the following:

I had an Aunt Jennie, I was named after her, and Uncle Henry, who lived in Portland. I guess they were quite well to do. I wonder often times. I think Papa (Hiram, Jr., #816) had a half-brother. After mama (Clara (Merritt) Pike, #816: 1861-1900) died, Aunt Jennie wanted to adopt me. But Papa said, "No". When I went to New Hampshire to live with Addie (wife of Rev. Charles Upton, #912), my half-sister, I visited with Aunt Jennie and Uncle Henry in Portland. My father also mentioned visiting with his relatives in Portland.

How sad it is to this writer that these relatives lost contact in later years. For it has been long years of research and effort to bring together on paper these relatives.

821. IDA L.[9] PIKE (Hiram[8], John[7], Dudley[6], Jacob[5], Robert[4], Robert[3], Major Robert[2], John[1]), son of Hiram and (2nd) Charlotte (Knowles) Pike. She was born ca. 1852 and died 20 October 1891, Ae 39 (G/S), Portland, Maine (Inter.: Lot 225J, No. 3, "She hath done her best.").

She married (1st) 6 January 1869, FREEMAN S. SANBORN. He died 22 April 1881, Ae 40 (Inter.: Scaraborough Cemetery, Maine).

She married (2nd) (would have been after 1881) GEORGE A. DOW. He was born ca. 1858 and died 16 September 1928, Ae 70 (G/S), Portland, Maine (Inter.: Lot 225J, No. 4). He was the son of ALBION K.P. and MARY EMMA (STAPLES) DOW.

George A. Dow married (1st) 12 December 1875, Portland, Maine, OLIVE ANN MASON. They were divorced, 23 April 1878, Portland, Maine. He married (3rd) ISABEL B. (---). She was born ca. 1866 and died 27 February 1918, Ae 52.

Ed. Note: Isabel B. (---) Dow may have been an Eldridge as a Sarah A. Eldridge is interred in same lot: Sarah A. Eldridge: d. 11 Dec. 1897.

Cemetery records also state that MARY E. BROOKER, d. 11 Dec. 1884 was interred in this Dow lot, No. 4 but removed. George Dow is in this space.

No records have been found as to children by these marriages.

Virginia Cohen writes: Ltr. 29 Dec. 1982: George A. Dow was a captain in the Spanish American War.

It is interesting to note that on 10 September 1851, Hiram Pike (#631), Ida's father, purchased from John M. Staples, 10 acres of land for $45.00 in Scarborough, Cumberland Co., Maine. Certainly, some connection with George Dow's mother, Mary Emma (Staples) Dow (see above) (Cumberland Co. Deeds: 235/549). Hiram sold the Scarboro (note change in spelling) farm on 22 April 1854 to Ameyle A. Thurston for the sum of $60 (Cumberland Co. Deeds: 520/252).

It was about this time 1851 that Hiram and (2nd wife) Charlotte must have moved from Brooklyn, NY back to Maine. Their first child: Samuel Higby Pike (#819) and second child: James Henry Pike (#820) were both born in Brooklyn: Samuel in 1845 and James in 1848.

Since Ida (Pike) Dow died 29 Oct. 1891 at age 39, she would have been born ca. 1852 or within the time span when her father, Hiram was living in Scarborough, where Ida met Freeman S. Sanborn.

Hiram's fourth child, Frederick F. Pike (#822) was born in Portland, 12 Dec. 1854, just after the property was sold in Scarboro, 28 April 1854, so the family had moved into Portland (a short distance from Scarboro).

It would appear that Ida (Pike) and husband, George Dow, looked after Ida's parents: Hiram and Charlotte (Knowles) Pike. Both parents are buried in the George A. Dow lot (225J).

Priscilla (Wescott) Kschinka (935-3) wrote 3 Nov. 1981:

A George Sanborn worked at NY State Prison not far from Newburgh where we lived, and visited during the '30s. I think he may have worked in the boiler room. He was a relative but I don't know the relationship.

Ed. Note: This George Sanborn may have been the child of Freeman and Ida (Pike) Sanborn as Mary Melone (1030, q.v.) mentions from her family records that they had a son.

Letters were written 20 Sept. 1982 to the many Sanborns listed in the telephone directory for that area with no replies. It may well be that the Sanborns were related through Frederick Pike's (822, q.v.) wife's second marriage. Communications with the Sandborn Family Association has brought no responses.

Cemetery Records: Lot 225, Sec. J., Owner listed: George A. Dow:
(1) Hiram M. Pike, Ae 77, d. July 8, 1887
(2) Charlotte Pike, Ae 72, d. Jan. 11, 1893
(3) Ida L. Pike (Dow), Ae 39, d. Oct. 20, 1821, "1st wife: Geo. Dow"
(4) George A. Dow, Ae 70, d. 16 Sept. 1828 - a Mary E. Booker, Ae 52, d. Feb. 27, 1918 removed from this plot. Reburial unknown. Relationship unknown.
(5) Isabel B. Dow, Ae 52, d. Feb. 27, 1918, "2nd wife of Geo. Dow"
(6) Sarah A. Eldridge, Ae 67, d. Jan. 8, 1900

It is assumed that Mary E. Booker and Sarah A. Eldridge may have been mothers of these wives, related in some way.

Harold Sterling searching the cemetery records, 11 April 1980 wrote:
Ernest C. Pike, 16 Mos., d. July 4, 1881
Ethel Maud Pike, 7 Mos., d. Sept. 3, 1882
These are the two children of Frederick and Esther Pike. If buried in this plot they were removed, it is believed, when Esther married 2nd time after Frederick's death, to Lot 94N, and the cemetery records were not changed.

822. FREDERICK F.[9] PIKE (Hiram[8], John[7], Dudley[6], Jacob[5], Robert[4], Robert[3], Major Robert[2], John[1]), son of Hiram and (2nd) Charlotte (Knowles) Pike. He was born 20 March 1854, Portland, Maine, and died 12 December 1884, Ae 30, Brainard, Minnesota (Inter.: Evergreen Cem., Portland, ME, Lot 94, Sec. N: Owner Esther A. Pike.)

He married ca. 1872 (1st child born 23 December 1873) ESTHER A. SANBORN. She was born ca. 1855 (1880 Portland Census lists her age as 25). The assumption that her maiden name was Sanborn comes from the information that is in the 1880 Portland Census: Cora E. Sanborn, age 15 is listed as "a sister" living with Frederick F. and Esther A. Pike family. It is assumed that Esther A. Pike married 2nd, a Sylvester, as her gravestone (Lot 94, Sec. N) buried beside her husband Fred*(erick)* Fr. Pike and her children lists her name as Esther A. Sylvester, although the cemetery lot is listed in Esther A. Pike.

Fred. F. Pike, son of Hiram Pike left this city a few weeks ago to accept a position on a Western Railroad. Saturday, word was received in this city that he had been killed while shackling cars. No further particulars were received. He was formerly an engineer on the Portland-Ogdensbury Road. Funeral notice published on December 17th. (Portland Eastern Argus, Monday, 15 Dec. 1884, supplied by Sterling.)

Children of Frederick F. and Esther A. (Sanborn ?) Pike:

1880 City of Portland, Maine census:
(1) Fred F. Pike, Ae 26 (822)
(2) Esther A. Pike, his wife, Ae 25 (822)
(3) Ernest C. Pike, his son, Ae 3 mos. (940)
(4) Cora E. Sanborn, sister, Ae 15

Note: Cemetery records state that Ernest C. Pike (940 above) and Ethel Maud Pike (941 above) are listed as being in lot 225, Sec. J with Hiram M. and Charlotte Pike (their grandparents). It may be assumed that Esther A. (Pike) Sylvester, their mother had them removed to Lot 94, Sec. N.

Several communications with the Sanborn Family Association, Box 185, Candia, N.H. 03034, also with Rose E. Morrison, 75 Hemingway St., Apt. 203, Winchester, MA 01890 could not locate an Esther A. Sanborn in their records.

There are several members of the Sylvester Family buried in Evergreen Cemetery, Portland: Sections V-236, E-124, U-91, V-174 (Cemetery Office: 26 May 1982).

ARTHUR GILBERT PIKE
1865-1936

Obituary: Chelsea, MA, newspaper, supplied by: John N. Pike.

Arthur G. Pike, a life-long resident of this city (Chelsea), passed away Tuesday evening (4 August 1936) at his home at 28 Cary Avenue after an illness of about one month.

Mr. Pike was born in this city 80 years ago, and had he lived until Friday he would have observed his 81st birthday. He was the son of the late John J. and Sarah (Slade) Pike.

He received his education in this city, graduating from the old High School. At an early age he entered the employ of the D. & L. Slade Company, both members of the firm being uncles of the deceased, and he continued in the employ of the company in the capacity of chemist up to the time of his death.

Mr. Pike was a home loving man and was held in high regard by all who knew him. He was married to Mrs. Pike (Minnie Letitia Kennedy) 43 years ago and the couple observed their wedding anniversary on June 21. They erected a home on Bellingham Street which was destroyed in the big conflagration. They were not discouraged, however, and rebuilt their home on the same site and resided there until about 1920 when they moved to Carey Avenue.

Mr. Pike was affiliated with the Bellingham M.E. Church for many years and was active in its affairs. For a number of years, he served as election officer. Mr. Pike was the last of the Pike brothers, George E. (834, q.v.) and Charles H. (830, q.v.) Pike passing away within the last two years. The Pike family was well and favorably known in this city and was highly respected by all who knew them.

Mr. Pike's death came as a shock to his many friends.

His wife, Mrs. Minnie L. Pike has been active in civic affairs. She is a former president of the Chelsea Women's Club, and of the Shurleff School Parent-Teacher Association.

Besides Mrs. Pike, he is survived by two sons, Arthur Thorndike Pike (946, q.v.) of Richfield, NJ. and Kenneth L. Pike (947, q.v.) of Watertown, (Mass.).

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at his late home. Rev. Leslie H. Perdriau, pastor of the Central Congregational Church officiated. DENNIS PIKE SOAPWORKS

An article "The Dennis Pike Soapworks of Norway, Maine", printed in Maine Life, March 1975, p. 6ff gives an excellent report on Dennis Pike's profitable business of making "hard" and "soft" soap, and his travels with his sons around the local area collecting wood ashes, in exchange for soap.

In those days, wood, especially hardwood, was the primary source of fuel and the huge fireplaces, parlor heaters, and kitchen stoves consumed great quantities of it in the course of a year. Farmers were accustomed to saving these ashes for use as fertilizers and also for the production of lye - a primary ingredient of the homemade soap that women of this area often made.

His "Soapwagon" was in reality an "Ashwagon", its main function was a collection truck for tons of ashes picked up amongst the towns. The hard and soft soaps were more often used in exchange for the ashes than in exchange for money. However, he did sell a good deal of soap in the Norway-South Paris areas. "Soft soap" was a yellow gelatinous liquid not unlike the waterless handcleaners found in later years.

Ben Tucker III, the writer of this lengthy article explains the soap making process and several adventurous escapades. A report on a lesser known industry worthy of reading. Maine Life was published at 66 High St., Belfast, Maine 04915. This copy supplied by Arthur Plissey, a subscriber, Washburn, Maine as forwarded to this writer from his mother, Mrs. Eugene Pike.

ROSCOE MARSTON PIKE
1899-1958
By: Ronald Marston Pike

Roscoe Marston Pike was born at Lubec, Maine 25 July 1899, second son of Jabez M. Pike, Jr. and Mary Harmon Parker.

He went to public schools in Lubec and graduated from the Lubec High School. He had a typical youthful upbringing, but was sickly in his early years. He loved sports, especially baseball and he was a catcher of note in town.

A few stories I recall... at Christmas, in the morning, he could only have an orange from his stocking, since his father, Jabez Marston, and brother Harold had to go down to the store, feed the horses, etc. and so present time wasn't until after a big dinner at noon. When he was naughty, his mother wouldn't spank him, but shut him in a closet for an hour or so!!

One of my favorite stories goes as follows:

Roscoe must have been about 12 or 13 years old. In the store there was a contest - on the plugs of tobacco men bought to chew was a little tin pin. Well, the one who would collect the most of these tin buttons would win a brand new catchers' mitt. The temptation was too great. One afternoon after his father had gone - Roscoe, my Pa, went into the showcase and took all the little tin pins off the plugs!! So the next day when a man came in for his plug and Jabez sold it to him, he was upset because he was saving these tins for his kid!! Well, Jabez was suspicious. He marched out of the store, up the hill and into the house. He went up to Pa's room and of course there were the missing little tin pins!! So - never saying a word - he went out in the yard where Pa was at the time, grabbed him by the scuff of the neck, and marched him downtown, out back of the store and sat him, not too kindly, on the edge of the wharf. (I remember this place since it was by the barn where the horses were kept that pulled the delivery wagons, and where we'd sit and shoot rats with a rifle.) He told Pa not to move - went back in the store and appeared several minutes later with every plug of tobacco that had a missing tin pin. Then he placed them beside Pa and said - "You chew every one of these - you want them so bad!" Well, Pa had no choice - so he started - as you can image - he didn't get too far until he was sick as a dog, but his father would return every five minutes or so - and say - "Keep chewing!" Needless to say Pa learned his lesson well - and to my knowledge never stole another thing in his life!!!

After High School, Roscoe attended the University of Maine at Orono, Maine for several years. During that period 1917-18, he was inducted into the U.S. Army as a Private in Co. "B", Student Army Training Corps. (Ser. No. 4916178). He was discharged 26 Nov. 1918 (I have the discharge papers in my files). He was 19 when he enlisted and they describe him as having grey eyes, black hair, light complexion, and was 5 ft. 7½ in. in height. The amount paid to him on final payroll was recorded on 7 Dec. 1918 in the amount of $30.74. They note his character was excellent, had no A.W.O.L. and was entitled to Travel Pay! Later he joined the American Legion and I recall him marching in the 4th of July and Memorial Day parades in town.

He didn't finish at the University of Maine - because as I understand it, his closest friend drowned when they were swimming and he didn't want to go back - so he transferred to a business school in Poughkeepsie, NY and graduated as a Business major. He then went to work for Swift and Co. (the meat outfit) in the Calais, Maine branch as a salesman. His territory covered the downeast area - including Eastport where he met Eugenia Adams who became his wife 10 Sept. 1924. Pa would board overnight in Eastport on his route - at the Bates House which was in the vicinity of the Adams place. Mr. Bates evidently got to like Pa and arranged for him to meet Eugenie.

When he asked her to marry him - she couldn't believe it. Said, "Who would want me? I just can't believe it!" (NOTE: One of these times I'll jot down items concerning her family - Adams - Holmes - all seafarers - Sardine business, etc. - her father Lorenzo Adams - when I knew him was a shoe cobbler and had his own shop in Eastport on Dana Street! - One story though - "Grampy Gump", as we called him, made home-made wine out of anything. That got him into the habit of being potted on wine most of the time!. Most people didn't consider him to be a drunk even though he wove unsteady quite often (I recall seeing him!!). He was a very lovable character - especially to children. Had a great talent for carving various objects. Very good to ships.

Roscoe M. Pike and Miss Eugenie E. Adams were married Wednesday noon, 10 Sept. 1924. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's grandfather Morris C. Holmes on Middle Street in Eastport. She wore a white Canton crepe dress with a string of pearls that Roscoe had given her. She had a tulle veil and carried a lovely bouquet of roses and lily of the valley. At the wedding they gave out little white boxes with ginger bread in them. At the ceremony in the living room everyone stood up. They went on a two week motor trip for their honeymoon in his black model-T sedan (I remember this car). (NOTE: I have the original paper clipping of their wedding.)

Eugenie, my mother, was a graduate of Shead Memorial High School of Eastport, Class of 1922 and after graduation was a stenographer for E.M. Cherry Co. She was born 14 Jan. 1903 in Eastport and died of cancer 20 May 1940 in Brewer, Maine. (I have a copy of the obituary of her death) - one item from that is of interest here - "One of her outstanding qualities was her clean fighting spirit and sportsmanship" - I hope to write her family history later.

Roscoe worked for Swift and Co. for 37 years. He was located at Calais, moved to Houlton, Maine in 1932, Bangor in 1933, Bath in 1941, Augusta in 1942 and finally Manchester, N.H. in 1945. He loved sports, especially baseball. He joined the Masons 28 Jan. 1946 - Lafayette Lodge No. 41 in Manchester, N.H. Was Worshipful Master - I have his gavel that he used and pictures relating to this.

In his later years he was bald - I don't remember him with much hair. He died in Oct. 1958 from a ruptured aorta. He's buried in Manchester, N.H. with his second wife, Lois Fleming.

Mary Ann (Challes) Pike, wife of Charles Warrington Pike (#891) was only eleven years old when her father, Nathaniel B. Challes died and thirteen years old when her mother, Nancy Challes died. The birthplace of her father has not been proved. Family members say he was born in Holland, Europe. New York census records indicates New York State. Nathaniel B. Challes purchased the Glover, Vermont, Flouring Mill Company in Glover, Orleans County, Vermont on 17 January 1863 for $950 with a balance due of $450 plus interest. On 11 February 1868, he leased the mill to David Rothschild. The day N.B. Challes died, Mary Ann passed the mill on her way home from school for lunch which she did every school day, and she and her father walked home together. They walked back together that day after lunch and he went back to work. An hour later he died, instantly, of a heart attack on 15 September 1874. After her mother's death, Mary Ann went to live with an aunt Abigail at Waterbury, Vermont.

ELIZABETH JUNE PIKE

Obituary: Ft. Kent Newspaper:

Miss June Pike, 63, died Oct. 27, 1982, after a long illness. She was born Nov. 27, 1918, Wade Plantation, the daughter of Harold T. and Bertha (Sears) Pike. She grew up in Caribou and graduated from Caribou High School. She attended Aroostook State Normal School in Presque Isle, now UMPI, Boston U. and the U. of Maine at Orono where she received her Bachelors Degree in Education with a major in English and did some graduate work in adult education. She was an extension agent of the Cooperative Extension Service of the UMO, member of the field staff in Fort Kent from early 1957 to 1966 and at U. of M. at Portland from 1967-1969 until she was retired on total disability. She was a member of the U.S. Federal Extension service and Civil Service Commission under the USDA having done work in youth development, 4-H and community development. She was a Justice of Peace and a Notary Public for 21 years, retiring July 1, 1969. She served all professional memberships, organizations and club affiliations and earned a statewide award writing news publicity with photographics for her programs. She earned the Outstanding Maine County Agent Award in 1964 and was nominated for Washington, D.C. National Achievement Award in 1969 but was physically unable to complete the necessary forms or travel to the nation's capital. Miss Pike's working career included two years of teaching public school, managing a Sears & Roebuck Catalog Order Office in Salem, MA; working as a receptionist and ticket redemption clerk for New York, New Hampshire and Hartford Railroad in South Station Boston for three years, as passenger agent with Northeast Airlines Boston Presque Isle; after a general reduction in personnel, she worked as a chief projectionist for several months at the old opera house movie theater in Presque Isle. She then drove heavy trucks in civil service with the U.S. Army, Air Force in Presque Isle making a bi-monthly trip with heavy worn out engine parts to Bangor, returning with new and reconditioned equipment until her mother died (1945). She then accepted a position as claims adjuster and investigator in the field of metropolitan greater Boston with Liberty Mutual Insurance Corp. At the end of three years the young men began returning from the World War II and instead of accepting inside supervisory work she requested a transfer to sales and service with Liberty Mutual in Portland. She remained with Liberty Mutual for five more years as general agent and service representative before going into business for herself as real estate broker, insurance broker and independent investigator and adjustor for various insurance companies. She accepted her extensive agent job for one year only at Fort Kent with promise to transfer at first opening in another county but she told many people that after six months she began loving the people and her work so much in the valley that she would stay as long as they would have her. She built her house here and said she led a contented and full life until disabled by a severe heart condition. She is survived by one half-brother, Reginald C. Pike of Presque Isle.

A Mass of Christian Burial will be held 2 p.m. Friday at St. Louis Catholic Church, Fort Kent. Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery, Caribou. June Pike and Allen Pike were classmates at Caribou High School, both following the same course of study, i.e. dramatics and public speaking. Both speaking in the June Exhibition Speaking Contest and June winning first place for the girls and Allen first place for the boys.

Neither knew what their relationship might be until later years Allen compiled information on the Pike Family and determined that their grandfather, Robert Pike (4-56 q.v.) were one and the same; that John Pike (#108, q.v.) and Jacob Pike (#109, q.v.) were brothers. In later years their ancestors migrated to northern Maine from the Norway Cornish area at about the same time.

During the years previous to June's death (1982), Allen visited with June on several occasions as well as having much correspondence.

June was in possession of the John Pike family records which has been donated to the Caribou Historical Society.

914. ASA OSGOOD[10] PIKE II (Cassius Willard[9], Asa Osgood[8], Job K.[7], John[6], John[5], Robert[4], Robert[3], Major Robert[2], John[1]), son of Cassius Willard. He was born 7 February 1886, East Fryeburg, Maine, and died there 29 July 1966.

He married 30 June 1909, St. Lukes Episcopal Church, Portland, Maine, by Bishop Cadman, GERALDINE FITZGERALD. She was born July 1884, Island Pond, Vermont, and died 4 April 1975, Mt. Ascutney Hospital, Vermont (Inter.: Fryeburg, Maine). Geraldine was the daughter of CHARLES T. and MABEL ELLEN (WEYMOUTH) FITZGERALD. (Charles T. Fitzgerald was from Grafton, Maine.)

Asa graduated from Fryeburg Academy, 1903; Bowdoin College, A.B. (cum laude) 1907; Insurance Agency. They lived in a house on Elm Street occupied by Cassius Pike until 1945. (Bowdoin College Library, Special Collection has a great amount of information on ASA. Also in Allen Pike files.)

Wedding of Asa O. and Geraldine (Fitzgerald) Pike, supplied by Robert Taylor: At high noon today in the Emanuel Chapel of the St. Lukes Episcopal Church, the wedding of Geraldine Fitzgerald, daughter of Mrs. Mabel E. Fitzgerald of Pine Street, to Mr. Asa Osgood Pike, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cassius Warren Pike of Fryeburg, took place, Bishop Codman officiating. Professor Brinkler was at the organ and promptly at the appointed hour struck the opening notes of the Lohengrin Bridal Chorus to which the bridal party entered, coming through the cathedral. First came the ushers, Mr. Morton G. Soule of Augusta and Mr. William Linniel of Saco, both Bowdoin men, of which college the groom is a graduate. Following the ushers came the maid of honor, Miss Kathleen Fitzgerald sister of the bride. She was gowned in a yellow lingerie gown and carried yellow daisies and wore a poke bonnet of yellow. The bridesmaids were Miss. Geneva Fitzgerald, sister of the bride, and Miss. Charlotte Pike, sister of the groom. Following the bridesmaids came the dainty bride on the arm of her uncle, Mr. John Warren Thurston of Island Pond, by whom she was given in marriage. The bride's gown was of white satin with trimmings of Irish lace and she wore a long veil thrown back from the face, and held in place by a bandeau of white satin ribbon, and carried a white prayer book. At the altar the groom and his best man, Mr. John Halford of Bath, a classmate at Bowden, met the bridal party, the ceremony being performed by Bishop Codman. At the close of the ceremony the party left the church to the strains of the Mendelssohn Wedding March and proceeded to the home of the bride's mother on Pine street where a wedding breakfast was served. The couple left on the afternoon train for their wedding journey, the bride traveling in a kennard blue going away gown with hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Pike are to reside in Sanford. Among the out-of-town guests were Mr.

G. Morton Soule of Bath, Mrs. John W. Thurston; Mrs. Henry E. Fitzgerald of Island Pond; Mr. and Mrs. Cassius Warren Pike, parents of the groom, of Fryeburg; Miss Kathleen Pike and Miss Lillian Pike, of Fryeburg; Miss Harriet Pike of Waltham, Mass.; Mrs. O.H. Tenney of Boston; Mr. George Keene and Campbell Keene of Augusta; Miss Ethel Furbish of Lewiston; Miss Faith Emery of Melrose, Mass. Many beautiful costumes were noticed amongst them being that of the bride's mother, Mrs. Mabel E. Fitzgerald, who was in a lavender satin with hat. The wedding is of unusual interest as both the bride and the groom are much liked, the bride being one of the most attractive of the younger society girls, and the groom being a Bowdoin man and a singer of much talent, and they are receiving the best wishes of hosts of friends throughout the State, and while the Portland friends of both the bride and the groom are extending congratulations there is at the same time very much regret that they are to take up residence away from the City.

OBIT: Asa O. Pike II. "Reporter, North Conway, NH", 4 August 1966: (Asa) Osgood Pike II, of Fryeburg, age 80, founder of the insurance agency bearing his name, died Friday night at his home. A trial justice here many years, he held several town offices.

An article appearing in local newspaper, 17 April 1962, "Face of Maine", gives a fuller account of his life.

Although eligible for Maine's Three Quarter Century Club, Osgood remembers clearly his first job as a boy. He passed out notices and handbills advertising concerts and entertainments at the Fryeburg Chautauqua Grounds, a mile and a half from the present fairgrounds. For renumeration he received tickets to all performances and free rides on the horse railroad operating between Fryeburg railroad station and Chautauqua Grounds.

Since the Osgood has demonstrated a talent for many kinds of occupations. His only hobby has been keeping busy. Work to him has been something to be enjoyed rather than accepted as a necessary burden.

After graduating from Bowdoin College in 1907, he was employed by the State Department of Agriculture on the State Gypsy Moth Control Project and three years later was placed in charge of the work.

The death of his father Cassius Warren Pike in 1912 sent Osgood home to carry on the farming and timber operations started by his forebearers. Ten years of this work found him able to purchase an insurance agency from the Wallace C. Tarbox estate. Thus was launched his career in civic affairs. He served on the Board of Selectmen several terms, was town meeting moderator and for 21 years was trial justice, resigning of illness in 1943.

His son, Asa O. Pike III became a partner in the insurance business in 1934 and the firm became known as Asa O. Pike II and Son Inc. Although he sold his interest to his son in 1953 and entered "retirement", he was by no means inactive.

He was chairman of the Allocation Committee of the Clarence E. Mulford Trust Fund and chairman of the Bradley Memorial Park Committee, a member of the Fryeburg Academy Board of Trustees to which he was appointed many years ago, member of the Board of Trustees of Pythagorean Lodge, AF & AM, a member of Pequawket Lodge, K. of P. and an active member of the Congregational Church which he served as a deacon for many years.

He and his wife, Geraldine Fitzgerald Pike, formerly of Portland, whom he married in 1909, have three children, four gran..children and two great-grandchildren.

SYLVESTER WASHBURN[10] PIKE (Hiram, Jr.[9], Hiram[8], John[7], Dudley[6], Jacob[5], Robert[4], Robert[3], Major Robert[2], John[1]), son of Hiram and (1st) Caroline M. (Rideout) Pike, Jr. He was born 24 November 1864, Lyndon (Caribou), Maine and died 12 March 1918, Edmundston, N.B., Canada (Brights' Disease).

He married 24 April 1888, Edmundston, N.B., Canada, CELINA MARIE PELLETIER. She was born 24 December 1866, St. Hilarire, N.B. Canada and died 23 August 1940, Edmundston, N.B. Canada. She was the daughter of VITAL PELLETIER.

Little is known of Sylvester W. Pike other than what has been obtained from visits with his descendants in Edmundston, Canada in later years and that mentioned in his father's biographical sketch (9-816, q.v.).

Freda (Cyr) Allain (#996-1, q.v.) related to this writer: I recall my parents mentioning that my grandfather worked as a saw-filler at the Murchie Sawmill in Edmundston and that it was when working there and living in Edmundston that he met and married Celina Pelletier.

Blanche (Pike) Morgan (10-927, q.v.), Sylvester's half-sister has stated, Sylvester was employed in or about Caribou in the lumber business, at one time he owned and operated a well-drilling machine.

It might be well to mention here that when a law was passed establishing the Maine Archives in Augusta, questionnaires were sent to all town, city and county clerks for filing all information in Augusta. The local clerks in turn contacted many of the families for up-dating all information on their family. The vital record cards on file were completed by Addie (Pike) Upton (10-921, q.v.) for this Pike family.

MELINDA JOSSELYN PIKE

Compiled by Allen R. Pike from information supplied by his family, especially, Earl Maynard Robinson (#919-4):

Melinda Joslyn Pike was born at Caribou, Maine, 1 March 1866, the second child of Hiram and Caroline (Rideout) Pike. Her given name was Melinda but she would always be called "Minnie" or "Aunt Minnie". The name Melinda could be traced back to her mother's relative (Fiske) Rideout (Rideouts in America, p. 207). Her middle name "Joseyln" has always been somewhat of a puzzle, as there appears to be no relative, either of Pikes or Rideouts with that name. Perhaps it was just a friend or a name the mother liked. However, the name Joselyn does appear in later times in the Pike family.

When Minnie was only seven years of age her mother, Caroline, died, 13 June 1874, at the birth of a son, named Edward, who only lived eleven days after his mother. This was Caroline's sixth child. A member of the family writing in later years stated: We may assume that the mother died of child birth. Death from child birth was not uncommon in early days. Due to lack of sanitary conditions and knowledge of germs, etc. Louis Pasteur (1822-95, q.v.) discoverer of the germ theory of disease accomplished most of his important work in the late 1800's. Many a mother suffered a terrible painful death through blood-poisoning. This early acquaintance with pain and suffering was to endure Minnie all the days of her life.

The children all being so young, the father, Hiram, had the children live with different families around Caribou, some with the Allen family.

Minnie with her sister and brothers attended school when the opportunity permitted. The one school in Caribou at that time would have been the one located on High street. None of Hiram's children graduated from high school.

As a young lady she took up the practice of dressmaking - for this was before the time of "store-bought" dresses. Many of the young girls would serve as apprentices to a woman who had a business of dressmaking and sewing. Thus, many young ladies became seamstresses.

During these early times northern Maine was almost a wilderness. To be tamed by adventurous pioneers of the stock and substance that so described our early Americans. Prospectors were beginning to arrive from southern New England in search of employment, especially farming and in the lumbering business. At this time a young man, William Harry Robinson arrived in Caribou. She was twenty-four and he was twenty-eight.

William Harry Robinson, Jr. was born at Hartland, Maine on 6 April 1862 the son of William Harry and Susan Jane (Mitchell) Robinson. His family had a long history of being lumbermen. His father had married a Mitchell girl. She lies buried at Palmyra, Maine. His father's father had died about 1901 and is buried at Togus, Maine. Earl, their grandson had visited both of their graves.

Earl Maynard Robinson (#919-4), writing some years later stated his father and grandfather had the same name "William Harry Robinson". His grandfather, perhaps to cause less confusion used his middle name, "Harry" (except when in the army).

Note on William Harry Robinson (1st): WILLIAM HARRY ROBINSON of Exeter, Maine and SUSAN JANE MITCHELL of Hartland, Maine was published to be married in the town of Exeter on 9 August 1859. They were married in Palmyra, Maine, 24 August 1859, by J.P. Lenfest. They had three children: (1) WILLIAM HARRY ROBINSON, JR., born 6 April 1862, who married Melinda "Minnie" Pike; (2) FRANK L. ROBINSON, born 30 September 1870; and (3) MARION ROBINSON, born 10 January 1872. William Harry Robinson (1st) enlisted in the army on 2 August 1862 at

Canaan, Maine, assigned to Co. "A", 1st. Regt. ME Vol., Heavy Artillery and was discharged outside of Washington D.C., 6 June 1865. In June 1874 while residing at Holyoke, Massachusetts and working in a lumber mill for A.C. Stevens, a belt broke striking him in the left eye resulting in the loss of the eye entirely. He was a pensioner of the U.S. duly enrolled at the Augusta Pension Agency at the rate of six dollars per month (Cert. No. 817, 531). He died at the National Soldiers Home, Kennebec Co., Maine, 10 July 1902. He is buried at the Togus Veterans Cemetary, lot no. 1770; the name is listed on the stone as W.H. Robinson. (Stephen Naas, 3 Jan. 1985) (Stephen Naas also has a very interesting account of William H. Robinson's ancestry. Copy in Pike Files.)

After Minnie's and William's marriage, they started housekeeping in Caribou. In Caribou three of their children were born: Nellie Marion, Harry Eugene, and Sylvester Lemont.

It is presumed, that William in search of employment in the lumbering trade moved his family to St. John Plantation, Maine. This is a small settlement on the border between northern Maine and Canada; near Fort Kent on the St. John River. Because of the need for power the lumbering towns were located on the river. Also much of the lumber and pulp could be floated down the river to the mill. In this small plantation was born Earl Maynard.

Taking his family further "into the woods", we find them living in Cabano, Quebec, Canada beginning in 1901. Cabano is a small town located on Route 2 halfway between Edmundston and Riviere du Loup, Canada on St. Dominque de Lac.

Ed Note: Writing at this late date we may assume that Minnie and William visited with Minnie's older brother, Sylvester Washburn Pike who was at this time married to Celina Marie Pelletier, a young miss from Canada. Since their marriage they had lived in Edmundston. Perhaps it was through this connection that the Robinsons moved to Canada.

Here at Cabana was born two more children: Freida Leona and Evelyn Susan. Although the family only lived in Cabano for about five years an event occurred which had lasting memory on the family for many years.

Earl Maynard Robinson relates (in 1976) this story about his older brother, Harry Eugene Robinson. "One day in May, 1905 when we lived in Cabano, Harry and I got on a farm wagon to ride home. He was eleven years old, I was only six. There were several bags of grain on the wagon plus several children. When we arrived at the house Harry started to get off the wagon. His sweater caught on a wagon stake and before the wagon could stop, he was pulled in front of a back wheel. The heavy wagon passed over his body. I saw it all. It injured him inside. He died about two o'clock the next morning."

Shortly after this time about 1906, they moved back into the States and settled for a time at Greenville, New Hampshire where the twins were born: Harold Richard and Howard Robert.

Throughout these years William sought employment in the mills and lumbering business. His brothers had moved to Vancouver, Canada. They were in the lumbering and mill business and doing very well. William, no doubt, had given serious thought to moving west. In later years, William made a visit with his relatives in western Canada and often related the experience to his family and friends.

Their final days were spent at Sherman Station, Maine; where William was employed as a lumberman and mill operator.

Minnie died 17 June 1923, after a lingering heart condition. She had suffered a slight stroke. She was interned at the "Evergreen Cemetery" Caribou, Maine in the Hiram Pike Lot. Here she lies with her father, his two wives (one her mother), one sister, Lucinda; and baby brother, Edward. At rest directly behind her grave is that of her young brother, Judson and his wife, Abbie.

Earl Maynard Robinson, writing fifty years later recalls the following: "Minnie united with the Congregational Church and showed a real christian life by her patience and great suffering. She was a patient loving mother and to her children she owed much in the trying times through which all were called to pass. William had been rather inclined to consider religion as a matter of no special import--but a few years before his death he was strangely--but soundly converted and tried to live up to his christian profession."

William survived Minnie by seven years. One day in December, he had started on a short vacation to visit some of his children in Dixfield, Maine, to spend the holidays. While on the train he was stricken by a heart attack. He was taken from the train to a hospital where he died 23 December 1930. What an unhappy Christmas. He is buried beside his dear wife, Minnie at the "Evergreen Cemetery," Caribou, Maine.

Two beautiful stones mark the graves--marking the last tribute to their lives. Minnie's reads, which certainly can be attributed to Will: She thought of others ever--herself never. We can't forget. On Will's: At rest in fullness of life.

EARL MAYNARD ROBINSON
1898-1977

Earl Maynard Robinson was born at St. John Plantation, Maine on 28 December 1898. Shortly after his birth his family moved to Quebec, Canada where he attended school for one year. In about 1906 the family moved back into the States and settled at Greenville, New Hampshire. Then they moved to Sherman Station, Maine where he finished the 9th grade.

When a young man he lived and worked for his Uncle John and Aunt Annie Jacobs. They had a farm on the Caribou-Washburn Road in northern Maine. While there he attended Caribou High School.

On 17 January 1915, at age seventeen, he enlisted in the U.S. Navy for a four year period. He was honorably discharged at twenty-one as a 2nd Class Gunners Mate. The war had ended and he returned to Dixfield, Maine to work in the mills. He met and married Myrtle C. Arbo of Mt. Chase, Maine, 29 Sept. 1920. They had two children: Iola Robinson, born July 2 1921 and died 6 Feb. 1922, and Randolph Russell Robinson, born 29 April 1931.

Earl worked as a "Flooring Grader" until WWII when upon the advise from the U.S. Navy he reenlisted and served as Chief Gunner Mate on a destroyer in the South Pacific.

After the war he returned home to work with Sherman Lumber Company. When he was 59 years of age he was told to stop work because of a heart condition.

Along with mill and lumber work he served four years in the regular Navy during WWI, three years active duty during WWII with a total of ten years with the Navy.

Myrtle and he became Christians and were baptized in the river back of the church. Earl writes, "Christ became our Lord and God. We did our best in serving Him. We helped cut logs to build the first church in the town in 1925. At the age of 78 years I've had to slow down."

Myrtle C. (Arbo) Robinson died 23 Aug. 1965 and is interned at Mt. Chase Cemetery, Maine.

In later years Earl moved with his son Randolph Russell Robinson to Boise, Idaho where they resided at 4870 Farrow St., Boise, Idaho 83702.

Ed Note: Earl Maynard Robinson (#919-4) was greatly instrumental in collecting and retaining information on the Robinson Family. His interest in his family was further encouragement for me to compile this history. The last letter from him is dated 4 March 1977 about two months before his death when he wrote, "I read your summary on Randolph and my past (well not all--somethings I did not tell, ha, ha,) but everything was good. After life leaves this old body of mine, it is the plan that it be laid along beside my wife in Mt. Chase, ME. I think then all will be in Maine except I don't know where my brother Harry was laid. I was on the wagon that run over him--it was years before the "face" grew dim, but never forgotten."

Upon his death, 29 May 1977, his plan came true. His body was returned to Sherman Station where the funeral was attended by the many relatives living in the area, and later interred Mt. Chase Cemetery, Maine.

919-5. FREIDA LEONA[11] ROBINSON, daughter of William W. and Melinda J. (Pike) Robinson, was born 12 July 1901, Cabno, P.Q. Canada, and died 3 January 1972, Dixfield, Maine.

He married 28 December 1960, Medway, Maine, RETA ANN DAVIS. She was born 7 June 1935, Medway, Maine, and died 14 July 1977, Boise, Idaho (Inter.: Family plot, Mt. Chase, ME). Reta was the daughter of LOWELL and OLA DAVIS of Medway, Maine.

Randolph Russell Robinson attended grade school at Sherman Station, Maine, and high school at Sherman Mills. He attended college in Bangor, Maine, and was a special student at the University of Maine, Orono. He enlisted in the U.S. Navy for four years and was in the Korean Conflict on the U.S.S. Frontier Destroyer Tender and also served on the U.S.S. Cape Experience Air Craft Carrier. After service in the navy he returned home and was employed by the Great Northern Paper Company in work for which he had been trained. He worked there about twelve years as "Manager, Purchase and Stores Northern Division". He resigned this position to accept a position with Boise Cascade Corp. for one year in Newcastle, Canada. He was asked to go west to their headquarters. The company flew him to Boise for an interview. He liked the offer so the family moved to Boise, Idaho. He was "Director of Corporate Procurement Management".

In 1978, Randolph writes of Reta, his wife's death: "I had just returned home from attending father's burial in Maine, when on July 4th (1977) Reta, who had an asthmatic condition--had her weekly allergy injection--which within five minutes caused a major cardiac and respiratory arrest. She was transferred immediately to a nearby hospital but suffered a second cardiac and respiratory arrest before a pace maker could assist the heart, and death was within two hours without her coming to. Her funeral was held in Boise, Idaho and then the girls: Candance Ann, Beth Ann Robinson and I flew her home to Maine where a funeral was held for her family and friends. She was buried in Mt. Chase, Maine along side of Dad and Mother (Earl and Myrtle Robinson).

Reta's death was a complete shock to us but we must accept all things as being the will of God. Her death from an allergy injection was only the second recorded in history. A boy in Chicago, sixteen years ago, had the same thing happen. She had been taking the weekly allergy shots for approximately two years and they seemed to help her allergy problems a lot."

JUDSON BIRD PIKE

Compiled by editor from conversations with family and relatives:

Judson Bird Pike was born at Caribou, Maine on 1 September 1867, the third child of Hiram Pike, Jr. and his first wife, Caroline Rideout Pike. Hiram and Caroline Pike had moved to Caribou from Portland, Maine. A year after Judson was born his father, Hiram purchased a farm in Woodland and the family moved there prior to 1869.

"Judd" as he was usually called, lived on the farm and enjoyed the company of his older brother, Sylvester and older sister, "Minnie". Her real name was Melinda but everyone called her "Minnie". When Judd was two years of age another baby arrived in the Pike Family. She was called Addie Evelyn. She was born on the farm.

The farm to which we refer was on the Brown Road, Lot 84, later called "The Sutherland Place".

The enjoyment of this little family was not to last long. Two other babies were born into the family but died in infancy (Edward and Lucinda). When Judd was only six years of age his mother, Caroline Rideout Pike died (13 June 1874). His mother was only 29 years of age. No doubt in later years Judd was to learn that many mothers in pioneer times died giving birth.

For the next seven years Judd with his brother and now two sisters were boarded out with different families in the village of Caribou. All of his father's relatives lived in southern Maine. His mother's relatives lived in the Presque Isle area.

The family was again brought together when the father, Hiram, Jr. remarried a second time (1800), Clara Alice Merritt of Grand Falls, N.B., Canada. Clara was 28 years younger than Hiram. She was only six years older than Judson. Some generations back the two wives were related as cousins.

Judson now at the age of thirteen would have been expected to be working and in some ways supporting the family. There were many jobs for a young boy. In many cases they were a "man's job". He had no doubt started school in the one-room schoolhouse on the Woodland Road, when they lived on the Brown Road. While residing in the village of Caribou, he would have attended the school which was later called the "Sincock School". Most of the children received at least a sixth grade education before settling down to the hard pioneer work.

By this time, Judd's father had become a proficient carpenter and there were many tasks to which Judd could give a helping hand. With this trade, Hiram moved his family to Van Buren, Maine ca. 1881. Mills and small villages were taking shape along the St. John River. Also Hiram had upon many occasions been called upon to make coffins as they were needed. All this added experience to the young apprentice, Judson. In Colby's Atlas of Maine (1885) Hiram is listed as "Manufacturer of and Dealer in Carriages and Sleighs. Carriage Repairing and Painting done to order". All this was in preparation for work which Judd eventually followed.

Three more children were born in Van Buren: Nellie Olive, Annie Burpee and Eugene Hale.

After about nine years the family moved back to Caribou. Caribou Village in 1889 was beginning to expand and Hiram with his sons were well known for their excellent work.

Hiram purchased a farm on the Caribou-Washburn Road near the Bailey Mitchell Bridge, on what was later to be called the "Noble Farm". There are no indications that Hiram ever returned to farming after his earlier experience. He and Judd would walk into the village for employment. (The house in which they lived--much improved (1992) was still standing.)

More half-brothers and half-sisters arrived: Blanche Hazel, William Merritt, Charles Boutelle, and Jennie Bernice. By this time Judd's older brother, Sylvester was married and living in Edmundston, Canada. "Minnie" had married William Robertson and was busy raising her family. Addie Evelyn with her half-sister, Annie Burpee had gone to Massachusetts to work in the textile mills.

When his step-mother, Clara Alice Merritt died in 1900, Judd was thirty-three years of age. Judson worked with his father for several years but eventually worked by himself. Erma, his daughter, years after her father's death writes: My father worked with his father doing woodmaking and also had a shop down on Water Street, beside the old Knox building where they also fixed wagons and sleds. He showed me where it was and what they did.

When he left there he went to the High School Street Schools. There I think he did a great job. Besides just working there he helped the teachers with the children who couldn't speak English.

When my father lived in Van Buren he learned French and never forgot it. He also acted as translator for some people that wanted to buy cows or something up in the French country.

He was also with the first Volunteer Firemen. I believe there were only five men at the time it was organized prior to 1890. They had a wagon and 700 feet of hose.

Jennie Pike Farley, his half-sister, recalls that he lived over his carpenter shop on Water Street. She would visit him. There was no stairs going up to the apartment but rather a long ramp with cleated boards across the floor to keep from slipping. She recalls that the father would often get cross at Judd for not returning tools which he had borrowed. No different than father and son problems today.

In the Caribou Directory of 1895-96 and 1905-06 Judson was listed as a painter living "at home on the Washburn Road". In 1904 he was listed as a "carpenter".

Judd's father who had a heart condition was for several years a partial invalid. On 8 January 1908, Hiram, his father, died. They had by this time moved from the farm into the village and lived on York Street. Judd was now 42 years of age.

Judson Bird Pike and Abbie Venning Brown were married at Caribou, Maine on 30 September 1909. She was born 20 April 1888 at Fort Fairfield, Maine, the daughter of Elias Brown.

As mentioned by Erma previously, in later years Judson was employed as janitor of the Caribou Schools on High Street, a position in which he was highly respected. At this time the family lived on Middle Street near the Caribou Fair Grounds. Blanche Hazel Pike Morgan, his half-sister, writing in later years, stated: "He was trusted and respected in many ways; he often accompanied the Superintendent of Schools as interpreter before the Town Fathers on major issues dealing with the schools, especially in support of securing supplies and needs for the school."

Judson Bird Pike died 12 May 1929 at the age of 61 years. After his death Erma continue: "After his death Gertrude and Mildred swept the rooms of the school and Mother washed and cleaned the buildings that fall that father died."

In 1929, after Judd's death, Abbie went to work at J.C. Penny's in the village where she worked until her marriage in November 1931 to Harvey Somers. In so doing she found a home for herself and a kind step-father for the children. They moved to the Powers Road (3½ miles from town) where Harvey farmed. In 1943 they sold the farm and moved to Elm Street in the village.

Harvey H. Somers was born 29 February 1884, at Caribou, Maine and died 21 February 1953, Caribou, Maine. Abbie died 24 November 1964 at Caribou at the age of 76 years.

Judson and Abbie Pike had four children: Mildred Electra who married Omar Albert Toner; Gertrude Joyce who married Sullivan I.[10] Russell, son of Charles[9] and Ida (Barnes) Russell, a descendant of William Russell (1605-1661) - William Russell Family, by Opel L. Currier, 1980 - typed and printed by Allen Pike; Frank Hiram who married Barbara D. Morgan, after Barbara's death in 1991, Frank married (2nd) Lorna A. (Shearer) Russell; and Erma Fay who married Forrest A. Drake.

This writer had many a happy times visiting with this family as he always found the visit to the "big village" of Caribou an excitingly different experience from that of the country. Perhaps one of the outstanding visits which made a lasting impression upon his memory was a visit with his cousin, Frank to visit Frank's father at the school. It was Saturday, of course.

There were two school buildings located on high street; at one time the elementary school and the other the high school. In one of these buildings was maintained the system which operated the village fire alarm whistle. How many a nights at home nine miles away have we heard that mournful whistle calling "fire!" It always sounded more mournful in the cold winter nights when the clear air carried the sound.

To a young boy all this mechanism of pulleys and weights were somewhat frightening. It seemed that after the whistle had blown that Uncle Judd would have to rewind the mechanism by pulling up these weights. Little did we know that he would soon have to rewind the mechanism for no sooner had we examined the monster when the whole thing exploded into turning wheels with a screaming sound atop the building. Frank thought it was fun. The boy from the country thought otherwise. Allen thought he would get even when Frank came to the country for a visit. They didn't come to the country very often and when they did it was just a short visit--like a Sunday afternoon.

A visit to the country is better recalled by Erma in her writings of later years: I remember the time I was out to your house and got up one morning when it was cold. We all huddled around the big stove in the living room. I stood near the heater stove and burned a big hole in my skirt. Aunt Edna had to patch it before I could go home. I went out there often. We had some good sliding out back of your house. We came to school on the Electric car--the A.V.R. Railroad. I will never forget that big long table that was in the kitchen.

Perhaps to conclude this family history Erma's words will suffice for us all. "I don't think the children today have the fun like we did. When we moved from town to the farm--we worked hard and had plenty to eat. To me it was so much fun and some great times to look back in memory."

ADDIE EVELYN (PIKE) UPTON

Compiled by Allen Pike from conversations and information from family:

Addie Evelyn Pike was born at Woodland, Maine on August 19, 1869, the fourth child of Hiram and Caroline Rideout Pike. She was born on the farm which her father had purchased in Woodland. It was located near the Woodland - Caribou border on the Brown Road. The farm had originally belonged to "Elisha Brown". In later years the farm would be called the "Sutherland Farm". Her father had purchased the farm from the pension money he received from the government for his service during the Civil War.

Addie's older brother, Sylvester Washburn Pike was born in Portland, Maine and her sister, "Minnie" and her other brother, Judson were born in Caribou. Addie was the only child to be born on this farm. When Addie was only four years of age her mother, Caroline Rideout Pike, died (1873).

By this time the family had moved back into Caribou. At this early date the only relatives would have been on the mother's side of the family. All of Hiram's family would have been living around Norway and Portland, Maine. The children went to live with friends or relatives. We do not know where baby Addie went to live.

In 1880, when Addie was eleven years of age her father remarried. Addie's step-mother was Clara Alice Merritt whose family lived in Grand Falls, New Brunswick, Canada. Shortly after his second marriage Hiram moved the family to Van Buren, Maine. He had become an excellent carpenter and continued this trade.

We know little of the early days of this family. We may assume the children went to the local schools and church. Anyhow when Addie was about twenty years of age the family moved back to Caribou and lived on the farm which in later years was called the "Noble Farm". It was located about a mile west of the Village of Caribou on the northeast corner of Lombard and the Caribou - Washburn Roads at the Bailey Mitchell Bridge.

By now Addie had a half-sister, Annie Burpee and a half-brother, Eugene Hale; soon there were more children: Blanche Hazel, William Merritt, Charles Boutelle, and Jennie Bernice.

When a young lady, Addie went to Lowell, Massachusetts with her half-sister, Annie, to seek employment in the textile mills. In Lowell, at the age of thirty-five she met and married Rev. Charles Russell Upton.

Rev. Upton was a native of Lowell having been born there July 20, 1856. He was a graduate of Lowell High School, Brown University and Newton Theological Seminary. He had been ordained in Cranston, Rhode Island in 1887. He had held several pastorates in Minnesota and North Dakota. During this time he had met and married Elizabeth Butman. They had not been married long when Elizabeth died.

After his wife's death Rev. Upton came east where he met Addie Evelyn Pike and they were married at Lowell, Massachusetts on September 6, 1904. His profession took the family to several places in New England, especially as pastor of the Baptist Church in North Conway, New Hampshire. They had one daughter, Hazel Estella Upton who was born at Grafton, Vermont on December 1, 1905. In later years they lived in Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire, where his ministry took him.

Addie died May 26, 1939 and is interred in the Edison Cemetery, Lowell, Massachusetts. Hazel, their daughter, writing in later years of her mother said, "She was rather a shy person but always tried to be helpful to her minister husband and to all with whom she came in contact. She was a sincere Christian."

Rev. Upton retired in the fall of 1921 but held several summer pastorates until he went (1952) into the Odd Fellow Home in Worcester, Massachusetts of which he was a charter member where he was living, when he died 20 July 1953.

It is to Rev. Charles Upton that we owe much of the Pike Family History as he searched the records for his wife's ancestors. His research is contained in a small booklet in his hand writing on file in the Maine State Library, Augusta, Maine. It is an interesting report of how he and his wife, Addie Evelyn (Pike) Upton visited the homestead of Dudley Pike (#202, q.v.) in Norway, Maine at about 1946. Dudley Pike being the first of these ancestors to move into Maine and built the first house on Pike Hill in Norway.

Rev. Upton has indicated through his research more connections with the Upton Family then this report covers. Rev. Upton in searching his genealogy of the Upton Family found several connections with Pike Families. Daniel Trask, from whom Rev. Upton is descended, married a Katherine Ann Pike as noted in the Upton line. Of her connection with the Hiram Pike line, Rev. Upton had no definite information. Further, in the Trask line (Rev. Upton's maternal line) there was another contact point with the line of Katherine.

921-1. HAZEL ESTELLA[11] UPTON, daughter of Rev. Charles Russell and Addie E. (Pike) Upton, was born 1 December 1905, Grafton, New Hampshire, and died 11 November 1979, Augusta, Maine (Cremated).

ANNIE BURPEE PIKE (JACOBS)
1884-1924

Compiled by Allen Pike from information from relatives, especially Hollis Linwood Jacobs (#925-3):

Annie Burpee Pike was born 23 June 1884 at Van Buren, Maine. She was the sixth child born to Hiram Pike, Jr. and the second child born to him by his second wife, Clara Alice (Merritt) Pike.

Hiram had moved his family from Caribou to Van Buren about 1881. At this time Annie had two half-brothers: Sylvester and Judson; and two half-sisters: Minnie (Melinda) and Addie. Her first sister, Nellie, who was also born in Van Buren, died after four years of age. Hiram, her father, was a "manufacturer of and dealer in carriages and sleighs". He had tried farming on the Brown Road, Woodland, Maine before moving north to Van Buren.

It was in these surroundings along the St. John River that Annie began her life. Shortly, after her brother Eugene Hale was born in 1887, the family moved back to Caribou and Hiram, the father, purchased a farm on the Caribou-Washburn Road near the Bailey Mitchell Bridge. In later years the farm was referred to as "The Noble Farm". Records indicate that Hiram didn't keep the farm very long. He then returned to his other profession, that of being a carpenter.

On this farm Annie was to enjoy the company of more brothers and sister: Blanche Hazel, William Merritt, Charles Boutelle and Jennie Bernice. The family was to enjoy the rural country living until 1900 when the mother died (May, 1900). At this time Annie would have been sixteen years of age. Being one of the older girls, she assisted in keeping house for one or two years when she went to Lowell, Massachusetts to seek work in the textile mills. She joined her half-sister, Addie who was already working there.

Annie returned to Caribou after four years and on 28 November 1905 she married John Jacobs. His family lived on the Washburn Road. John was born at Readfield, Maine on 21 May 1884 the son of James Monroe Jacobs. John and Annie went to live on the "Jacobs Farm" on the Caribou-Washburn Road.

On their farm four children were born: Clara Alice, Alda Blanche, Hollis Linwood and John Philip.

John Jacobs, the father, died 6 February 1920 at the age of 35. Annie remarried February 1922, George Lawson. George was born in 1888 at Andover, N.B., Canada. They continued to live on the farm. However, this was not to last for very long; two years later Annie died on 10 April 1924 at the age of 39. The date of her death was also the date for foreclosing on the farm. George Lawson moved to Massachusetts and later to Deerfield, Florida where he died November 1956.

With the father and mother dying at such early ages, their children have little recollection of them. However, during September 1978, Allen Pike visited with Hollis and Wilma Jacobs at their home in New Sweden, Maine and Hollis recalled much about his family. The conversation was tape recorded and in later months transcribed by Allen Pike. The following are some of the remarks from that conversation: "I was seven when my Dad died (1920) and I was eleven when Mother died (1924). Mother and Dad were the same age. Dad was thirty-five and Mother died four years later when she was thirty-nine.

We lived on the Washburn Road about four miles from Caribou. It was just below the hill from the Tuttle Farm.

Jimmy (James) Jacobs, Dad's father owned a considerable amount of land around Caribou and Washburn. This included large acres around the Caribou Lake area where Fred Jacobs lived. Grandfather Jimmy Jacobs divided his land between John, my father and my Uncle Fred. Father got the farm on the Washburn Road and Fred got the farm on the Caribou Lake Road. Grandfather also owned land in Woodland. In later years Grandfather moved into the Village of Caribou and lived on Teague Street. He lived to be around 85 or 88 years of age. I recall as a child that Grandfather would come out to the farm and help Dad with the farming.

In later years I had several conversations with my Grandfather. He said he paid as much as seventy-five cents an acre for a lot. He thought that was high. (Ed. Note: Land was held by the state and sold for 25 cents per acre, one-half payable in work on the state roads. Ref.: Whittier, page 64.)

We went to a one-room school which was located up the road from our house. We drove a horse and sleigh to school in the cold weather. It was a covered wagon or covered sled. We would leave the horse at Ed Rider's who lived across the road from the school.

I was in the fifth grade when Mother died. She had a heart-condition. We were in school the day she died and they came and got us. You know what actually happened?

A hen had come in out of the barn, you see, we had that nice shed and the hen was determined to set there where she didn't belong. Mother had this darn basket and she was moving this darn hen back into the barn. This shed was connected to the barn along this walkway. There were steps which went up to a sort of attic over the shed were odds and ends were kept. When they found her she was three or four steps up there just sitting on the steps where she died.

These were very hard times for the farmers. Potatoes on which they depended for their livelihood were selling from fifteen to twenty-five cents a barrel.

After the death of our parents the children went to live with relatives and friends.

Hollis' conversation continues with considerable information about his sisters and brother.

Of all the grandchildren of Hiram Pike, Jr., this family perhaps suffered the greatest loss. In later years, taking into consideration their many trials and tribulations, they all did well. Then again, it is not for this writer to speculate on their lives. It could best be said by them. This writer never knew his Uncle John and Aunt Annie Jacobs, as he, like their children, was too young to remember, being six years of age at their deaths.

Clara Jacobs writing in 1976: "When my father was four his family moved to Washburn. That is a story that might make a good novel someday. Grover Cleveland was president and the country was in the worst depression we ever had. So anyone who could left southern Maine. When Mr. Tuttle and Mr. Blackstone came there they bought land from father."

Margaret Althea (Staples) Hosey (#925-5) writing in 1976 noted: "My grandfather, John Jacobs, was a farmer and a 32nd degree mason; and grandmother was a member of the Easter Star."

Autobiographical Comments: John "Philip" Jacobs (1980):

"I recall very little about my parents as my father died when I was two and my mother when I was six years of age. After our parents died our family lived with different relatives and friends. Hollis lived with Uncle Clyde and Aunt Blanche Morgan (10-927). Alda and Clara lived with different people. I was raised by Edgar and Lena (Hardison) Russ in Caribou. Lena and Edgar were wonderful people. I was educated at Caribou schools, Hebron Academy and two years at the University of Maine, Orono.

At the time I lived with the Russ Family they were raising about 500 acres of potatoes. This was the time before mechanical tractors and trucks and the work was done with horses. I spent thirty years in agriculture, raising, buying and selling potatoes before quitting at the age of 50.

We moved to Louisiana in 1973 and I went to work at the Beverly Dinner Playhouse, partially owned and operated by my wife Betty's brother, Frank Storer Boone. It was very successful. Betty was Office Manager and I was Food Director. Our daughter, Joy, was also there."

EUGENE HALE PIKE

Compiled from interview with his son, Allen Pike (11-1008), and other references and family conversations.

Eugene Hale Pike, was the third child of Hiram, Jr. and his second wife, Clara Alice Merritt. He was born in Van Buren, Maine, 23 February 1887. Shortly, after his birth his family moved back to Caribou, Maine (1889).

In Caribou the family lived in the "Old Allen House" on High Street. (Ed. Note: This house was located in back of the Tuttle homestead on High Street which in 1976 has also been torn down — except for the little tool house located in back. A gas-filling station is now located on what was the Tuttle Homestead, across from the Caribou Baptist Church.)

The family also lived on Pleasant Street in a house which later (1956) belonged to Earl Chandler. Perhaps one of the reasons why the two families were so well acquainted and often visited each other. (Allen Pike and S. Hobart Chandler were high school classmates.)

When Eugene was four years of age the family moved to a farm on the Caribou-Washburn Road, about a mile from the village of Caribou, next to the Caribou Stream and the Bailey Mitchell family. This farm was later referred to as the "Noble Farm." (Reference: LIB 123 p. 352 Houlton, Maine County Records.) It would appear that the family resided on the farm for a few years prior to the purchase by the mother, Clara A. Merritt in 1892.

On this farm other members of the family were born: William Merritt, 18 September 1891; Charles Boutelle, 17 December 1893; and Jennie Bernice, 14 April 1896. Blanche Hazel, another sister had been born in the village of Caribou, 27 April 1888.

From the farm, the children of school age walked the mile or so into the village and attended the High Street School.

On 9 May 1894 Hiram and Clara, the father and mother sold the farm to Silas P. Grimes, and shortly after, the family moved back into the village and resided on York Street. As one of the children later responded, "We didn't have so far to walk to school."

Clara Alice (Merritt) Pike, their mother died on the farm in 1900. Annie Burpee, an older sister who was born in Van Buren, 23 June 1884 kept house for the family for one or two years. Then she went to Lowell, Massachusetts to work in a factory. She joined her half-sister, Addie Evelyn Pike, who was already working there.

After Annie's departure, Blanche Hazel then at the age of twelve years, left school, to keep house for the family. She continued to be the mainstay of the family until the death of the father, Hiram, 8 January 1908.

The family broke up and lived with different relatives and friends in the area. Thus, we begin the story of Eugene Hale Pike.

Eugene worked out as a farm hand mostly in the Caribou, Washburn, and Woodland area. He worked for George Washburn, a brother to Ernest Washburn. They lived on the "Old Washburn Road" at the top of Paul's Hill.

The farm was the second on the right at the top of the hill. (In 1956 the farm was owned by Earl Blackstone.) It was while staying and "working for room and board, mostly" that Eugene was able to continue his education — to completing almost his second year in high school. (Ed. Note: In later years, Waldo Harrison, one of his classmates who had struck it rich in oil, in California, extended a paid trip to his classmates for a class reunion. Eugene received an invitation but declined, I would gather, because he would not take the trip without his wife, Edna.)

Eugene relates the story that George Washburn often had long periods of sleeping. He would go to bed and stay for a week out of every month. Eugene worked for George Washburn all one summer for $18.00 a month with room and board. Work consisted of usual farm work: driving horses, milking cows, and general farm labor, as well as clearing the land which was in those early days still wilderness, in a sense.

Potato farming was fastly becoming the main crop for the Aroostook County farmers. Farming machinery was rather crude compared with later years. Potatoes were sprayed against pest control by a horse drawn pump. The sprayer pressure being pumped by hand. Pumping the sprayer and driving the horses was one of Eugene's farm duties. The sprayer covered three rows of potatoes at a time.

During the winter months he sought employment cutting lathe wood and lumber for Amos Vance of Caribou.

In the summer of 1905 he worked on a farm owned by Darwin Eddy on the Woodland Center Road. This farm was across the road from the Barnum Farm which became a recognized point of reference in the early days. It was a small settlement with church, school and several homes. Mr. Eddy had a lot of cows, which required a lot of milking (long before the inventing of milking machines).

In the fall of 1905, he went to work for his brother-in-law, John Jacobs (Annie's husband — they had been married 28 November 1905). During the winter Eugene would return to cutting lumber in the woods.

He continued working at different farms until the summer of 1912. While working for Arthur Leffaty on the "Old Washburn Road" he met Edna Estella Russell. (This farm was the third on the right when going up Paul's Hill.)

Edna Estella Russell was the daughter of Maurice Sullivan (1870-1934) and Elnora Dorcas (Tuttle) Russell (1879-1964). Maurice had moved to Washburn from Brighton, Maine. Elnora Dorcas Tuttle Russell had been born in a log cabin in Washburn, Maine. (Ed. Note: "William Russell Family", September 1980 by Open Louise Currier gives an extensive compilation of this family.)

Eugene and Edna (Russell) were married 15 July 1912 in Grand Falls, New Brunswick, Canada. They stayed at Eugene's uncle Albert (called "Uncle Bert") and Martha (called "Aunt Mattie") Merritt's home in Argosy, Grand Falls. (A copy of the marriage certificate in files.)

Hilda Merrit (McBay) often related the story as told by her father: Her father and mother, Albert and Martha Merritt had been honeymoon guest's of Eugene's father and mother, Hiram and Clara Merritt Pike, Clara Merritt Pike being a sister of Albert Merritt, in 1895, when the Pikes lived on the Noble Farm. Hilda's parents spent their honeymoon there. The newly married couple found sleeping accommodations not to their newly married life. All the females in the household slept downstairs, while all the males climbed a ladder to the loft above to sleep. (Ed. Note: The Rideout and Merritt families are covered elsewhere in this history.)

After marriage Eugene Hale Pike worked for his father-in-law, Maurice Russell who had early purchased the Buzzell property on the Caribou-Perham Road. Pauline Elnora, their first child was born there 15 February 1913. This farm became known as the Russell Homestead and remained in the family until about 1986. Merle Kenneth Russell was the last family member to own the farm.

Through the help of his father-in-law, Maurice Russell, Eugene occupied and later purchased in the fall of 1913 a farm on the Tangleridge Road (two and a half miles north of Colby Siding), Woodland, Maine. The farm consisted of 50 acres and was purchased for $5,000. (Ed. Note: Maurice Russell purchased the farm from Andrew Anderson, 1 November 1913 — LIB 272, page 185, County Records). There was a mortgage of $2500 on the property. On 5 May 1917, Eugene purchased the farm from Maurice Russell for $5,000. The original mortgage to Andrew Anderson and Kennebec Savings Bank of $2500 was assumed by Eugene. (LIB 272, p. 185)

The Town of Woodland was at this time becoming a pioneer town. Settlers had come as early as 1859 and from The History of Woodland, we learn that the first male child was born in 1861. So Eugene Hale, much like his father, Hiram II, might well be considered in that early era of pioneers of Woodland.

Fifty acres of untamed land was not an unconquerable task for those early men and their families. They knew hard labor for which their return was the comfort and concern for their families.

In later years as one travels through the countryside of the area of Tangleridge one marvels at the feats of those early farmers. The rock walls along the roads attest to the manual labor involved in clearing the land for farming. With their meager farming equipment and tools, one wonders how they moved the large stone or built the unmovable foundations for their houses and barns. Many of these foundations, for many years missing the house or barn, still stand surrounded or buried with natural growth of trees and bushes. Nevertheless, a symbol of what made America. (Ed. Note: A visit to the farm in 1988 shows no resemblance of the house or barn. This site is overgrown with wild rose bushes. The driveway obscured by fallen trees and goldenrod.)

It was to this task that Eugene put his labors of clearing the land and making a livelihood for his family.

For a young bride of seventeen this must have been a frightening experience for Edna. However, it can readily be assumed that a girl of seventeen or even younger was well trained for this task of cooking and keeping house. Yes, even bearing and raising children. She had left a home of six brothers and three sisters so was accustomed to house work and caring for children.

Whatever the circumstances, the family lived happily on this farm for seven years. During these years six children were born: Elvie May, 3 June 1914; Charles Maurice, 4 May 1915; Infant, 16 August 1916; Infant 26 June 1917; Allen Raymond, 14 July 1918; and Ruby Margaret, 22 July 1920.

On 24 September 1920, Eugene sold the farm. Now with a wife and five children, the oldest, Pauline Elnora only seven years old, Eugene started out to seek his fortune. For whatever reason he sold the farm, we are not certain. It would appear for a better investment. It certainly involved hard work; but that was the way of life. It was not a great financial investment. Perhaps all that might be said in retrospect, from a son that was born there but too young to remember, was that it afforded a healthy and happy livelihood for the family.

The farm had been purchased for $5,000 and was sold for $6,000, with the $2500 second mortgage on the property. We have no way of knowing what monies passed between the buyer and seller during these early transactions. What is interesting of note is the value of the property listed on these early deeds.

For whatever the reason for moving from the farm, the unpredictable future would play an uncertain road for the family from a financial standpoint. It may be said that from this point in the history of this family they began traversing the area in search for a home and employment by the father.

On 31 August 1920, Eugene invested $3000 in a larger farm in Mapletown, Maine. This was a larger farm with approximately 160 acres. This negotiation would have taken place prior to the sale of the farm. He sold the farm 24 September 1920 (LIB 326, page 318) to Frank A. Anderson and Willis L. Sealander.

Purchasing his new farm this time of the year meant that the year's crop of potatoes was still in the ground and needed harvesting. The fact that the crop was still to be harvested must have had some bearing upon the price for the deed lists the price for $30,000. (Ackerson had purchased the property from Walter H. Laffatey — LIB 313, page 549 — on 31 August 1919. The property carried a second mortgage of $13,000 to Laffatey.)

It was not unusual even in those early years for people to contract or purchase fields of potatoes as investments. As it was to prove in later years to many of these investors, so it did to Eugene, a bad investment. Before the potatoes could be harvested many of them rotted in the ground. When the farm was purchased potatoes were selling for $4.00 per barrel, a figure which could have been encouraging for any investor. With the rainy and late season, this was not a good season and the crop was a complete failure.

Unable to finance the balance of the agreement, they left the farm. The farm was sold back to Henry Ackerson for $500 (LIB 327 page 240) on 16 March 1921 — less than a year of ownership.

Eugene then went to work as a farm hand for different farmers around the vicinity. First, he worked for Roy Whittier (March 1921-November 1921) who lived on the "Old Washburn road." His work depended a great deal upon whether the farmer had an extra house for Eugene's growing family. From November 1921 through May 1922 he was employed by Gerald Burgess who also lived on Paul's Hill. Here was born Bernice Hazel, 19 January 1922.

For the next summer, May through October 1922, he worked for Henry Haines. In October 1922 they moved to the Will Carson house at the top of the hill at Carson Siding ("Deadwater"), Woodland, Maine. This "Hill" over the years got several names: "Giggy Hill", as well as "Johnny Cake Hill." It was a great place for sleding during the winter months. This house at the time was owned, or rented, by Maurice Russell, Edna's father.

In the spring of 1923 because of lack of employment around the area he decided to go to Derby, Maine where several friends had been employed in "car-shops." (These were shops for repairing train cars, not to be confused with "car-shops" or garages, which in later years repaired automobiles.) It was an occupation of rebuilding or repairing railroad cars which were in great demand as the major means of transportation. Wages were $2 per day. Upon arriving he discovered that many of the men had just been laid off and that there was no work. In need of work to support the large family that were living at Carson, he boarded a train to Bangor, Maine where he immediately found employment with W.H. Gorham Company, as a painter. This company was involved in decorating, painting and paper hanging.

It was during this time that he learned the trade of painting and paper hanging which he was to follow as his occupation. He worked with this company for three summers. He returned to Woodland during the winter to work in "the woods" and to be somewhat near his family.

His first summer working in Bangor he received $4.50 per day. For the second and third years he received $5.00 per day.

During the spring of 1923 he forwarded to his family photographs of the flood in Bangor. This continued to be the subject of considerable discussion by the children as none had ever heard of a flood — especially one in which their father had been involved. In the great expanse of northern Maine there was never a serious flood — well maybe the Aroostook River in Washburn would have an ice jam and perhaps a bridge would be taken out — but people had sense enought to build their houses away from the river so as to give the river plenty of room for overflowing. The only other flood the children had ever heard about was "Noah's Flood" from Sunday School classes at the Carson Church.

It fell upon Grandfather and Grandmother Russell, to look after this family during the father's absence. They lived nearby on the Russell Homestead on the Caribou-Perham Road. So it was about this time, July 1923, that the family was moved into another house owned by Maurice Russell. It was located north of Carson Siding on the Perham Road. This home was to become the final homestead for the family. Eventually, after the children were mostly raised and moved away, Eugene and Edna would purchase the house and land and have at last a home of their own. At this time the property was owned by Edna's mother, Elnora Russell, as grandfather Russell had passed away in 1934.

In this house six more children were born: Leander Elroy, 3 October 1923; Eugene Hale, Jr., 10 June 1925; Bennie Frank, 20 September 1927; Infant, 14 September 1929; and Blanche Lillian, 11 March 1932.

In 1929, Maurice Russell remodeled and enlarged the old house and electric lights were installed with open wiring. Before purchasing the house and for several years no rent was paid. During the depression and after grandfather Russell died, grandmother Russell, finding it extremely difficult to keep the farm and expenses asked that something be contributed toward rent. They then paid $6 per month for rent. In later years Grandmother Russell came to live with her daughter, Edna. That's after Eugene had passed away and most of the family grown and moved away.

After working for or in partnership with other painters, Eugene in 1926 went to work for himself, as a jobber: a paper hanger and painter. It was an occupation which made great use of the many children, especially during summer school vacation when the group would pile into an old car and go painting on some old barn — we never got to do any fancy work. Eugene would have been a wealthy man, as Mother Pike often remarked, if he had got paid for all the paint the kids "accidentally" dropped or splattered on each other.

His only personal indulgence was the chewing of "snuff" or to be more exact "Red Top" and "J.T. Tobacco". How well the kids remember, especially when riding in the open Ford car with father driving. It was a toss-up to determine whose turn it was to sit behind father as he drove the car "spitting" tobacco juice out the open side — especially on a windy day! The one behind him might get "splashed!" A good lookout was required: "Duck!" The exchange of a pinch of "Red Top", in the cheek was as common upon meeting a friend as the exchange of a cigarette might become.

Perhaps it was to this one indulgence that hastened away his life. In later years he contracted breathing difficulty with other diseases of "old age", heart problems which was common with his family, and while living at his home on the Perham Road with his wife, Edna of forty-eight years, he quietly passed away. The last few days of his life he had been taken to the Caribou Memorial Hospital and passed away in his sleep.

Thus, a member of the 10th generation of Pikes in America came to an end. Certainly, he continued the Pike name. Quietly as he had lived — without asking favors of anyone — so he died.

Eugene Hale Pike died at the age of 73, on 5 October 1960. He lies buried in the Riverside Cemetery, Washburn, Maine, where he joined his oldest son, Charles Maurice who died 20 April 1952, and later joined by his son, Leander Elroy who died 13 November 1975.

On 27 January 1989, twenty-nine years later, he was joined by his beloved and devoted wife, Edna Estella (Russell) Pike. Upon her passing they had sired thirteen children, 34 grandchildren, 65 great-grandchildren, and 22 great-great-grandchildren.

EDNA ESTELLA RUSSELL PIKE

Written by her son, Bennie F. Pike (11-1013):

Edna was the favored child to Elnora and Maurice Russell. She was the first of their own children and the first grandchild of the paternal grandparents, Sullivan and Irene (Willard) Russell and maternal grandparents, Leander and Margaret Tuttle. She traced her Russell ancestry to William Russell (1605-1661) who migrated from England ca. 1635 (the same time that Eugene H. Pike, her future husbands ancestor John Pike arrived in America). More so, she was a descendant from James Russell (1716-1775), who, when defending his family and farm during the Battle of Lexington, 19 April 1885, was "barbarously murdered in his own house by Gage's bloody troops," at the age of 59. (The James Russell house is today a National Registered Landmark in Arlington, Massachusetts.) Leander Tuttle, her maternal grandfather migrated from Pownal, Maine to Caribou in 1878, where he settled on the Caribou-Washburn Road and became a leader in community affairs, serving two terms in the state legislature (1915-17).

As a teenage girl she had her own driving horse and buggy and with it took her friends to social affairs around Woodland, Washburn and Caribou. A one such occasion, a dance at the Caribou Grange Hall, she met a young farm laborer of medium build, pale blue eyes, and a gentle manner. His name was Eugene Pike and he worked on the John Jacob's farm on the Washburn-Caribou Road. They fell in love and were married 15 July 1912. Their honeymoon was spent visiting Gene's Uncle Bert and Aunt Mattie Merritt who lived about twenty-five miles away at Argosy Siding, Grand Falls, New Brunswick, Canada. Their journey being by horse and buggy. For a time after their marriage they lived with her parents and Gene worked on the Russell farm, which was reputed to be one of the most successful in the Town of Woodland.

The next summer they made a down-payment on a small farm on the Pratt Road in Woodland Center. Their next door neighbor was the Olaf Nylander family. Olaf was in the process of becoming one of Aroostook County's most famous citizen as a scientist and botanist. (In later years the Nylander Museum would be built in Caribou, Maine to house many of his collections.) His family did the farming while he carried out his scientific explorations and collections.

One year before the Pratt Road farm was to be paid-off, Gene, in the fall of 1920, bought a farm in Mapleton. Their children relate that Christmas, that year, was the most joyous the Pikes' had ever known — the presents were numerous and the most expensive ever. Their joy was short-lived. Potatoes, which were in the ground when the farm was purchased, were of poor quality. First quality potatoes that year sold for fifty-cents a barrel. The Mapleton farm venture turned into a financial disaster. The family moved off the farm in May 1921 — they couldn't afford the payments. They had lived there about nine months.

Gene, a quiet and terribly prideful man lost his spirit. This was his last experience at owning a potato farm. Thereafter, he worked as a 'hired man' on other farms, in potato shipping houses, and in logging camps in winter. In the late twenties, he developed a trade as house painter and paper hanger. This he would do for the rest of his life.

Edna and Gene were to have a rather large family. Children were born about every eighteen months until the thirteenth child, Blanche, was born March 4, 1932. Ten of the children grew to adulthood, while three died in infancy. All children were born in her bedroom, sometimes with a doctor in attendance — other times there was only a midwife, many times her own mother. She and Gene were always quietly religious persons and so, Edna, raising five boys and five girls with a child in one hand and the Bible in the other, soon became "the world's most perfect mother." She exerted more power over her flock with a raised eyebrow than any other of God's children. A sigh and a quiet shake of the head was sign of a serious violation of family rules of conduct.

In the winter of 1929, she had a miscarriage. She hemorrhaged so badly that she had to be taken to the hospital some miles away. She was placed on Grampie Russell's long sled, driven to the Carson A.V.R. railroad station, placed aboard the trolley car and taken to the Caribou hospital some seven miles away. It was surely God's will that she survived the ordeal to have one last child, Blanche.

To care for their growing family, she and Gene raised a large vegetable garden. She preserved garden vegetables in two-quart jars. Children picked wild strawberries, raspberries and blueberries sometimes in ten quart pails — these she hulled, cleaned and processed for the winter table.

Wild berries grew in abundance in the newly cleared farming land — strawberries in the hayfields and raspberries in the newly cleared pasture lands. It was not unusual for a teenager, or even an adult, to have located a secret berry patch — until one had picked all the berries. It was not unusual for folks to travel several miles when a good berry area had been located. In those days farmers never seemed to complain or object to having pickers on their property; I guess it was the friendliness that existed with those early settlers. The many bogs along the St. John and Aroostook Rivers were great for the finding of wild berries. One of the largest blueberry patches was the Sawyer Limestone Bog, where folks would arrive by the truck loads of pickers. In later years the Loring Air Force Base would be built, covering the entire bog. But by that time younger folks where not interested in picking wild berries — store bought berries required less effort. It should also be noted that berry picking could also be considered a social event and fun — the older folks could catch up on all the recent happenings and the children dream of buying a toy or perhaps going to the movies, if their mothers completed her winter canning and allowed them to sell their berries. In any case, one could be assured of a big dish of berries for supper — the evening meal, while most of the berries were preserved for the winter table.

During the summer canning season she would be up long before the sun, in the cool of the morning, and have the job finished before the heat of the day hit the kitchen. She burned as much wood in the kitchen stove in summer as in winter. She would pre-heat the electric iron on the stove to cut-down on the use of electricity. And there was always a hot water kettle on the back of the stove quietly and melodiously hissing away in preparation for perhaps a cup of tea. Clothes washed in winter would freeze solid on the outdoor line, the long union-suits looking like ghosts swinging in the winter breeze. No matter what, Monday was always wash day and the clothes had to have fresh air — and there was plenty of it in northern Maine. She would bring the frozen clothes inside — hang them about the kitchen on lines or chairs — to thaw before ironing. Her hands were always busy. Yarn for socks and mittens was unraveled and used over and over again. Adult clothes were made-over for children. During the potato harvest, the family picked potatoes for Grampie Russell and after his death (1934) for Grammie and then for Uncle Merle Russell. All picking money went into a special savings area — the bottom drawer of her bedroom dresser — to help the family through the long, hard Maine winters.

Throughout the terrible depression years, often at dinner time or supper time, folks would drop by just at meal time and be served at an already crowded table. They enjoyed the atmosphere of the home Gene and Edna kept — full of warmth, happiness and family love.

Edna was also a severe asthmatic and would have terrible seizures during the changing seasons of spring and fall, when her motherly duties were the greatest, and in winter months when a slight viral infection from a cold would strike. Her relief came from inoculations of Adrenalin which Gene would administer with a hypodermic needle sterlized in a pie-plate of boiling water on the kitchen stove. She never learned to give herself the shots.

During the warm months, when her cares became overwhelming, she would take a walk "out-back" along a farm field road which extended for about a mile from the house. There, for several hours, past clumps of wild raspberries and blackberries and hazelnut bushes, which lined the potato fields, she would unload her cares to God. When she had purged herself, she would return home. These walks were her escape - the outlet for her pent-up emotions.

Along with these many duties, she still found time to care for her plants and flowers. Her collection of different colored geraniums, which she kept in an upstairs bedroom during the winter, was the envy of many, and many a friend had been given "slips" from them. During the summer, in part of the vegetable garden was her special spot for her many varieties of gladiola — which, because of their long stems, had to be "tied-up", not to mention that each bulb, because of the cold winters, had to be dug-up, dried, and stored inside, each winter.

All the childen were expected to go to church, when it was held in the small country church and Sunday School, which was started by her mother, Elnora Russell, after the farmers got together and built the church. In later years the Sunday School was conducted by Edna's children. When she couldn't go with the family to church or Sunday School because of illness, she would still make sure the children kept their committment to God by memorizing appropriate verses from the Bible to take to class.

Her children returned her love at every opportunity. Elvie became her assistant at an early age helping with the housework and helping raise the family. Elvie became her closest confidant and was at her elbow throughout the rest of her life. Ruby, who did housework for a Caribou farm family for room and board and three dollars a week spent her whole week's wages on a "dress for Mamma" — it cost $2.98. It was a colored print dress and Mamma allowed "it was the prettiest she had ever seen." In the Christmas of 1930, Ruby bought Mamma a little diary from the F.W. Woolworth store, in Caribou. It cost five cents. This was the beginning of her daily diaries which recorded family, neighborhood and world happenings and weather conditions for the next fifty years. When children moved away from home, they could expect a weekly letter from her, written in very small script, which kept them in continual touch with the gentle hand that had raised them.

In the early days she seldom had been more than fifty miles away from her home. After the children had grown and moved away — much against her wishes but for occupational reasons; and especially after Gene, her husband of forty-eight years, passed away, she was persuaded to come for visits with the children.

Inside the front cover of her 1931 diary was a page for personal identifications. Her statistics, as listed at that time, were: weight 190; shoe size 5½; hosiery 9½; gloves, size 7; and coat, size 48. She was "heavy set" like other women in her family.

Mother Pike or Mrs. Pike, as she was called, represented the true pioneer housewife, mother, and neighbor in northern Aroostook, Maine. She raised most of her family without the luxury of electricity, running water in the house, a bathroom, or help from the outside. She never asked for favors or complained, if she did it was between her and her God.

Edna Russell Pike generously fulfilled her life's purpose of being a Mother. If she were asked in later years about her life's purpose, she would proudly say without a second thought: "My children were my whole life."

A tribute to Edna E. (Russell) Pike, an original poem by her son Ben F. Pike (#1013), on her 80th Birthday:

HE MADE A MOTHER

Out of the sky, he took the stars
And from them made her eyes.
He scooped the dew from off the grass
And gave her tears to cry.

He took the breeze from a summer's day
For the gentle touch of a Mother's way.
Out of the Earth, he made the mold
Of a Mother's heart — of the purest gold.

Into his bosom, he reached to find
The wealth of kindness in a Mother's mind.
And from the sun, he drew the smile.
To warm the heart of a frightened child.

When all was done, God put them together,
And saw at a glance
He had created
A MOTHER!

BLANCHE HAZEL (PIKE) MORGAN
1889-1964
by Dorothy Hazel (Morgan) Barnes (#927-3)

Blanche Hazel Pike was born 27 April 1889, the tenth child of Hiram Pike, Jr. (#816), and the fourth child by his second wife, Clara Alice (Merritt) Pike.

She was nicknamed "Bunch" and "Bunny" by her family and friends while growing up, although in my lifetime I only heard her called "Blanche". She grew to be 5'5" tall and she must have been very slim at the time of her marriage since she had a waist measurement of twenty-one inches. By the time she reached her late forties she weighed approximately 170 pounds.

From hearing my mother, Blanche Pike Morgan, reminisce through the years, I'm sure life was hard for the whole family from childhood. She told of winters when the snow sifted through cracks around the windows and onto the beds as they slept in the home on the Washburn Road (Noble Farm). She also told of how they carried water in pails from the Caribou Stream, some one hundred yards from the house, to be heated on the cook stove in a "boiler" or tub for washing clothes, cooking, baths and all other purposes. She told how they walked from that home to school in what is now the Sincock School--probably two and one-half to three miles, sometimes arriving with sodden clothes. She told of having to stand in the corner by the stove for being late for school and feeling so sick from the heat and the smell of wet clothes.

My heart always aches a little for a little girl of 13 years left with the responsibility of cooking and cleaning for a family. She told me of scrubbing bare pine floors until they came white and clean and of how bad she always felt when "the boys would come in with muddy feet" getting them dirty again. She told us of her inexperienced cooking and of how her father coming home from his work tasted and seasoned the food, and of doing the family wash by hand.

Apparently, theirs was always an industrious family, because Mother told of their digging dandelion greens, a spring delicacy in this area, and selling them from door to door to the townspeople. She always chuckled when she told us of how they would wash them well in the Caribou Stream, thus keeping them crisp and filling their containers which would have held more greens if they had wilted. They also picked wild berries and she told of asking her father to "make Jennie help pick" but that Jennie was the baby and wasn't required to help. When Uncle Charles Pike came to visit our home in 1937 after being gone for many years, he remarked upon that fact and said how unfair they had been in giving all their loving attention to the baby without appreciation for Blanche's heavy burden. Knowing her sweet and loving nature, I cannot believe that my Mother ever showed or even felt any jealousy over that fact although she surely must have been very discouraged at time.

I suppose her school days ended when she took over as homemaker because her formal education ended with the eighth grade. However, her education never stopped. She was a prodigious reader and very interested in what was going on in the world.

I'm sure they must have been a loving family, because as they all grew older we could feel their affection and concern for one another. I also think they were happy people although their amusements were simple. Mother always took part in church activities and probably that is where most of their social life was spent although she did tell of skating on the Aroostook River and of having "box socials", probably in a schoolhouse.

After her father, Hiram died, Blanche went to Lowell, Massachusetts to work in a garment factory making underwear. The hours were from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. and she told of how tiring the days were spent at the sewing machine. During this time she lived with a family named Fisher with whom Annie, her sister, had also lived. Apparently she was treated as one of the family because she always spoke of them all as close and loved friends. She also worshiped with them at their church.

After about a year spent in Lowell, Blanche returned to Caribou and married Clyde Morgan on 26 October 1910. Clyde worked for his father, George Melvin Morgan, in the furniture store and as an embalmer and undertaker. They lived with Clyde's parents on Sweden Street in Caribou for the first two years of their married life and produced Regna Louise on 11 June 1911. They then built a house on Washburn Street with the Aroostook Valley Railroad tracks running nearly parallel with the house. Arline Blanche was born in that house on 13 June 1913. It was from that fenced-in yard on 24 May 1915, that Arline either walked through an unclosed gate or under a gap in the fence and onto those railroad tracks to be run over by the train and maimed for life. There followed a terrifying and anxious time spent tending a small paralyzed body at home and finally in Children's Hospital in Portland, Maine before they brought their baby home to learn again to walk in high laced shoes--the left one stuffed with padding in place of toes and a left hand with only one finger and thumb. After this trying time, they brought suit against the Aroostook Valley Railroad and after hearing that the brakeman and the engineer had been angry at each other and not speaking so the brakeman didn't tell the engineer he could see something on the track, they received judgment--the princely sum of $4,500.

Washburn Street was no home for them now so they built another house on Page Avenue which was home to all of us until her death. In that house I was born, Dorothy Hazel on 8 June 1919; Ruth Avis on 22 August 1921 and Marjorie Lillian on 24 January 1925.

I believe that where my mother was, was also home to her brothers and sisters and why wouldn't it have been, since she had been like a mother to them most of her life. My earliest memories are of Aunt Annie Pike Jacobs being in our home and when Aunt Annie died it really became home for Hollis Jacobs who at the age of 11 came to live with us. He lived with us the next five or six years sharing our life as the brother we never had through the lean depression years when another child to feed and clothe must have made things a little harder for my parents. I'm sure they never begrudged anything they gave to anyone. I remember the summer months through the 1930's when men and boys from all parts of the country followed the harvest hoping for work. Many times Mother fed them on the back porch of our home, sometimes as payment for odd jobs but more often because they were hungry. She would say, "I feel so sorry for that boy, so far from home and with nothing to eat."

Alda and Clara Jacobs also considered our home their home after their mother's death since they no longer had a home of their own. They would find work for awhile or spend time with Uncle William Pike's family or Aunt Jennie Farley's or some of the Jacobs family but seemed to gravitate toward our home.

Through our growing years we had many who stayed with us. Some girls from New Sweden who boarded with us while they went to high school (one paid board--$3 per week). Earl Robinson also stayed with us and went to school one year although I do not know the circumstances that brought him.

It seems there was love enough to go around because through the years they all came back to visit and were always greeted with joy and affection.

Mother's sincere religious beliefs showed in her daily life and the love she had for her family and friends flowed back to her. To me it shows in one little way--her nieces, Alda Blanche Jacobs, Shirley Blanche Pike, Blanche Lillian Pike, my sister Arline Blanche (surely my father's doing), and her granddaughter, Coralie Blanche Todd.

Blanche and Clyde Morgan were members of the Free Baptist Church and when that church united with the First Baptist Church they became members of Caribou's United Baptist Church. Blanche was one of the members honored during the laying of the Cornerstone of their new edifice on High Street in Caribou during the 1950's. Many times I walked past her bedroom door as she knelt by her bed to pray before retiring. I can still see her in her long nightgown and her dark hair in a long braid down her back.

Blanche suffered her first heart attack in 1943 but recovered after a long period of tender nursing by her daughter Ruth, to carry on a fairly active life for the next ten or fifteen years. Through the late 1950's and until her death she had several smaller attacks and a slight stroke. Her indomitable spirit survived her loss of many loved ones through those years but when she lost her beloved Clyde on 22 November 1962, she seemed to lose interest in living. I joined her for lunch nearly every work day since my work as Clerk of Court is almost across the street in the County Courthouse. It seemed to me that as I ate with her in hopes to encourage her to eat, I gained weight and she got thinner. We, her daughters, asked her if she ever thought we'd call her "Little Mama". Another heart attack came in March of 1964. Seemingly, she had recovered and her doctor had told her she could be discharged from the hospital on 6 April 1964, which was a Sunday. Thoughtful of others as she always was, she told him she would wait until Monday when her housekeeper would be back and we, the children, would not have to leave our homes to spend the night with her. She died that night while still in the hospital--6 April 1964.

Compiled by his daughter, Shirley B. (Pike) Wilcox (11-1019), November 1976.

William Merritt Pike was born September 18, 1891 at Caribou, Maine - the ninth child of Hiram Pike and the fifth child by his second wife, Clara Alice Merritt Pike. His father and family lived on the farm which in later years became known as the Noble Farm. It was located just west of the Village of Caribou near the Bailey Mitchell Bridge which crossed the Caribou Stream.

When very young tragedy struck the family. His mother died (May, 1900) when he was only nine years of age. Blanche, the oldest sister living at home had to take the responsibilities of the house and care of the young children. There were other older sisters. "Minnie" and Addie, who were half-sisters, having been born by Hiram's first wife. "Minnie" had married William H. Robinson in 1890 and was busy with her own family. Addie had gone to Massachusetts to work in a factory. Annie, the oldest of the second marriage had also gone to Massachusetts seeking employment. Thus, Blanche at about the age of eleven took over this great task of holding the family together.

Around the age of thirteen the family moved to York Street in the Village of Caribou. When he was around the age of seventeen he lost his Dad. From the records I got from another source, my father started working out before his Dad died. He worked for Bert Huston in 1906. From there he went to Fred Saunders, then in 1911 for Charles Smith in Perham. His bride to be was also working there. He worked there from early spring through November. While there he also raised a small garden. It was also said he used to compete with Roy Dickinson picking potatoes to see who was the best picker.

On November 12, 1913, he took Vera Iona Butterfield as his bride and during the first few years of their marriage they lived in Perham. Their first child Kenneth William was born April 1, 1915 in the "Old Tarbox House." Most of this time all of his work consisted of farm work and driving horses. The farmers then hauled most of their potatoes into Caribou.

In 1917 a set of twins was born, a boy and a girl. The boy named Amasa died that same day. The little girl, Amy lived until one day before her first birthday and died of the flu that was raging very badly at that time.

This writer couldn't find out for sure what year they moved to Washburn. It was prior to 1922.

Their next daughter, Shirley Blanche was born December 22, 1922 on Hilt Street in Washburn. While there William did mostly mechanic work. He worked for Glen Chaney, also for the Town of Washburn Garage.

In about 1930 to 1935 he started his own garage. It was small but folks liked his work. He said it was the ones that had money that complained of the prices he charged. Then they would go to another garage and pay more. The poorer people appreciated his work and were willing to pay.

After giving up his garage there were a few years when jobs were scarce and in winter he would work on the railroad and some in the summer also. There were other times he'd come home tired and weary trying to find work to provide for his family but he always managed somehow.

In about 1932 William and Vera heard of a family that had just lost their mother. They knew their daughter, Shirley wanted a sister so they decided to take another little daughter into the family. It was about the best choice they could have made. This little girl was Avis Marie Brawn and she became there adopted daughter. William said she was one of the best and as she grew older she proved it so. She was always just like one of the family. The two girls although they sometimes had their rows like little girls do, they could never be closer to each other than blood sisters. William used to brag and tell them he had two of the best daughters; but of course they thought he was one of the best Dads. Avis lived in Levant, Maine in her Mobil Home and worked in a sneaker factory for sports outfits.

In about 1941 William and Vera moved to Fort Fairfield. There he worked in M.B. Gurou Chevrolet Garage as a mechanic. Then Lewis Hersey took over the same garage and he worked for him.

They had just been in Fort Fairfield a few years when in 1942 tragedy struck again. Vera was severely burned when trying to light a fire, which she thought was out, with kerosene. She died that night, July 12, 1942. William and the girls kept house for awhile then Shirley went back to complete her last year of Bible School. So keeping house was broken up. William then lived alone or boarded out.

In 1945 he received word that Kenneth William Pike had married on April 21, 1945, Doreen Millicent Mail in Auckland, New Zealand. Kenneth had met Doreen while serving in the U.S. Army.

On November 7, 1945 he married Carrie Piers Whitehouse. She had a son and daughter by a previous marriage which were both married at this time. William and Carrie built a new house in Fort Fairfield.

At about this time he worked for Hersey and then went to John Plants until 1948. Mr. Plant's garage burned in 1949 so he went to work for the Fort Fairfield Town Garage. In 1953 the town garage burned. They kept on working in a different building. Shortly they built a new garage. He continued working for the town until 1961 when he retired at age seventy.

Enjoying his retirement with Carrie was not to be his lot. Carrie took sick with what seemed to be hepatitis and an operation was performed. She passed away within a few hours of the operation (September 30, 1961). It was such a short time after his retirement to be left alone once more. He stayed in his home alone until 1969 when he left unable to be alone any longer. He sold his home and went to live with his daughter, Shirley in Caribou. She had married Delmar Allen Wilcox on May 8, 1946. Shirley and Delmar had three children: Valliant Delmer, Merritt Stanley, and Trinette Dezra.

A sad incident happened to William at this time. His stepson pulled a stunt on him over the sale of the house at which William's lawyers said he had no right. William never got over it. He would sit and think about the situation and couldn't understand why his stepson had lied so badly. He seemed to age much faster after this.

At a Christmas dinner one year he had a bad spell at the table when it looked like he was dying. He came through it and lived about two more years.

He then started feeling ill quite a lot of the time and was taken up to the hospital. They were ready to send him home again when he took ill in the emergency room and died in just a few minutes.

His life ended July 30, 1972 at the age of 82 years. He was buried in the Perham Cemetery next to Vera.

Eleven months after his death his son, Kenneth, was killed in an accident at work in Auckland, New Zealand. Kenneth left behind two sons: Kenneth Merritt and James Robert who live in Auckland, New Zealand near their mother. Although they never knew their grandfather, they carry on his name.

William Merritt Pike was one of the best examples of a good Christian man to his family and his many friends.

CHARLES BOUTELLE PIKE

Compiled by his son, Gordon Dale Pike (11-1022).

Charles Boutelle Pike was born December 17, 1893 at Caribou, Maine. He was the tenth child born to Hiram Pike II (1834-1908) and the sixth child by Hiram's second wife Clara Alice Merritt Pike (1891-1900).

When Charles was about 7 his mother died, and his father, who was a carpenter & cabinet maker, moved the family into a store front where he and the older children could take care of the young ones in the back where the living quarters were and his dad could be there, especially when they came home from school, and yet have his business in the front of the store. When his father died Charles was 15, while he lived a short time with relatives and friends, he wanted to make his own way. He went to Canada and had several jobs in the saw mill sand woods related activities. He slowly migrated west to British Columbia where he worked as a common laborer on a boat that hauled lumber on the Kamloops Lake.

The lure of the west and his love of animals drew him to the Southwestern States of Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and finally Nevada where he met and married Gertrude Martha Wright on May 10, 1919. She was a daughter of a prominent cattle rancher -- Jube J. and Jessie Wright. During the WWI he enlisted in the 4th Calvary, and was selected for Officer's Training. The war ended before he could complete his course and be commissioned. He returned to Elko, Nevada. Two sons were born to Charles B. and Gertrude Pike: Sylvester Charles, b. 15 August 1920, Oakland, California; and Gordon Dale, b. 17 June 1923, In Elko, Nevada.

He held many jobs from cowboy to mule skinner (he always prided himself on the fact that he was the last "Jirk Line Driver" in the state of Nevada), all were ranching related. Finally he was awarded a mail carrying contract, and in conjunction with that he started a freight hauling service for North Elko County (Northfork, Mountain City and Jarbridge to name a few). This operation was a success and when his contract ended he moved to town and bought a partnership with George Kennedy in the drayage and coal business. With the repeal of prohibition they enlarged the business to include spirits and soft drinks. After WWII, when neither of his two sons wanted to take over the business, he sold it and purchased a Motel in Eugene, Oregon. He was to later sell that and buy a small farm outside of Portland, Oregon. He died April 23, 1962 and is interned in the Willamette National Cemetery in Portland, Oregon. Gertrude moved to Santa Barbara and lived with Enid Pike, widow of Sylvester. She died October 24, 1976. She too is interned in Willamette National Cemetery.

JENNIE BERNICE (PIKE) FARLEY

Compiled by Allen R. Pike (11-1008) from information supplied by his aunt, Jennie Farley and her family.

Jennie Bernice Pike was born at Caribou, Maine on April 4, 1896. She was the youngest child of Hiram Pike (9-816), and his second wife, Clara Alice Merritt Pike. When Jennie was four years of age her mother died (1900) and when she was eleven years of age her father died (1908).

Following the death of the mother, the father held the family together through the help of the older sisters and brothers; with the older sisters doing the housework. Upon the death of the father the children went to live with different relatives and friends.

Some of Hiram's children by his first wife were now married. Sylvester Washburn Pike was forty years of age and had been married for twenty years. There seems little indication that the young children lived with him as he was now living in Edmundston, N.B., Canada.

The second son, Judson Bird Pike was at the time of his father's death still unmarried and forty-one years of age. It would appear that he continued the family support as records indicate that he took care of his father until he died.

More likely, Addie Evelyn Pike now thirty-nine years of age and having been married to Rev. Charles Russell Upton for four years took upon herself the caring for baby Jennie. So Jennie went to live with the Upton's in New Hampshire. Addie was her half-sister.

After her stay in New Hampshire, Jennie returned to Caribou and lived for a time with her sister, Annie Burpee Pike, who at the age of twenty-one had married John Jacobs in 1905.

When her sister Blanche Hazel Pike married Clyde Sylvester Morgan in 1910, Jennie at the age of fourteen went to live with them.

Claudine, Jennie's oldest child, writes that her mother also stayed with Theresa Stickney for several years.

At a young age, Jennie was taught sewing and she became an accomplished seamstress. This occupation lead to her accepting work in different households.

One such employment took her to the home of Maurice Russell on the Caribou-Perham Road where her brother, Eugene Hale Pike had been working as a farm-hand. Eugene Hale Pike was twenty-one years of age and unmarried at the time of his father's death.

The farm bordering that of Maurice Russell's was owned by Charles "William" Farley. "Will" Farley, as he was called, had a son, John Avery Farley. Jennie Bernice Pike and John Avery Farley met and were married December 25, 1915. She was now nineteen and John was twenty-six years of age.

After these years of moving about in search of a home, Jennie finally settled down to a home of her own as farmer's wife. They lived in Carson Siding until about 1939 when they sold the farm and moved to Washburn, Maine.

Their five children were born on the farm in Woodland, Maine. John Avery Farley died at Washburn, Maine on February 28, 1954. Jennie Bernice Pike Farley, the last living descendant of Hiram Pike's children died at the age of 83 in Presque Isle, Maine.

Ed. Note: It is to Virginia F. (Friedel) Cohen (#931-3) that I am greatly indebted for supplying information on her family, as well as many aunts, uncles and cousins. Since the time of Virginia and Paul's visit with me in Carmel, we have continued to be in contact with happenings and information by phone and correspondence. Her many travels in the Air Force with Paul and later with him on business trips to far away places gave her a great insight to the world and a continued desire to travel. Her annual holiday letters (copies in the file) which read like a travelogue and novel were treasures for those unfortunate, would-be travelers who had to stay home. One of her last letters stated: Started writing my book, about me of course!

ARTHUR CLEMENT WESCOTT

Priscilla L. (Wescott) Kschinka (935-3) wrote of her father in her book, Their Name Liveth, P. 10 ff.

Arthur Clement Wescott was born in Portland, Maine, on July 16, 1877. His wife, Elsie, used to tell that when he was an infant and had the croup, his mother followed someone's advice; she fed him molasses, turned him upside down, and slapped him on the back to dislodge the phlegm. Elsie insisted that was why Arthur hated anything sweet. Even fresh tomatoes and most vegetables tasted sweet to him. "Someone must have soaked these peas in sugar water!" His doting wife and sister made him his favorite dessert, blanc mange, without sweetening. There were no sugar substitutes then; anyway, he would not have liked the taste.

Dairy products, especially cheese, were among Arthur's favorite foods. He always credited his excellent teeth (he had all of them with only one filling and one crown at the age of 76) to his sugar-free, high-calcium diet. At the University of Maine his friends called him "Cheeser". There was always "store" cheese, usually mild or Muenster, in the family's refrigerator. Arthur never went to bed without having had a stand-up snack of cheese and crackers. He ate his lunch standing up in the kitchen, too. Once a business associate came home with him, saw the procedure, and exclaimed, "My God, why don't you sit down?" It became a family joke.

Good food and society were indeed Arthur's favorite pleasures. He was a generous host, but his appearance was important too. He was a natty dresser and pressed his suits and polished his shoes once a week, usually attired for the job in the long-johns he always wore except in the hottest weather. He didn't like the feel of wool trousers against his skin.

Arthur never pursued the electrical engineering career for which he had earned a degree. His eyes gave him trouble at graduation, and he was forced to stay in a dark room for months. He then somehow drifted into the insurance business and stayed a salesman for life. Aetna, Prudential, Rutherford Rubber Company (he became president), Puritas Farms (he was owner and president), and the Crowley Milk Company (division manager at Albany, NY; Patterson, NJ; and Allentown, PA) all used his talents for getting and keeping customers. He hated to take a vacation and leave the office to an assistant.

His jobs forced him to be away from home a great deal, so he saw his children mostly on weekends but they were all very dear to him. He maintained a sentimental affection for Elsie; he was broken-hearted and never fully recovered from her death even though he married again in 1943. His second wife was Catherine Walker, a widow and business acquaintance he had met years before.

ACW was proud of his college class of 1899, his membership in Phi Gamma Delta and in the Sons of the American Revolution. He refused to play cards ("I make decisions all day; why should I have to decide what piece of pasteboard to lay on the table?"). He was very generous with money to his less fortunate relatives and to good causes. He became a practitioner of Rosicrucianism in the 1930's, and during his later years returned to active service in the church. He never completely lost his Maine accent despite the many years he lived outside New England.

After his death, Arthur was cremated, as Elsie had been. He had had a full life, and was ready to meet his Maker.

Obituary: 31 May 1954:

Arthur C. Wescott, retired official of dairy firm, 76, of 167 W. Washington Ave., Washington, died yesterday at 2:32 p.m. in Warren Hospital. He was admitted there Tuesday. He was a retired Allentown division manager for Crowley's Milk Co., Inc.

Mr. Wescott opened the Allentown plant for the firm in 1937 and remained manager until his retirement in 1946. He moved from Allentown to Washington in that year.

He had been associated with the firm for many years previously in NY State. He was a native of Portland, ME, and was a graduate of the U. of Maine.

He was a member of the U. of Maine Alumni Assoc.; St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Washington; Ancient Landmark Lodge 17, F and A.M.; and Valley Forge Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution.

Surviving are his widow, the former Catherine Walker; two daughters: Mrs. Robert Grove, of Johnstown, PA, and Mrs. Priscilla Kschinka of Dushore, PA; a son, Gerald of Newburgh, NY; a brother, Clarence of Newburgh; a sister, Miss Edna Wescott of Newburgh; five grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 9:30 a.m. in St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Washington.

ELSIE MAY (PIKE) WESCOTT
1976-1942

Priscilla L. (Wescott) Kschinka (935-3) wrote of her mother, and dedicated her book Their Name Liveth, to her (pp. 2, 106).

Elsie Pike Wescott was a person of contradictions; she admitted it herself, saying the fishes in Pisces, her zodiac sign, were swimming in opposite directions. She was very strong in her likes and dislikes. She cooked marvelous meals and then would not eat many of the dishes she had prepared. She was snobbish -- breeding and cultivated manners were quite important to her -- yet she was rather shy. The standards of conduct she set for her children were very high, but a compliment or personal attention would charm her.

Elsie was born in Portland, Maine, on March 12, 1876. She was proud of her parents and talked about them often with considerable affection. She had a sense of humor and could tell jokes on herself as well as about others. She was an avid reader; her normal-school training had obviously reinforced a thorough grammar school education. She was extremely well-read.

My mother liked music yet did not enjoy it loud or during conversation. She played the piano a little and recited poetry with expression. She also wrote some verse. She took bridge lessons, wrote voluminous letters, and rode her hobby, genealogy, very hard. She did not enjoy cleaning ("It's my own dirt") or doing the laundry, but she cleaned and washed the clothes anyway. As a young woman she ran a farm like a man and at the same time taught her two older children at home for seven years.

My father was away from home a great deal, and Elsie must have been lonely. She seemed to make most of the decisions about child-rearing, yet like a dutiful wife she always discussed major domestic problems with my father and deferred to his opinion. She was not demonstrative -- she was too private a person -- but she loved her family and was proud of their accomplishments. Never-the-less, it was easier to earn her disapproval than her praise.

Mother suffered from high blood pressure in the days when there was no treatment for it. It made her nervous often and irritable sometimes ("I feel so"). Peace and quiet were the best remedies. She hated speed and was a very nervous passenger in an automobile. She had fallen arches and wore supportive steel plates in her shoes. She usually took a taxi instead of walking anywhere, yet she kept up with all of us at the World's Fair in 1936.

Elsie's interests were very broad. Scholarship (especially in English literature and grammar), boxing (she loved to listen to the prize fights on the radio), detective fiction, extra-sensory perception, and the Bible were some of the topics she found fascinating.

Elsie was uncannily perceptive. She named me Priscilla before she discovered that the John Aldens were ancestors. She always said she hated Christmas, and in 1941 had a stroke while looking for some holiday decorations. She said she wanted to live to see me through college. I secured a teaching position in April, 1942, before graduation, and she died in May, on Ascension Day.

She sent me to do the shopping and banking when I was twelve. We shared school work, making fudge, going to the movies, and listening to the radio. She told me all sorts of anecdotes and made me behave. She called and called me in the morning and then handed me a chocolate eggnog and my lunch box (never a paper bag; that was "too common") as I came flying down the stairs. After all these years there are still times when I wish she were here, to tell her something that not one other person would appreciate in quite the same way.

936. HARRIETTE "HATTIE" LOUISE[10] PIKE, (James H.[9], Hiram[8], John[7], Dudley[6], Jacob[5], Robert[4], Robert[3], Major Robert[2], John[1]), daughter of James Henry and Hannah Jane (Ricker) Pike. She was born 5 October 1878, Portland, Maine; date of death unknown (Inter.: National Cem., St. Augustine, Florida).

She married HARTMAN LOUIS BUTLER.

Children of Hartman L. and Harriette L. (Pike) Butler:

936-1. i. JANET LOUISE[11] BUTLER, b. ca. 1908, Portland, ME; d. 28 Jan. 1913, Ae 5 yrs., Ft. William, ME ("Appendicitis"). She was called "Louise".

936-2. ii. HARTMAN LOUIS[11] BUTLER, JR., called "Hap", m. ca. 1948 (m. 30 yrs. at time of wife's death, 1978), ANGELA (---); d. Jan. 1978. No children by this marriage; m. (2nd) **(---) (---).

Several correspondence and telephone conversations with "Hap" Butler (1981-1982) but received no information on his family.

October 27, 1981 -- Letter from Hartman Butler:

It is with great sadness that I must report the death of my wonderful wife of 30 years. Angela passed on quietly at home in January 1978. Her brother, George and his dear wife, Vera had come to be with us the summer before and to help take care of her. One thing I couldn't do fast enough and that was to sell our much too large home that also had sad memories.

Since the spring of 1978, our apricot toy poodle, Tiffany, and I have been living at No. 2 Edam Village, Charlottesville, VA 22901.

Time has literally flown the past three years and this, of course, is most helpful to me. Also, I have continued very busy as Operations Director of the Institute of Chartered Financial Analysis. Starting this year, I have begun to phase down a bit and have a three-day week schedule. Coming next year, I hope to work in some traveling. I'll have George and Vera come from California and stay with me for a number of months as they have for the past couple of years. They are a wonderful sitter for Tiffany. Thus, I really plan to do some traveling and Newburgh will have good priority. My knowledge of geography is limited but I am sure I could find my way to Carmel. I would very much like to meet you personally.

March 7, 1982 -- Letter from Hartman Butler:

Actually, in November I took an auto trip and had your letter with me to work on information. I did not get to do it then or in the following months, seasonally busy ones for The Institute of Chartered Financial Analysis.

As to grandfather and grandmother, James Henry and Hanny Jane (Ricker) Pike, they were buried in the same cemetery where my mother had them relocated. My sister, Louise is there in the same plot. She died of appendicitis at the age of five in 1913. I visited the cemetery in 1969. My mother is buried beside my father at the National Cemetery, F. Augustine, Florida.

My father, Hartman Louis Butler, Sr., a regular army officer, was sent to France in the summer of 1918. My mother and I lived with her parents, James and Hannah Pike in Portland. I will always remember how on Sunday afternoon I was over at the home of my Pike cousins and how Uncle Clifford came home with the terrible news of his mother's, Hannah (Ricker) Pike, having passed on. I frankly cannot recall whether this was before or after Christmas. We carried on well.

Upon the return of my father from France, we relocated to Long Island in the summer of 1919. Grandfather Pike, James Henry, lived with us for a number of months there. We then moved to the Philippine Islands and I understand he then lived with his daughter, Elsie (Pike) Wescott in Newburgh.

By a happy coincidence a week ago, I got a phone call from Everett Giles. His mother and my mother were dear first cousins. You may have already contacted him but you may wish to talk over some items with Everett.

Everett Loring Giles stated that he had considerable information on this family. He writes:

Andrew Ricker married Harriette Smith and they had eight children, of which one, Hannah Jane Ricker, married James Henry Pike. James and Hannah Pike had three children of which one, Harriette Louise Pike married Hartman Louis Butler. Hartman and Harriette had two children, of which one was Hartman Louis Butler, Jr.

The other youngest of Andrew and Harriette (Smith) Pike was Mary Elizabeth Ricker who married Everett Chadbourne. Everett and Mary Elizabeth Chadbourne had three children, of which one was Mabelle Ricker Chadbourne who married Everette Loring Giles. Everett and Mabelle Giles had one son, Everette Loring Giles.

Thus, the relationship between Hartman Louis Butler, Jr. and Everette Loring Giles.

Hattie L. Pike, daughter of James and Hannah (Ricker) Pike is listed in the 1880 Portland Census, age 1 year.

Harold Sterling researching this family, 1 Sept. 1981 writes:

In 1946, Hattie L. Pike Butler bought a lot in the Forest City Cem., Portland Maine and had her parents "Jennie H. Pike" and father, "James H. Pike" moved to that lot.

Also buried in the lot: Louise Butler (carried on the records as Janet L.) 1908-1913. Her death notice reads: "Louise Butler, dau. of Capt. and Mrs. H.L. Butler died 28 Jan. 1913 at Ft. Williams."

Also in the Butler lot is a stone: "In memory of Hartman L. Butler, Col. U.S. Army, buried at St. Augustine National Cem., Florida.

Priscilla Kschinka writes: The daughter was Janet Louise Butler but was always called "Louise".

Obituary: Portland Press Herald, Wednesday, 30 September 1964:

SEN. PIKE FUNERAL SERVICES SET FRIDAY AT WATERFORD

Waterford - Funeral services for State Senator Harold S. Pike, 72, will be held at 2:00 p.m. Friday at the Waterford Congregational Church. The veteran Oxford County Legislator died from cancer at his home early Tuesday morning.

A prominent businessman, the Republican Solon had been elected to the Maine House in 1954 and won his first term to the State Senate in 1956.

His death brought expressions of sorrow from Gov. John Reed and Senate President Robert Marden. Gov. Reed in ordering the state house flag to be at half mast until funeral services, termed the late senator an "outstanding legislator" and said "his contributions to Maine government will long be remembered." Senator Marden noted that "it was the happy lot of Senator Pike to make for himself a fortunate life and to be given the satisfaction of knowing that the fruits of his labors were to remain for the enrichment of the state. Over the years, Senator Pike was permitted the joy that lay in his unselfish service in the many activities in which he played an important part. Our friend's accomplishments are impressive in their suggestiveness to men and women who seek enduring ways of serving their fellows."

On hearing the news the Senate, holding a special session, stood in silent prayer. It later adopted a resolution which said the state "mourns the loss of a faithful and valued public servant and the members of the Senate lament the departure of an esteemed and trusted friend."

While in the Senate he had served on the Business Legislation, State Government and Veterans Affairs Committees in the 98th Legislature. Again in 1960 he was elected and served on the Agriculture and Towns and Counties Committees in the 100th Legislature.

In the 101st Session he also served on the Towns and Counties Committee and was chairman of the Agricultural Committee. During his term in office Mr. Pike was instrumental in securing state funds for various road improvements in this area including the Norway Lake Road.

Senator Pike was born at Gilead, April 23, 1892, son of Elbridge and Elizabeth Flint Pike. He attended Waterford Schools, Bridgton Academy and the University of Maine's College of Agriculture. After completing his studies he became an official dairy tester and later went into partnership with his father in the dairy business. In 1921 he began to develop a herd of purebred Guernsey cattle with foundation stock imported from the Isle of Guernsey and England resulting in animals known throughout New England as Keoka Farm Guernseys.

Since 1925, he and Mrs. Pike had operated Keoka Farm as a summer guest business.

Senator Pike served Waterford as selectman nine years and as moderator for the annual town meetings for many years.

He was a charter member of the Oxford County Extension Service, a director of the Oxford County P. of H. Fire Insurance Co. for thirty years, and a member and deacon of the Waterford Congregational Church. He was a member of Mt. Terem Lodge, AF and AM, Waterford; Keoka Chapter, OES, Waterford, where he served as patron for sixteen years and treasurer for several years.

He was a member and past master of Bear Mountain Grange and Oxford Pomona Grange, a member and past deputy of the Maine State Grange and a member of the National Grange. He also had served as director of the Pike Family Association of America.

Survivors include his widow, June Jillson Pike; two daughters: Mrs. Esther Leeds of Guilford, and Mrs. R. Donald Twitchell of Norway; and five grandchildren.

Officiating at the funeral services will be Dr. Wilbur I. Bull of Hanover, NH, the Rev. Herbert A. Stevens of Waterford and Norman Rust of North Waterford. Internment will be in Elmvale Cemetery, South Waterford.

Obituary: June (Janet) Pike:

June "Janet" Pike, 81, wife of Harold Seth Pike, of 48 Pleasant Street, Norway, died Sunday, December 9, 1979 at Stephens Memorial Hospital after a short illness.

She was born in Bolsters Mills, June 8, 1898, the daughter of Henry and Mabel Small Jillson. She was a 1917 graduate of Bridgton Academy. She taught school in Albany and Mason Township.

On April 3, 1918 she was married to Harold S. Pike of Waterford, a former State Senator. They owned and operated Keoka Farm in Waterford where they raised purebred Guernsey cattle. They also operated Keoka Farm Guest Home for thirty years, serving meals and taking in guests during the summer months. They had operated Keoka Inn in Waterford for a time.

Both were interested in genealogy. Mrs. Pike had traced her ancestry back to Richard Warren of the Mayflower.

Soon after her husband's death in 1964, she came to Norway.

She joined Crooked River Grange #32 and Oxford Pomona #2 in 1912; she joined the Maine State Grange and National Grange in 1915 and Keoka Chapter #12 O.E.S. in 1920. She was past matron of Keoka Chapter O.E.S. Waterford and served as its secretary for seventeen years; she was a fifty year member. She was district deputy associate matron and grand Esther in the Grand Chapter of Maine. She was a sixty year member of Crooked River Grange of Bolsters Mills. She was a Waterford 4H leader, a member of the Waterford Historical Society and the Waterford Congregational Church, serving as clerk for many years. She was a member of Norway Congregational Church Circle #5, the Norway Woman's Club, the Norway-Paris Nature Club, the Norway-Paris Senior Citizens, the Barton Reading Club, the Stephens Memorial Hospital Auxiliary and a volunteer in the hospital's Thrift Shop.

Surviving are two daughters: Mrs. Esther Leeds Mitchell of Wisasset and Mrs. Florence Twitchell of Norway; a sister, Mrs. Ethel Genter of Mount Dora, Florida; a brother, Norton Jillson of Bolsters Mills; and five grandchildren. A son, Harold, Jr., died young.

Allen Pike, editor, had the pleasure of visiting with Senator Harold S. Pike at his farm in Waterford, Maine in 1959 and later with Mrs. Harold Pike at her home in Norway, during the summer of 1976. Allen, at that time, also had a short visit with Rep. R. Donald and Florence (Pike) Twitchell at their store in Norway. It was during that visit that Florence presented Allen with information on their family.

Arthur Thorndike Pike was a graduate of Tufts University in Electrical Engineering, as part of his service in the Student Army Training Corps of World War I. Upon graduation in 1921, he joined the Western Electric Co., the producing arm of the Bell Telephone System, and worked for them as a test engineer and supervising engineer for his entire career, at various locations in the New York area. He, and his wife Sarah, were active in financial and organizational matters in the Methodist Church for their entire lives; were active in the Cosmopolitan Club of Upper Montclair, N.J., and in the American Association for the United nations (Sarah was the first Executive Secretary of the New Jersey Chapter of that organization when it was founded shortly after World War II). Upon retirement in 1962, Arthur became expert in antiques refinishing, chair caning, etc., and with his wife, operated a small antique business first in Sparta, then in Sussex, New Jersey. (John Nazarian Pike, 14 July 1992)

The Heath family of Putnam, Connecticut was descended from John Howland of the Plymouth Colony -- noted for having fallen overboard on the Mayflower but luckily grasping a drag line was saved. He became one of the leading businessmen of the Pilgrim Community; operated the fur trading post on the Kennebec River in Maine, one of the Pilgrim's most productive businesses which helped pay off the debts to the British sponsors. They lived in Montclair, Sparta, and Sussex, New Jersey. (Heath Family: Kenneth Leeds Pike (#947).)

LEMUEL GURNEY PIKE

Barbara Cushing (#1053) wrote: Lemuel Gurney Pike was educated at Hebron Academy, Hebron, ME; a Vermont State Representative (1951-1953). He resided at Searsburg, VT from 1934 until his death in 1955. He was a sawmill operator in the Searsburg area.

She also wrote -- 9 April 1979: Dad (Lemuel Gurney Pike) was a quiet man and I really never knew a great deal. My mother (Gladys Dutton Pike), who died two years ago, spoke a bit about Grandfather Pike (Frank Smith Pike) being blind; Grandmother (Flora E. Tucker Pike) dying in childbirth but not much more was ever said.

Truthfully, my brother and I were both in our twenties before we knew Dad had been married before; it seemed too late to ask questions about a past never revealed. Neither, Mother nor Dad ever spoke about it -- although I understand Mom didn't know until her wedding day.

Dad was working at the Raybestos Company, which he hated, when I was born 1923. He was an outdoorsman.

From what I gather, before he married Mother he played in the minor leagues pitching in the era of Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth. He was a logger and I believe was not in the war due to an enlarged heart. It was after that he met Mother, who was a nurse. In the early 30's he had had it with city living and the Depression, and he bought property in Searsburg, Vermont, on a mountain, and built a beautiful log cabin. He was clever at building, like his father. He felled the trees, peeled the bark, and made a beautiful cabin that still stands. In those years of a one-room school my family had sent me to live with my aunt in New Jersey, and then, in 1938, I moved to Vermont to join my brother and parents.

It was a beautiful place -- no phone or power (we had running water by gravity from a spring) but peaceful. Donald and I were graduated from Wilmington High School -- then World War II was on -- Dad went back to Connecticut to work and Mother went back to nursing. After the War he returned to Vermont, became a State Representative and once again was on his mountain. He had Burger's disease with poor leg circulation which slowed him down a bit -- but he lived a full life.

Dad died suddenly while at Montpelier in the Legislature. Mother was appointed by the Governor to finish out his term and then was elected on her own. I flew up to Montpelier and helped arrange things but the "origin unknown" business is news to me and I can't imagine how it happened. His ashes are in the chapel at the Springfield, Massachusetts Cemetery.

Dad never drank, used swear words that would be mild today but used them constantly, enjoyed a good joke and was a friend to all.

I miss him very much; he was a man you had to like. He had a quiet manner, good sense of humor, could be very stubborn (chaperoned me until I was 17) but would listen to any argument and be willing to compromise. He played great golf and was a master at all cards (my husband says he could beat Dad at cribbage; I don't know!). He loved the woods and the freedom of the country. He had a small sawmill and could sell some lumber and also a maple saphouse. Our small stock of chickens, workhorse and cow gave him the small amount of farm he wanted -- he needed nothing of the fancy and didn't envy those that had more.

He was a beautiful dancer, charming and well loved by all my Mother's family.

The little I know of the Pikes: I met Aunt Sybil (Sybil Geneva Pike) one time -- having not been told about her until I was finishing nurse's training in New York City. She reminded me a bit of Dad, and I was sorry I didn't know her all along. She lived in a small room in the west seventies not far from my school of nursing. We could have enjoyed each other, I'm sure.

Uncle Fred and Aunt Margaret I did not know growing up -- from Milford, Connecticut, where we lived. Their son joined the Navy and my husband and I met and had dinner with him in Norfolk once. I knew John and his sister, Marian, a little bit as children.

Uncle Fred died and the last I knew his wife, Margaret, was in a nursing home. I am delighted to have the information in your letter and to hear about you and your brother; I'm sorry we haven't met but perhaps we shall. I have a gold locket Dad left me inscribed "Lemuel Gurney, from the Students of Hebron Academy, 1893" and I was never quite sure who Lemuel Gurney was. I haven't many pictures of Dad but the best are in our wedding album. I'm enclosing some poor Xerox copies of the ones I have as well as Polaroid copies of two of the best. If you are interested we could have professional copies made. To fill you in a little I'm also sending copies of some of the clippings from our album. (Ed. Note: items mentioned were not received).

We have a son, with a grandson four years old and two daughters; the youngest, Joanne Pike Cushing, is entering her senior year in the Alfred University College of Nursing.

I'm glad you were able to track us down!

969. (NORMAN) NEAL[10] PIKE, (James Harrison[9], George C.[8], True[7], Moses[6], Moses[5], Capt. Elias[4], Moses[3], Major Robert[2], John[1]), son of James Harrison and Esther Ernestine (Dow) Pike. He was born 8 April 1911, Salisbury, Massachusetts. He was called "Neal". He was unmarried.

(NORMAN) NEAL PIKE

Compiled by: Allen Pike (11-1008), editor.

My first meeting with Neal Pike was around 1959 when I first visited with Frances A. Pettengill, who acted as my tour guide around Salisbury. At that time I was not much involved in Pike family research. Later, I have visited with Neal and his mother, before she passed away, and with Neal at his beach cottage. We have had several telephone conversations, especially when I was passing through Salisbury to visit my family in northern Maine.

Neal is well versed on the Pike Family history, although the records will show, we have not been able to secure complete information on his immediate relatives.

Although blind since childhood, Neal has accomplished as much if not more in his lifetime than many a person with eyesight. He attained success in the legal profession at a time when there was virtually no assistance for the handicapped. Instead, there was a great deal of discrimination and no legal recourse. (Sargent, p. 15)

His recognition by his peers and the academic establishment is well documented in Salisbury History compiled by Carolyn Sargent:

Mr. Pike was appointed to the Boston University National Alumni Council, where one must be an outstanding graduate to receive the appointment.

He was chosen out of 127 candidates to receive the Alma Mater Award, the highest award B.U. gives.

At his 45th law school class reunion in 1937 he was voted the outstanding member of the class, for which he was awarded a gold Cross pin. In 1974 he received the Alumni Assoc. Award for an outstanding graduate. In 1987 he received the Silver Single, the highest award the B.U. Law School can give.

Neal Pike's name and picture has been entered as a charter member of B.U. Hall of Fame. He is a member of B.U. Presidents Club and a lifetime honorary member of the School of Medicine.

His life has been concerned and devoted to helping the handicapped as witnessed by his establishment of prizes, scholarships and trust funds recognizing the handicapped, to mention a few:

1953: successfully filing a bill allowing blind people to claim real estate tax exemption.

1967: James Harrison Pike and Esther Dow Pike Memorial School Fund -- a scholarship for the blind.

1973 & 1975: B.U. Scholarship fund for the School of Nursing.

1977: N. Neal Pike Prize, recognition to a physical or mental handicap, who has achieved notable success or a person who has helped the handicapped.

1988: Emily (Rose) Peeke Lectureship at B.U. Law School.

1989: N. Neal Pike Institute for the Handicapped, B.U. School of Law, as well as a Trust Fund for student loans for medical and law school students.

1990: Major Robert Pike Memorial Endowment Fund at B.U.

He was the first blind person to be admitted to practice before the Bar of the U.S. Supreme Court.

A member of the East Parish Methodist Church, a trustee, a member of the Finance Committee; a member of the Men's Club and past president of the Salisbury Cable Club; the first blind man to hold office in Salisbury when he was appointed to the school committee in 1937. He has served as president of the Salisbury Lions Club and a member of the St. Marks Masonic Lodge in Newburyport.

If a man's legacy is measured by his philanthropic endeavors, then Neal Pike stands high on the list.

ALLEN RAYMOND PIKE, EDITOR

Autobiographical sketch:

Allen R. Pike, editor of this book, was a native of Woodland, Maine in Aroostook County. He received his early formal education in the public schools in Northern Maine-the first eight years in a one-room country school; the same teacher for six years, Ernest Pelletier of Caribou. As a student of Caribou High School he participated in several dramatic productions and speech contests. In his junior year he was the first place winner for boys in the Junior Speech Exhibition. He was a member of the National Honor Society; President, Student Council; President, Commercial Club; and active in track.

He attended Aroostook State Normal School (forerunner of State Teachers College), Presque Isle, Maine. He taught in a one-room school on the Canadian Border. His teaching career was interrupted by entry into the U.S. Army Quartermaster Corps for over three years during World War II. Upon discharge, as a Master Sergeant, he entered Emerson College where he received his B.L.I. (Bachelor of Literary Interpretation) degree in speech and drama with concentration in speech therapy. His work in speech therapy was with the Mental Health Department of Massachusetts with practice at the Massachusetts General Hospital and the Quincy Public Health Clinic. At Emerson he was a member of and President of Phi Alpha Tau Fraternity.

Completing his undergraduate studies, he entered the Graduate School of Northwestern University where he received his master's degree in speech education with concentration in audiology. Again, his formal education was interrupted by recall to active military service for eighteen months as a reserve officer during the Korean Conflict.

Upon release from service (he continued in the reserve for a 12 year period) he accepted a position as hearing consultant with Sonotone Hearing Corporation in Boston. His next position was as Assistant Chief Education Therapy, at Brockton V.A. Hospital in Boston. He was the only speech therapist of the staff.

In the fall of 1955, he accepted a position as speech therapist with the Putnam County Vocational Education and Extension Board (forerunner of the Board of Cooperative Educational Services—B.O.C.E.S.), Carmel, New York. He organized the speech therapy program in each of the six district schools in Putnam County. In 1958, he accepted a full-time position with Brewster Central School as speech therapist, and organized a speech and drama department in the high school. Following these years he wrote a curriculum of study for public speaking and for dramatics which was approved by the New York State Regents for high school students. For several years these courses were taught by him as elective courses. He also organized and sponsored the first Troupe of the National Thespian Society at Brewster High School. Several Drama Festivals were organized and as many as eighteen high schools participated in the festivals. For seventeen years he directed and produced all the dramatic production at Brewster High School. He wrote and produced three children's plays as well as several faculty and community productions. Three productions were public relations projects: History of Brewster Schools, with commentary, music and colored slides; two thirty minute 8MM colored movies with sound featuring the staff and students at the Garden Street School and one of the John F. School. He also served as an administrative assistant for extra-curricular and school activities, a position to which he was appointed to by the Board of Education. Excluding the high school and community productions, he considers one of the most exciting theatrical experiences was when he had a walk-on part in Mae West's "Diamond Lil" in Boston. (When theatrical tour companies came to Boston in those early days and needed "walk-ons" they usually contacted Emerson College, which was a school of dramatics. The $3.00 per evening was a lot of money in 1949.)

For five summers (1960-1964) he served as a visiting instructor at the University of Maine at Orono where he taught two courses in speech corrections, as well as assisted in organizing the first summer speech and hearing clinic at the University. He also taught speech courses at Henry Abbot Regional Vocational Technical School (Extension Division), Danbury, Connecticut, as well as at Western Connecticut State College, Danbury.

As a member of the American Speech and Hearing Association he attended three international speech and hearing conferences: 1959 - 11th Congress of the International Association of Logopedics and Phoniatrics, in London, England; and 1962, Padua, Italy. In 1970, he attended the "International Congress of Education of the Deaf" in Stockholm, Sweden and toured speech and hearing clinics in Sweden, Leningrad, Moscow, Prague and London. He held a "basic Certification in Speech" from the American Speech and Hearing Association.

In 1970, after completing all course requirements for doctoral degree at Teachers College, Columbia, NYC (he did not complete his doctoral dissertation), he completed his C.A.S. degree (Certificate of Advanced Studies) at Fairfield University in the field of "Educational Media". As a supplement to his thesis he prepared audio-visual material and wrote a course of study for an orientation course in the Humanities, especially prepared for teachers' "In Service Education Course."

He was an active member in the major national speech associations. In 1970, he wrote the "Constitution and Bylaws" for the Brewster Teachers Association which was adopted and printed by the Association, of which he was president for eight years.

To further his professional education and standards he attended summer schools at: Syracuse University, Boston University, Miami University, Western Connecticut State College and Teachers College, and Columbia University where he completed doctoral work.

For the school year 1970-71, he was granted a year's paid sabbatical leave by the Brewster Board of Education. He retired from Brewster Central School in the spring of 1974.

Other than collecting and compiling information for the Pike Family History, his retirement years were devoted to various volunteer activities: driver for a medical escort service; local Cancer Society; Ex Secretary (1975-78) of the Carmel Chamber of Commerce; Director-Producer: "Al Pike and Les Gals Revue" presented at nursing homes and senior citizens centers; Active in local historical societies: producing 35MM multi-media historical programs; Active member, held several offices: Putnam County Retired Teachers Associations; member, past 1st Vice President, Southeastern Zone, New York State Retired Teachers Association; in 1985-1986 Assistant State Director, and 1986-89 Associate State Director for the A.A.R.P (American Association of Retired Persons); Organist, Mt. Hope Methodist Church, Mahopac, NY; Guest vocal soloist various churches; Member, Board of Directors, Putnam County Home Care Council; Volunteer: Putnam County Literacy Volunteers of America; Volunteer: Putnam Hospital Center, Carmel.

In 1985 he was given the "Community Service Award" R.S.V.P., Putnam County. In October, 1991, he received the "1991 Ruth Dain Voluntary Service Award. In May, 1992, he was given the highest award presented in Putnam county: "Putnam County Senior Citizen of the Year", at a banquet where over 400 persons applauded his award.

EUGENE HALE PIKE, JR.

Autobiographical sketch:

Eugene was born the 10th child of Eugene Hale and Edna Estella (Russell) Pike on June 1925, eighteen months after my brother Leander, one of grandfather's favorites and sixteen months before Bennie, my younger brother, one of his father's favorites.

It seems that none had time for Gene. He soon got the reputation of getting into any and every thing there was. It seems that everything he looked at, or even touched fell apart and or broke!

He never ever had anyone put his arms around him or show him any affection.

He quit school in his 3rd year of high school, because he had a job driving trucks on a farm. He sure needed a little push or help about that time.

That fall and winter he worked with his brother-in-law, Leonard Thomas, driving trucks, plowing snow and helping on the farm. This he did for three winters. During the summer months he drove trucks for C.P. Hussy, delivering beer, soda, tobacco and confectioneries.

In 1943 at age 18 he was determined as 4F for the draft. He joined the Maine State Guard, which replaced the National Guard. In 1946 they reorganized the National Guard at which time Gene took the army physical. At this time the doctor told him he was in good physical health (Friday night). The first thing the following Monday morning, he was at the Recruiting Office, where he enlisted in the Army Air Force for 3 years. The next morning at 6;30 A.M. he left for Fort Dix, New Jersey for pre-induction into the Army Air Force. (Brother Allen was the clerk at the recruiting office who made out his enlistment papers.)

During those three years he was stationed at Westover A.F.B. in Chicopee, Massachusetts where he met his wife, Trudy (Gertrude) Wiedenroth and her family. In 1948 he spent a year in Greenland at which time he ran a butcher shop.

He returned to Westover in 1949 on a Wednesday, 27 April and got married on the following Saturday, 30 April 1949.

The Wiedenroth Family lived in Holyoke, Massachusetts. (They were the first to show him affection and realize his potentials.) Trudy's mother showed us all what love and affection was all about. This he has shared with his children and grandchildren. What a great feeling to get a hug and have someone say "I love you."

He was discharged in November 1949 and worked at different jobs - mostly driving trucks; living in or around Holyoke, Massachusetts from 1949 to 1963.

In 1960 he got involved in Cub Scouting with his son, Dennis. While working as a volunteer in the scouting program he spent weekends with his family at the Moses Scout Reservation helping the Ranger. In 1963, the Ranger was retiring and asked Gene to apply for the job. The summer of 1963 he took over as Ranger or Manager of Moses Scout Reservation.

In September, he moved his family to the scout reservation. For 27 years Gene and Trudy lived and worked at this scout reservation, coming in contact with about 200,000 boys of which 27 or 30 are what they call "The Adopted Kids."

Upon his retirement on May 25, 1990, three or four hundred people gathered at the Knight's of Columbus Hall, Chicopee, Massachusetts, to pay tribute to him and Trudy. Trudy was not present as she was in the hospital recovering from heart surgery.

Over the forty three years (1992) Gene and Trudy have been married, Trudy has been the mainstay of the family. She would tell you, it was because the first time she met Gene's Dad, he told her, "He felt sorry for her having married Gene as she most probably would never have anything." He should have been at the retirement party.

Over the years Trudy has painted and sold pictures to help with raising five children and paying Gene's dues into The Lodge of Masons of which Gene is a four times Past Master.

Later years Trudy has had her own business of designing and dressing antique and reproduction dolls.

Some men have what they call a wife and housekeeper, but Gene would tell you that there is a big difference between a housekeeper and the "homemaker" that he has.

They resided (1992) in Wilbraham, Massachusetts and are enjoying every minute of retirement.

Gene has quite a reputation of telling stories about growing up in Northern Maine: plowing roads with brother Thomas; and brother Allen running a program in the summer to keep every one busy and out of trouble. He tells of playing in 110 mile an hour winds in Greenland or telling his Dad "He had never seen a real snowstorm in comparison"-Maine and Greenland; or delivering beer at 17 years of age. Maybe this and the good down-to-earth morals and upbringing from Mother and Dad Pike is why so many boys stuck to him and Trudy like glue.

Over the years, living at the scout reservation which was in the Town of Russell, Gene served on the Conservation Board for six years; on the Finance Board for three years; and was a Select-man for three years in the Town of Russell. He has always said, if you live in a town, you should be part of it.

Over 20 of these years, Gene was a Police Officer in the town. A private joke with his kids was, "There's my 'Pop' the Rent-A-Cop."

Working in the scout reservation and living in the great little Town of Russell was the best and most rewarding life and experience a man or a father could have living and raising his family there.

Gene's ability to get along with children paid off in later years when he and Trudy played Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus every Christmas for several years in a local mall.

BENNIE FRANK PIKE

Autobiographical sketch:

Bennie attended the Town of Woodland's Elementary School at Carson Siding were for the last two years he served as school janitor; building and tending the fire in the wood-burning, cast-iron space heater; sweeping the floor; and carrying water from a next door neighbor. He entered Caribou High School in 1941 but dropped out in January of 1944 and worked on a railroad section of the Aroostook Valley Railroad as a section-hand 'gandydancer'. The AVR was an electric railroad which extended from Presque Isle to New Sweden and Caribou, and passed through Carson Siding. At other times he worked as a laborer in the potato fields and shipping houses of the community. In November of 1944, he took a job as store clerk for the J.C. Penny Store in Caribou—a job which lasted until spring planting of 1945.

With the help of his brother Allen, he spent the summer of 1945 at Lake Placid, New York, where he worked as a bellboy at the Hotel Theanoguen.

In September of 1945, he drove to Bangor to enlist in the U.S. Naval reserves which were active at that time. He was inducted into the Navy on October 17th and was assigned to the U.S. Naval Training Center, at Bainbridge, Maryland, for basic training. In January of 1946, he was assigned to the Bureau of Naval Personnel in Washington, D.C.

He was honorably discharged in January of 1947 and returned immediately to Caribou High School to finish his education. He graduated from Caribou High in 1948 and entered the University of Maine in September to pursue a degree in Journalism. He graduated from Maine with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Journalism in June 1953.

In the meantime, he and Louise were married in August 1951. They both returned to the University of Maine in January of 1952 and lived on campus in apartments which were provided for married students. Louise, who before marriage had been a bookkeeper for the F.W. Woolworth Store, in Caribou, assumed a similar position at the Woolworth Store in Bangor. During the summer of '52, Ben took a job as radio announcer on station WLBZ, in Bangor.

Ben, upon graduation from the University of Maine, became News Director of Radio Station WRUM, in Rumford, Maine. He and Louise lived there through the end of 1954. Their first son, Marty (Meredith Jon) was born there.

When the family left Rumford, they moved to Westbrook, Maine, while Ben pursued a career as an insurance agent for the Travelers Insurance Company. This was an ill-fated venture and lasted only a couple of months following which Ben returned to news work on Portland radio and television stations. He was a staff announcer on radio station WCSH and news editor on stations WGAN and WGAN-TV. When his news editing job was discontinued, he took a temporary job as staff announcer on radio station WABM, in Houlton, Maine, while Louise and Marty lived with her parents in Caribou.

In January 1956, the family moved to Gardiner, Maine and Ben became a Public Relations Representative for the Maine Department of Economic Development in Augusta. He was first assigned to handle promotion and publicity for the Department of Agriculture and in 1959 was named Assistant Director, Division of Recreation Promotion. In June 1962 he was named Executive Secretary of the Association for Multiple Use of Maine Timberlands, an organization of large land-owning companies in Maine which was formed primarily to discourage federal takeover of two and a half million acres of commercial Maine forestland to form an Allagash National Park. In December 1965, the AMUMT program was discontinued with the establishment of the state-owned and state-controlled Allagash Wilderness Waterway which included only a minimum amount of forestland immediately adjacent to the waterway. When this took place, Ben was appointed Public Relations Representative in Maine for the International Paper Company, a career which would last for 24 years.

The family moved from Gardiner to Farmington, Maine, in June 1967. While in Gardiner, four other children were born: Carol, Jeff, Matt and Chris. Ben was active in the Knights of Columbus—Canabas Council, and became Grand Knight in 1964. He was also a member of the Augusta Kiwanis Club, and chairman of the Public Relations Committee, Pine Tree Council, and Boy Scouts of America. Louise, at this time, was very active in church, school and community work, chairing a St. Joseph's Catholic Church Bazaar, being a Den Mother for a Cub Scout Pack, etc.

Ben was also a member of the Maine Press Association, the Maine Association of Broadcasters and the New England Outdoor Writers Association. For two years he served as a Director of the Maine Press Association.

In Farmington a sixth child was added to the family in the person of Mary Margaret. At this time Ben became Deputy Grand Knight of the Bishop Bacon Council—Knights of Columbus; Franklin County Commissioner for the Boy Scouts; served two years as President of the Livermore Falls Rotary Club; and began a long association with the Maine Publicity Bureau serving as Chairman of the Board for a period of three years. Louise became a member of the St. Joseph's Catholic Church Council and helped develop and serve on a Crisis Intervention and Protection Program for the greater Farmington area which offered emergency counseling service for those in need.

Before leaving state service in 1962 Ben showed talent for coalition building and was coordinator of various ski industry interests in the state into what became known as the Ski Maine Association. This ability continued to flourish after he joined the International Paper Company. He chaired a committee which brought about the formation of the Maine Paper Industry Information Office which has become a central clearing house for the industry on matters of information and legislation. He also served on the planning committee which brought about the formation of the North Maine Woods Program which oversees public recreation on over two and a half million acres of commercial forestland in northern Maine. He serves on the founding committee which formed the Maine Public Relations Council which now has a membership of over 2000 persons. In 1982, he coordinated the formation of the state's Employees Coalition for Workers Compensation Reform comprising thirty Maine business/industry associations which forced needed changes in the state's W.C. laws. From 1984 through 1986, he coordinated the activities of a business/industry group on tax reform which brought about the phase-out of the state's five percent sales tax on energy used in manufacturing resulting in a total savings to 2,000 Maine industries of some $30 million annually.

In 1975, Ben's assignment at International Paper was directed entirely towards government and legislative activity in Maine and Washington, D.C. In 1981, this responsibility was expanded to include three other states: New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts. In 1983, he was named New England Manager of Public Affairs and retained this position until his retirement in 1989.

Louise expanded her church activities in Farmington and became local parish representative to the Diocesan Human Relations Service, Inc., which is developed and administered by the Catholic Diocese of Portland and provides social services for people throughout the state regardless of religious preference. It employs around 300 persons throughout Maine and includes over 500 volunteers who serve on various boards and services. While working with DHRS, she established and served as Chairman of the Personnel Committee and was a member of the Planning and Evaluation Committee. She also served as Chairman of the Board of Directors of DHRS for period of three years.

In 1980 son Marty purchased a family clothing store, Ferrari's of Farmington, and Louise added to her busy family and church schedule by becoming his Financial Manager.

Ben's office was moved from Jay, site of the I.P. paper mill, to Augusta, site of the company's regional woodlands office in November 1977, and the family moved from Farmington into a new home across from their summer cottage at Wilson Pond on the Mt. Pisgah Road in Wayne, in October 1979. In the meantime, three family members—Marty, Carol and Jeff—had been married and granddaughter, Kristana Marie, was born to Marty and his wife, Cheryl.

In his retirement Ben has an opportunity to pursue his desire to write poetry and fiction—an affliction which first hit him at the age of fifteen while writing an English theme for sophomore English class. His success in this venture will be in the future.

In October 1989 Ben was named to the Maine Publicity Bureau's "Hall of Fame" and was cited for 'outstanding service' to the State of Maine, the Tourism Industry and the Maine Publicity Bureau.

On a Saturday evening, February 10, 1989, upon Ben's retirement, over 250 members of the family, business and industry associates, legislators, government, media people and other friends met for dinner at the Augusta Civic Center for an evening of recognition of his life and career.

WITCHCRAFT TRIAL: MARY (PERKINS) BRADBURY

Mary (Perkins) Bradbury (1615-1700), mother of Jane Bradbury (True) (No. v. above), who married Henry True (No. 6-1, in text), on 28 July 1692, at the age of 75, was tried and convicted of witchcraft in Salisbury, Massachusetts. Henry True was a grandson of Major Robert[2] Pike. Major Robert defended Mary Bradbury. Although she was defended by one of Salisbury's leading attorneys, and one hundred and eighteen of Mrs. Bradbury's acquaintances signed a petition (see below), she was convicted with four others. The four were executed, 22 September 1692. In some way, Mrs. Bradbury escaped execution at that time. In the meantime, glimmerings of reason returned once more to the frenzied insane people of that country, and after many months in jail, waiting for the executioneer, this kindly, Christian lady was permitted once more to return to her family (Bradbury, p. 695).

Mary's devoted husband, Thomas Bradbury (1610-1694), at the age of eighty-two, bore testimony to her high character and the purity of her life in the following terms: "Concerning my beloved wife, Mary Bradbury, this is what I have to say: We have been married fifty-five years, and she hath been a loving and faithful wife unto me this day. She hath been wonderful, laborious, diligent and industrious to her place of employment about the bringing up of our family which have been eleven children of our own and four grandchildren. She being now very aged and weak, and grieved under afflictions, may not be able to speak much for herself."

Her many acquaintances subscribed to a petition: "We the subscribers do testify that her life was such as becomes the gospel. She was a lover of the ministry in all appearances, and a diligent attender upon God's holy ordinances, being of a courteous and peacable disposition and carriage, neither did any of us (some of whom have lived in the town with her above fifty years), ever hear or know that she had any differences of falling out with any of her neighbors, man, woman, or child, but was always ready and willing to do for them what lay in her power, night and day, though with hazard of her health and other danger."

Rev. James Allen testified: "I, having lived nine years at Salisbury in the work of the ministry, and now four years in the office of pastor, to the best notice and observation of Mrs. Bradbury, she hath lived according to the rules of the gospel amongst us; was a constant attender upon the ministry of the word, and all the ordinances of the gospel, full of works of charity and mercy to the sick and poor; neither have I seen or heard anything of her unbecoming the profession of the gospel."

To the charge of witchcraft, Mary Bradbury pleaded not guilty: "I am wholly innocent of any such wickedness through the goodness of God who has kept me hitherto. I am the servant of Jesus Christ and have given myself up to him as my only Lord and Savior, and to the diligent attendance upon him in all his holy ordinances, in utter contempt and defiance of the devil and all his works as horrid and detestable."

What were the charges? What was the evidence? It is difficult for one writing three hundred years later to even comprehend such events happening in a society whose folks came to America seeking religious freedom. Only Major Robert Pike stood fast to his convictions, knowing well that he also might hang from the gallows.

The character of the evidence used against Mary Bradbury, at seventy five years of age, may be attributed to jealousy, the Bradburys were prominent folks in Salisbury; or perhaps a jilted love-affair, or to strike fear into the hearts of the people by an ever powerful church. You be the judge.

The deposition of William Carr, "who testifieth and saith that, about thirteen years ago, presently after some difference that happened to be between my honored father, Mr. George Carr, and Mrs. Bradbury, the prisoner at the bar, upon a Sabbath at noon, as we were riding by the house of Capt. Thomas Bradbury (her husband), I saw Mrs. Bradbury go into the gate, turn the corner of, and immediately there darted out of her gate a blue boar, and darted at my father's horse's legs which made him stumble; but I saw it no more. And my father said, 'Boys what did you see?' and we both said, 'A blue boar.' William Carr went on to say that his father was bewitched, that he became crazed and prematurely died.

The testimony of William Carr at the trial: "went on to show that his brother fell in love with Jemina True (No. 6-3, "Henry True Family", APPENDIX 6-1), but the proposed match being opposed and broken off by the father of young Carr, on account of his youth, he became melancholy and at times insane." William Carr further stated, "that he was with his brother and cared for him in his last sickness, and that his brother died peaceably and quietly, and never spoke anything of harm of Mrs. Bradbury or anybody."

Editor Comments:

In retrospect, some 350 years later (1672-1994), we certainly can be proud to be a descendent of Major Robert Pike. His biographer says he was engaged in three conspicious controversies during his life. The first was his arraignment by the General Court in 1653, for his hostility to the persecution of the Quakers. The second was his resistance to the dogmatic authority of the clergy, in the person of his pastor, Rev. John Wheelwright. The third, as noted above, was his bitter opposition to the witchcraft prosecutions in 1692. In all of these he practically stood alone. The Salem historian of this delusion writes, "not a voice comes down to us of deliberate and effective hostility to the movement, except that of Robert Pike in his cool, close and powerful argumentative appeal to the judges." Confronting the Judges stood this sturdy old man, his head whitened with the frosts of seventy-six winters, and demonstrated that there was no legal way of convicting a witch, even according to the laws and beliefs of those times. No one was considered safe from the charge of having dealings with the evil one, and he himself might be the next one arraigned.

The witchcraft craze was one of the most remarkable delusions in recorded history. It was a sad commentary on the intelligence of the period as well as a plague spot upon the judiciary. It broke out in the year 1692, and within three months nineteen persons were tried, convicted on the most ridiculous testimony, and executed on "Gallows Hill" in Salem. Included among these nineteen was Rev. George Burroughs (1630-1692) who was a colonial clergyman, educated at Harvard and a pastor of Falmouth (1672) and Salem (1680). He was accused of bewitching Mary Wolcott and others by wicked arts. The great Cotton Mather (1663-1728), a Congregational clergyman, educated at Harvard and Minister of Boston's North Church from 1685 until his death, was among those condoning, if not actually instigating, witchcraft persecutions. He wrote extensively on the subject. Mather was present on horseback and consented to Rev. Burrough's death, and while the latter was suspended in mid-air, the great devine harrangued the people and congratulated them on the good work accomplished.

Major Robert also pleaded the case of Susanna Martin, whose memory is perpetuated by the poet, John Greenleaf Whittier (1807-1892), much as he had written about Major Robert in "How the Women Went from Dover." (Complete copy: Records of the Pike Family 1900-1901, p. 28.) After the frenzied populace had hung the poor woman on the terrible gallows-tree in Salem, Whittier wrote the poem about Susanna's daughter, Mabel. (Copy: Bradbury, "Norway in the Forties", p. 696.)

It was in 1692, only 72 years after the landing of the Pilgrims, that the terrible craze of witchcraft broke out among the calm, sober descendants of the Pilgrams. Many were the descendants of the very men and women who had fled from persecution in the Old World. They were seeking religious freedom for themselves but not for others, especially, i.e. the Quakers, or any other religious sect. In 1659, three Quakers: Marmaduke Stevenson, Mary Dyer, and William Robinson went to the gallows in Boston during the Puritans drive against dissenters. The hangings were upheld by the authorities on the grounds that their teachings endangered the stability of the government. (Time Publications: "The World's Great Religions", p. 240.)

The Congregational Church was the established state religion of the colony, whose power was absolute. It was brought to America by followers of the English divine John Robinson. They came over on the Mayflower in 1620, only fifteen years before John[1] Pike, and established the "Separatist" colony in Plymouth, Massachusetts.

There were prosecutions for witchcraft in Connecticut, Virginia, as well as in Massachusetts. Many were accused based on statements extracted from children who had been stimulated to hysteria by an old West Indian servant's stories. More than two hundred persons were imprisoned, fifty-five were tortured, nineteen were hanged, and one was pressed to death. (Funk & Wagnalls Encyclopedia, 1943, p. 9256.)

From Bradbury Memorial (p. 67): "Finally the imprisonments, torturings, and executions rose to such a height as to be no longer endurable, and a sudden revulsion of feeling put a stop to the whole infamous business. There were no executions after 22 September 1692, and a general jail delivery of all the accused took place the following May." (This may have been the reason that Mary Perkins Bradbury escaped the gallows.) It seems strange that Gov. Phips should permit the persecution to proceed as far as it did. He alone had the power to nip the miserable business in the bud, but he showed no disposition to interfere to stay the judicial slaughter of the innocent, perhaps fearing for his own life.

It would not be until the U.S. Declaration of Independence, Constitution and Bill of Rights (1776) that a definite line was drawn between Church and State.

George Carr was born in London, England about 1599. He married Lucinda Devenport and came to America in 1620, on the Mayflower, as a ship carpenter, bringing his young wife with him. He located with the pilgrims at Plymouth, and his wife was one of the unfortunate forty-one who died the following winter and early spring. A few years later he settled in Ipswich, and from there removed with the first settlers of Colechester (Salisbury), Massachusetts. He was granted an island in the Merrimac River for a home and the purposes of a shipyard, and it was called Carr's Island. The action of the town in relation to the grant of the island was as follows: "At a general meeting of the freemen of the town of Colechester, the 3rd day of the 5th month, 1640, it was ordered yt (that) George Carr shall have the island where he now dwells, as well as the marsh and upland, it being the greatest island within the town limits, in the Merrimac River, to him and to his heirs and assigns forever." October 7, 1640, it was ordered by the General Court that "Colechester is henceforth to be called Salisbury." The island was the home of the Carrs for a number of generations, and the possession of this island gave the family the monopoly of the ferrying business across the river in ye olden times. This ferry at George Carr's death was considered to be worth 400 pounds. Two of the family were drowned while attending the ferry. The large house on Carr's Island was destroyed by fire, May 9, 1797. George Carr died in Salisbury, April 4, 1682, and his second wife ELIZABETH died in the same place, May 6, 1691.

Lineage: HOPE FLOWER (JOFFRION) McCOLLAM (Mrs. William)
References from: "A Merrill Memorial, Vol. 1"

NATHANIEL[1] MERRILL ("A Merrill Memorial", p. 159), was one of the earliest settlers of Newbury, MA, in 1635 (keep in mind that John Pike arrived in America in 1635). Nathaniel and his older brother, John were born in England. The registers of wherstead, a parish lying three miles south of Ipswich, England, contained the following entries:

1599 Aug. 16: JOHN MERRELL son of Nath Merrell & Mary his wife was baptised.

1601 May 4: NATHANIEL MERRELL son of Nath & Mary his wife was baptised.

It is supposed that Nathaniel was married before leaving England. However, Savage, in the "Genealogical Dictionary of New England" (published in 1861) states that Nathaneil Merrill married SUSANNA JORDAN (this may have just been copied from Coffin's "History of Newbury" (1845).

Nathaniel died 16 March 1654/55. His will dated 8 March 1654/55 and probated 27 March 1655. After his death his widow married STEPHEN JORDAN (or JOURDAIN).

Nathaniel and Susanna had six children: 1 dau. and five sons (Sameul Merrill, "A Merrill Memorial", p. 6). One son was DANIEL[2] MERRILL ("Ibid": No. 5, p. 162 & 169):

SAMUEL[1] PLUMMER FAMILY
1790-1868

SAMUEL[1] PLUMMER, son of DEDOVAH and TEMPERANCE (BICKFORD) PLUMMER, was born 6 April 1790, Lee, New Hampshire, and died 12 April 1868, Sweden, Maine.

He married (1st) 13 December 1813, Conway, New Hampshire, ABIGAIL PORTER. She was born 4 October 1790, Conway, New Hampshire, and died 24 February 1853. She was the daughter of REV. DR. NATHANIEL and SARAH S. (STILSON) PORTER of Conway.

He married (2nd) 26 June 1856, RODA D. SMART. She was born 17 April 1818, Fryeburg, Maine, the daughter of DANIEL and ESTHER (McINTIRE) SMART of Fryeburg. (After Samuel's death she resided with her daughter Martha A. (Plummer) Smart, Blue Earth City, Minnesota.)

Samuel's father, Dedovah died when Samuel was but nine years old, and his uncle, EBENEZER PLUMMER of Milton, New Hampshire, became his guardian and settled his father's estate; with whom he and his mother lived, and where his mother died three years later, leaving him an orphan. He was apprenticed to a tailor, with who he remained two years, but he did not like the occupation, and said "the thread was not strong enough to hold him", so he went to live with JOSEPH PLUMMER, a cousin to his father, who kept a large hotel in Milton. He was attracted probably by the rich fields containing over five hundred acres of land, and the magnificent orchards, from which was manufactured yearly over a hundred hogsheads of cider. He remained with this relative, who he learned to love and respect almost as a father, until the age when he removed to Sweden, receiving $800 from his uncle with which to commence life. He purchased the farm (the buildings of which now removed) at the top of the hill on the road leading from the Charles Whitehouse place to Samuel Plummer's; he afterwards purchased the farm which later became the residence of Oscar B. Edwards, where he ever after lived; amassed quite a fortune, and was one of the leading citizens of the town. He was a man of good abilities, and much respected by his fellow citizens.

John purchased the James Meserve place in Sweden, where he resided until his death. His occupations were farming and stone cutting, the latter at which he worked for some years in the quarries on Cape Ann, Massachusetts. He held many town offices and other positions of trust, and was for twenty-five years Town Clerk of Sweden, resigning the position in March 1887. (The position was then held by his son, Enfield S. APPENDIX 142-D: (Continued from page 75 in text)
Lineage: DR. CLIFFORD L. PIKE (142-33)

Letter to: Clifford Pike from his mother (Hannah Frances (Howe) Pike). Registry of Probate, York Co., Alfred, Maine (supplied by Helen Chasse). He died 20 Sept. 1909.

Waterford, July 16, 1909

Dear Clifford,

I got your letter Monday night was glad as I always am to get a letter from you. You are all that I have left in this world and I want you to prosper and be happy. I was not any surprised to hear that she had gone to Reno. She is capable of most anything, but I was shocked to hear you paid her so much attention. Do you know that paying the least attention, or being alone with her, even for a few moments or any caress, after you had served her for a divorce was against your case, and probably she knew it and played sick as she is capable of doing to get you into her trap. Jacob Ernest would not let his wife come into the house after he had applied for a divorce. She came there and wanted to stay all night, he told her that they both could not stay under the same roof, he would go some where else and stay.

Another, a woman sought a divorce. The Judge asked her if she was not some to blame. She said she supposed she was and that spoilt her getting a divorce.

I do not see what made you introduce and take her around and introduce her to your acquaintances. I am afraid she has got the drop on you, for that was what she wanted you to do. She is a She Devil has pulled the wool over your eyes all your life and made you cringe to her wiles. I am a going to tell you something but don't for the world tell where you got your information. When you went to Pike's peak - she went too. You know who went to the office with her to get the ticket to go out there. Well when she got to Kansas City, so report has it, she telegraphed to this same one, to send her some more money as she had not got enough and for him to cover his tracks. The confidential clerk of 70 years told of it and it got out. So she lost her place by so doing. After you got back from Pike's peak and went to this store and was talking with the proprietor, she came in the store and asked if he was in. They told her he was, and her husband was up in the office with him. She turned around and went out of the store as though she had been shot. Her face is well known in that store. She has set him against you by telling him their troubles, how you never gave her any money. She was surprised when I told him you had sold one of your houses. She thought you had nothing. He never mentioned Cora's name to me last winter, but inquired for you. I wonder did she get money there to go out there this time.

Beware of her, she may intercept your letters. She means to get all she can out of you and reduce you to poverty. Keep your office locked and do not let her step foot in it. She may want to get your confidence and find out all she can as she did one time in Saco.

Now be a man and mind what you see or do. Hold up your head and, if you don't ever live with her again. Show her as you would a viper. The Lord petty you if she beats you. I will help you all I can and if comes to that you can have a home with your loving, Mother.

Notes:

On 20 September 1909, the Judge of the Probate Court in and for the county of York, appointed Hannah F.P. Smith (heir at law), So. Waterford as administrator of Clifford L. Pike's estate - over that of his wife, Cora F. Pike, Reno, Nevada.

On 15 March 1910, the Probate Court, State of Maine, York Co., appointed: William J. Maybury and Charles E. Sayer of Saco, and Fillmore P. Harris of Biddeford, to appraise the value of the estate of Clifford L. Pike, late of Saco.

$67.35 value of personal property - including considerable number of books.

On April 17, 1910, Frank C. Deering, Administrator presented the estate inventory to the Probate Court and it was accepted and filed June 7, 1910.

Funeral expenses:

Walter I. Dennett, 19 Adams St., Biddeford, Maine.

Total: $51.76.

Phone call with: Jim Pate, Dennett & Craig, P.O. Box 58, Saco, Maine 04072 (mailed copy of funeral expenses).

At this writing (1993), there is a question as to whether the divorce was final. The letter quoted above written by Clifford's mother on July 16, 1909 would indicate that the divorce had not been final - and Clifford died two months later, September 20, 1909.

On the date of his death, his mother, Hannah F. (Pike) Smith, as "heirs-in-law and next of kin", filed a petition with the Justice of the Peace, Waterford, Maine seeking and was appointed administrator of his estate. Cora F. Pike is listed as his wife living in Reno, Nevada.

Clifford's wife, Cora F. Pike did return to the Massachusetts area after his death as recorded from Pike Records (q.v. APPENDIX 142-G, Attempt to Secure Dr. Pike's Records).

Cora F. Pike (Mrs. Clifford) may have died in Reno, Nevada. No records have been found of her being buried in family lot in Waterford, Maine.

TRIBUTE TO: CLIFFORD L. PIKE (Pike Family Assoc. 1908, p. 24)
CLIFFORD LLEWELLYN PIKE

DR. CLIFFORD LLEWELLYN PIKE was born in Sweden, Maine, February 12, 1859, the son of Hannah F. and Elias Pike (142-21), great-grandson of Moses Pike (142-4). As a young man, he studied medicine with Dr. Charles L. Wilson of Waterford, Maine, later entering Bridgton Academy, where he graduated with honors in 1878. He entered the medical department of Bowdoin College in 1879 and during the summer and fall terms of 1880 attended the medical school of Portland. He graduated from Bowdoin in the class of 1881 on which occasion he prepared a thesis which was highly commended by the faculty. After serving at the Maine General Hospital in Portland, Dr. Pike entered upon the practice of medicine in Sweden, Maine moving from there to Norway, Maine. He remained in Norway until 1890, going from there to Saco, Maine. In Saco, he was quite prominent in professional and political circles. In 1906 he gave up his office in Saco and went to Reno, Nevada, returning in 1908 in ill health. In September 1909, he was taken ill with pneumonia and had not the strength to rally. His death occurred September 20, 1909 at his home in Saco, Maine (Pike Assoc. 1910, p. 3).

Dr. Pike first became interested in Pike Family History in 1880 and from that time until his death he gave much attention and hard work to this. In 1900 he, together with Mr. Edwin B. Pike (476-8) (Pike Assoc. 1908, p. 22) and some others, called together the Pikes from all over the country for the organization of the Pike Family Association (Incorporated 18 March 1903 "by the Senate and House of Representatives, Legislature State of Maine assembled" (Pike Assoc. 1902, p. 11). He was preparing to publish a History of the Pike Family and had a large part of the manuscript ready for typing. Had the Association been in position to furnish funds for this work it would doubtless have been completed long ago, but although Dr. Pike gave so much of his own time and money, even neglecting his practice in order to carry forward this work which he so loved, yet he was not able to accomplish the fulfillment of his cherished plans. He was probably the best posted man in the country on Pike Family genealogy and he will be greatly missed in the work of the Association. For the benefit of many who many not have read his paper written for the Pike's Peak Centennial we are publishing same elsewhere in this report. (See: Pike Assoc. 1906, p. 24, "Pike Centennial"; and Pike Assoc. 1912, p. 25, "Extract From Article Written by Dr. Clifford L. Pike for 'Colorado Springs Gazette'", September, 1906.)

Probably not all of Dr. Pike's friends were aware of the fact that besides the practice of his profession, in which he was very successful, and his genealogical research work, he also wrote a number of poems of various kinds. Only a few of these have been published, however. One long one, the "Address of Welcome to the 17th Maine", was written for the 24th Reunion of the 17th Maine, the regiment to which his father belonged, and this poem was published in the papers at that time.

Poems from Pike Family Association:

"Tribute to Major Robert Pike", 1902, p. 36.

"Our Broken Family Circle", 1902, p. 86.

Further tribute: Pike Family Assoc., 1910, p. 4, Secretary's Report:
In Summary: Dr. Pike was a scholar and student in lines outside of his profession, literature, and especially classic poetry, engaging his deepest interest. Books were to him what various forms of recreation are to many another (Bowdoin Medical Class of 1881). The inventory of his estate attests to this fact, as the bulk of the items were historical books. (See APPENDIX 142-F, below.)

Dr. Pike was progressive in medicine, practicing and advocating every genuine advance. His interest in surgery was keen and his belief in its future so enthusiastic as to be practically unbounded. The saving and building up of life seemed to him the most sacred of all callings. (ibid)

As mentioned, Dr. Pike was instrumental in organizing the Pike Family Association in 1900 and devoted much of his life to research and compiling the information - but alas, his life's work was destroyed when after his death his wife refused to turn over the records to the Association. She felt she should be paid for the records. The Association offered her all the money in the treasury - about $300. She wanted more. The dues for the membership was the sum of .25¢ a year.

ATTEMPT TO SECURE DR. PIKE'S RECORDS
PIKE FAMILY ASSOCIATION

"Pike Family Assoc. 1910", p. 12:

At this point the meeting, at the suggestion of the President (Herbert A. Pike of Worcester), resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole to discuss plans, etc. Mrs. Dr. Clifford Pike was one of the first called on for remarks. In brief Mrs. Pike said that she had never been in close touch with the work and was not in a position to say much with regard to the Pike Family Association but expressed her desire and purpose that the work, so far as possible, should be carried on as Dr. Pike wished, and that the Records should be published as he had planned. She said she had part of the records and that they were in very good order but that she did not have all of them. She stated very earnestly that it was her purpose to have the Pike Family History published as Dr. Pike had intended.

The matter of completing and publishing the History was discussed at some length by members in session and different plans were proposed for accomplishing this. No definite plans were decided upon at this time.

At this time there was another discussion with regard to possible ways of securing and completing the records and upon motion of the Association the President (Herbert A. Pike), Secretary (Miss Frances C. Dickerman), and Mrs. Cora F. Pike (Dr. Clifford Pike's wife) were appointed as a Committee to try to work out some plan for the accomplishment of this purpose and were given authority to spend whatever money should be necessary to secure the records.

"Pike Family Assoc., 1912", p. 7, Secretary's Report:

Efforts have been made to get in touch with the genealogical records and also to locate the small lot of manuscripts which was reported by Mrs. Clifford L. Pike as being lost. No trace has been found of any such manuscripts, however, despite the search that has been made, and if left in Nevada by Dr. Pike (as was thought probable) it is quite likely there were destroyed in the many months intervening between his death and the time when the report of the probable loss was made to the Association. Nearly all of the genealogical records are safe we understand, but have not been turned over to the Association. (In 1912 there were 223 members in good standing.)

The Committee appointed to look up the manuscripts and records of the Association in Dr. Pike's hands at the time of his death, expressed their regret at being able to accomplish so little. Efforts had been made in this direction but without success. Extracts were read from letters written by Mrs. Olive Pike Lincoln and Mr. Leroy F. Pike indicating that none of the records were left in Reno as Mrs. Clifford Pike seemed to think probable. Mr. Leroy F. Pike went to Reno and made a thorough investigation with regard to this matter and could not learn that there were any books or records left there by Dr. Pike. Several attempts were made by members of the Committee to get in touch with Mrs. Clifford Pike and secure her cooperation in the attempt to locate the manuscript which Mrs. Pike reports being unable to find but these efforts were unsuccessful. Mrs. Pike admits having most of the records, as we understand it, and it is the hope of the Association that when these are gone over carefully it may be found that none are missing.

(Later: p. 14):

Matters relating to genealogical records, Pike Family History, etc., were considered in various aspects and from different points of view and a general discussion of plans followed. At the close a Committee was appointed with absolute authority from the Association to handle the matter as seemed wise. This committee was as follows: Mr. E.W. Pike of Cambridge, Mrs. Olive Pike Lincoln of Boston, Mr. Leroy F. Pike of Cornish, Maine, President, Mr. Herbert A. Pike of Worcester, Massachusetts, and Secretary, Miss Frances C. Dickerman of Pike, New Hampshire.

"Pike Family Assoc., 1914", p. 4, Secretary's Report:

We are still without the genealogical records which were in Dr. Pike's hands and no new work has been yet undertaken in this line. Perhaps you will think there is too much delay in the matter and if there seems little possibility of securing the genealogical records already worked out it might be well to proceed now to get new records. (There were 210 members.)

The report of Special Committee regarding genealogical records reported briefly stating "that efforts had been made to get into communication with Mrs. Clifford Pike but nothing satisfactory had been accomplished and the Committee had been unable to learn anything with reference to the records. As Mrs. Pike was expected at the Reunion later in the day the President suggested that a Committee be appointed to meet her and confer with her and report at the afternoon session what action they would suggest taking in the matter. The following members were appointed: Mr. John Q. Evans, Mrs. Jesse L. Chandler, and Miss Elizabeth Davis.

It was to the effect that the Committee had held a conference with Mrs. Clifford Pike and discussed the whole matter quite thoroughly considering the limited time. They had come to an agreement of opinion that Mrs. Pike was entitled to some compensation, in one way or another, for the time given by the Doctor Pike and the sacrifice of his business in his zeal to complete these records for the Association; this matter, however, could not be decided at once as it was necessary to have the available records examined and the whole situation studied into carefully. The committee, therefore, had come to the conclusion, which the chairman presented in the form of a motion, that a Committee of three be appointed by the Chair, with power to add two others, to arrange with Mrs. Pike regarding these papers; also that this Committee be authorized to arrange for the completion of the records for publication if deemed practicable. The following committee was appointed: Mr. J.Q. Evans, Miss Elizabeth Davis, Mrs. Dr. Clifford L. Pike.

Mrs. Dr. Clifford L. Pike told something of her search for the records left by Dr. Pike, in Reno, Nevada and stated that so far as she knew she now had them all together and they were at her home in Lynnfield, Massachusetts. (Ed. Note: Through a search of census directories, etc., and help of the Lynnfield Historical Society no records were found where she may have lived in Lynnfield.)

Pike Assoc., 1916-1938. (November 1916 (25 present), Parker House, Boston):

The most important part of the discussion was in connection with the securing of the Pike records in the hands of Mrs. Clifford L. Pike. Mrs. Pike was present and expressed herself as desirous of cooperating with the Pike Family Association in an effort to utilize the genealogical data which had been collected by Dr. Clifford L. Pike, at the expense of the Association and himself. However, after considerable conversation it became evident that Mrs. Pike was less interested in cooperating with the Association for the completion and publication of the records than she was in securing for herself as much cash as possible. Inasmuch as all the funds of the Association, and some special contributions of members, had been expended in the genealogical work of Dr. Pike, it did not seem fair for Mrs. Pike to claim the records, yet realizing the importance of securing them the Association made various suggestions of offers and tried in vain to persuade her to cooperate in some plan or to turn the papers over to the Association accepting certain payments and royalties. She refused all offers and the only proposals she would make in return were most unreasonable. Finally the matter was left that Mrs. Pike would think over carefully the final offer of the Association, which was as liberal as they dared make, with regard to certain payment for her rights in the manuscripts, the Association to take over the completion and publication of the Pike Family History and pay a certain royalty to her. She was to report her decision as soon as possible to the President in order that the matter might be settled, and promised she would advise him promptly. So far as the Secretary knows, nothing was heard from Mrs. Pike, and the next report that reached us was that Mrs. Clifford Pike was dead (prior to 1916) and that the genealogical records, upon the assembling of which Dr. Pike had spent so many years of interested labor, had been burned by her executor, in ignorance of the value of the papers. Also valuable manuscripts and relics loaned for Dr. Pike's use in publishing pamphlets and the Pike Family History have disappeared, presumably destroyed at the same time as the genealogical records. These serious losses have apparently had the effect of benumbing the Association.

At the May 3, 1939 meeting held at Hotel Stadler, Boston, the Association began to seek information from members about their families so that the genealogy of the Pike Family could continue.

She died in 1855 (Village Records, G12, 1855) (see OBIT below). She was the daughter of WILLIAM[1] and HANNAH (MILLER) MILLER. (William[1] Miller was born 5 August 1737, and died 16 January 1781. He married 10 November 1774, New Garden, Hannah Miller. (Unpublished Miller genealogy compiled by Bart Anderson from material at the Historical Society of Pennsylvania.)

Children of Thomas and Mary[2] (Miller) Ellicott. They had nine children (Thomas Ellicott OBIT), five are listed in the New Garden, PA, U.S. Census of 1850 - the other b. after 1850 census:

i. SARAH A.[3] ELLICOTT, b. ca. 1810 (ae 40, 1850 census).

iii. MARY "MERCY"[3] ELLICOTT, b. ca. 1815 (ae 35, 1850 census). OBIT notice: "Daily Local News", 9 Oct. 1882: "Brought home on Sunday afternoon the remains of Mary T. Ellicott, arrived in Kennett from Philadelphia, and were conveyed thence to New Garden Meeting house where they were buried beside those of her father and mother, the one time owners of the great Ellicott property at Avondale. The deceased who died at Robbinstown, Maine, on the 27th inst., at the age of 67 years, was the daughter of Thomas Ellicott, a native of Ellicott's Mills, near Baltimore, MD, who came to Chester county and married Mary Miller who owned the fine farm, known afterward as the Ellicott farm, the mansion house of which is now in the possession of Joel Pusey, and which is almost 200 years old. Ellicott owned over 600 acres, including the timbered ridge running east from Avondale, and another heavily timbered tract on the Lancaster pike which was cut down a few years ago. He was an austere man, and mingled little with his neighbors, and led the life of the Southern plantation gentleman rather than that of a Chester county farmer."

iv. REBECCA[3] ELLICOTT, b. ca. 1821 (ae 29, 1850 census).

v. ELIZABETH[3] ELLICOTT, b. ca. 1821 (ae 29, 1850 census); m. 5 June 1855, Avondale, PA, JAMES SHEPHERD PIKE, b. 8 Sept. 1811, Calais, ME; d. 29 Nov. 1882, Calais, ME (Both inter.: Laurel Hill Cem., Philadelphia, PA.) (See 383. James Shepherd Pike, p. 184.

OBIT: Mrs. Thomas Ellicott (Mary Miller), "Village Record", G.12, 1855 (supplied by Chester Co. Historical Soc.) (Ed. Note: The wedding referred to in the following OBIT was that of her daughter Elizabeth Ellicott (no. v. above) to James Shepherd Pike on 5 June 1855.):

A DEATH INSTEAD OF A WEDDING. We announced in our last paper, the sudden death of Mrs. Thomas Ellicott, Londongrove, Chester Co., at an advanced age. She had undertaken of dinner in her usual health, and was walking in the yard or garden, when she was suddenly seized with violent indisposition and commenced vomiting. Medical aid was sent for, but before they arrived she was no more. She was a woman of many noble qualities, and had raised up a large family of children, who are now in the prime of life. On the day of her sudden death, she was surrounded by all her children, they having gathered together, some of them from distant homes, to be present at the marriage of one of her daughters. All was hilarity and fond anticipation. The expected bridegroom had arrived from a far-off state, when the blow, so unexpected and paralyzing came. The voice of happiness and joy was thus suddenly turned into mourning, and relatives while congratulating themselves on a happy reunion, were called upon to pay the last sad rites to a venerable parent. In former years the deceased had been subject to cramp cholic, and an attack of the kind may have caused the fatal result. We learn that the features after death so resembled life, that the funeral did not take place on the day appointed, but was postponed until the following day. What an impressive lesson does such a dispensation convey to the living!

THOMAS ELLICOTT
Born: 10 November 1777
Died: 6 October 1859

OBIT: Research compiled by H. Rush Kervery on Thomas Ellicott (supplied by Chester Co. Historical Society):

THOMAS ELLICOTT was the son of ANDREW and ESTHER (BROWN) ELLICOTT and was born in Buck's County, Pennsylvania. He married MARY MILLER of Avondale, Chester County, Pennsylvania, 11 December 1806, at the New Garden Meeting House. They lived in Baltimore, Maryland. He was engaged in the milling business and was president of the Union Bank of Maryland, Baltimore.

In 1827 Mr. Garrett in company with Philip E. Thomas and several prominent citizens of Baltimore, Thomas Ellicott being one, inaugurated the preliminary proceedings which resulted in the organization of the B.&O.R.R. Company. In 1834, Thomas removed with his family to his wife's estate at Avondale, Pennsylvania. He took great interest in the history of his ancestors and immediate relations and much use has been made of his collections in compiling the "Ellicott Record."

His wife died in 1855. Both are buried at New Garden Meeting House, Chester County. They had nine children.

Estate Closing: Mary M. Ellicott (Mrs. Thomas Ellicott). Village Record, 3 January 1860. (Ed. Note: It would appear that her estate had not been cleared prior to her husband, Thomas Ellicott's death in 1859.)

ESTATE OF MARY M. ELLICOTT, DEC'D.

Notice is hereby given that all the devisees of the estate of Mary M. Ellicott, late of Avondale, Chester County, deceased, will apply to the Legislature of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, at its next session to wit, January 1860, for the passage of an act authorizing Eli K.
